Selection Includes Movements Branded Totalitarian, Fascist And Communistic

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The Loyalty Review Board last night gave out the list of 91 organizations branded "subversive" by Attorney General Tom C. Clark.

Besides making it public, Board Chairman Seth W. Richardson sent the list to all Government departments and agencies, for use in the loyalty sift that has been going on since July.

Both Clark and Richardson warned officials to be careful about deciding people are disloyal because they belong to groups on the list.

Responsibility Put on Truman

Clark made his ruling on secret evidence. He did not say what this evidence was or where it came from, except that FBI reports were part of it. He did not give the standard by which he tested organizations, to see whether he would put them on the list. And none of the groups branded in his official letter had a chance to answer the evidence against them, whatever it was.

Clark placed responsibility for his list on President Truman, quoting Mr. Truman's order to the Justice Department. This order said:

"The Loyalty Review Board shall currently be furnished by the Department of Justice the name of each foreign or domestic organization, association, movement, group or combination of persons which the Attorney General, after appropriate investigation and determination, designates as totalitarian, Fascist, Communist or subversive, or as having adopted a policy of advocating or approving the commission of acts of force or violence to deny others their rights under the Constitution of the United States, or as seeking to alter the form of government of the United States by unconstitutional means."

List Not Final

Clark told the loyalty board that his list was not final, and that from time to time other organizations might find themselves officially branded by the Justice Department.

These, said Clark, might be groups which are harmless now but later become "victims of dangerous infiltration." Or they might be new groups that Clark thought leaned toward disloyalty.

Of the organizations listed by the Attorney General yesterday, nearly half have been out of business. They were on a "subversive" list gotten up by the Justice Department in 1943, and officially kept secret ever since, although some of the names leaked now and then.

Eleven "Schools" Named

On this list were the American League Against War and Fascism and the Washington Book Shop Association.

To the 1943 list, Clark added the names of 33 groups. Among them were The Columbians (exposed by Edward T. Folliard of The Washington Post more than a year ago), the Ku Klux Klan, the Civil Rights Congress, the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee and the National Committee to Win the Peace.

Clark then listed 11 schools, saying he did not think any institution of learning was subversive but that the "schools" he named appeared to be Communist agencies.

As in the case of the other organizations, Clark did not say what it was about the schools that made them appear to be Communist.

Selections Explained

Here is the Attorney General's story—as he gave it to the loyalty board—of how he got up his subversive list:

"After the issuance of executive order No. 9835 by the President, the department compiled all available data with respect to the type of organization to be dealt with under that order. The investigative reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation concerning such organizations were correlated. Memoranda on such organizations were prepared by attorneys of the department. The list of organizations herein certified is based on their recommendations as reviewed by the Solicitor General, the Assistant Attorney General and the Assistant Solicitor General, and my subse-

Riots Blaze In Southern France; Reds Fight Peace

Police Arrest 130 At Marseille; Mobs Battle at Cannes, Nice; 2 Men Killed

Paris, Dec. 4 (AP).—Marseille police arrested 130 persons as strike violence, instigated by Communist-led unions fighting a back-to-work movement among the nation's two million idle workers, swept tonight through southern France, including the fashionable Riviera.

Two men were killed at Valence—shot to death during a fight with police at the railroad station, strikers said—raising to 24 the number of fatalities from France's wave of rioting and sabotage. Strikers drove police out of the station and reoccupied it.

Twenty-two persons were injured at Nice where, as at Cannes, police battled mobs at the post office. A general strike was called at Nice. A strike at Antibes-Juan les Pins closed almost all businesses and the city hall.

Air Service Halted

The Marseille arrests were made for a variety of disorders. At the Marignane airport outside Marseille, a strike by Air France personnel halted service between Corsica and Marseille. Troops continued to unload wheat from ships in Marseille, however, and four post offices reopened in the city, with army trucks carrying the mail between Marseille and Lyon.

The government claimed a victory in Paris, when a union representing 250,000 store clerks canceled a strike, saying it had obtained some of its demands.

The interior ministry said a saboteur had blown up a 150,000 volt high tension line at Pessac, near Brittany.

Government Acts Fast

The shift of violence to Communist strongholds along the Riviera came as Premier Robert Schuman's cabinet in Paris acted swiftly to use the strike-control powers voted it a few hours earlier by the National Assembly. Under the new law—designed to loosen the Communist grip in the French labor movement—the government can punish sabotage or incitement to strikes with prison terms up to 10 years.

The cabinet already has begun calling up the first units of 80,000 army reservists for police duty under terms of a clause of the law adopted Saturday.

The back-to-work movement was strongest in northern and central France. Officials at Lille said 121,000 textile workers had returned to their jobs in the last two or three days, leaving only 4000 on strike.

Paris flour mill workers, garbage collectors in the suburbs and numerous postal employes also had gone back to work.

But the situation in Marseille, France's second city, where the disorders broke out three weeks ago, was alarming to authorities, who reported recurring fights between strikers and police. Traffic was at

House Told Soviet Got U. S. Dollars For Wheat 'Gift'

By The Associated Press

Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.) told the House yesterday that Russia was paid in full in American dollars for 500,000 tons of wheat and barley she sent to France last year as "a gift."

Not only was Russia paid, Andresen said, but she was paid at prevailing United States prices, the United States footed the shipping bill and 70 per cent of the grain was carried in American ships.

Andresen said he discovered those facts during a recent visit to France and other European countries.

The Communists, he said, were credited with extreme generosity and the United States got no credit at all.

New Group Makes Plea

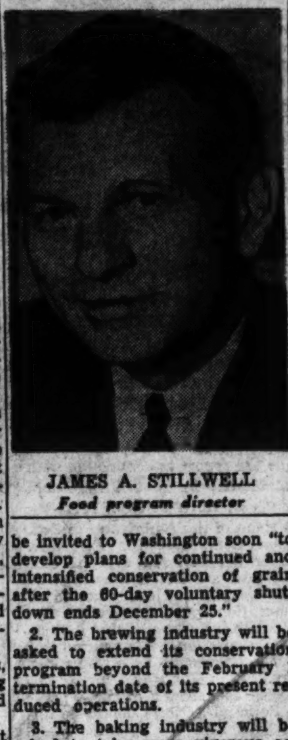
Public Asked to Intensify Food-Conservation Efforts

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The United States was called upon yesterday to intensify its food conservation program in order that this country may be able to export food necessary to avoid starvation in other lands.

A supplanting organization has been set up to carry forward the Citizens Food Committee program to cut domestic consumption of scarce foods so that needy in other lands may be fed.

The new campaign will be directed by a subcommittee of the Cabinet Food Committee. This new committee, headed by James A. Stillwell, special assistant to Secretary of State Marshall, announced its plan at a White House news conference.



JAMES A. STILLWELL
Food program director

Meatless Tuesdays and eggless Thursdays will be continued. Their necessity, not only as a measure to conserve food consumption, but also as a means to halt the mounting cost of food, will be intensified.

To meet the demands for grain "so desperately needed by hungry people abroad," Stillwell said, "there needs to be full and general observance of Meatless Tuesdays and Eggless Thursdays, and an intensification of efforts to prevent waste of food.

"Waste on the farm, in homes, and in stores and public eating places should be diligently and unceasingly combatted.

"There will be less meat to eat in 1948—about 10 pounds per capita less than in 1947.

"The current high price of eggs, reflecting seasonal shortages, makes it good housekeeping practice to forego them, at least one day a week. Eggless Thursdays must continue."

Industrial users of grain also are to be called upon to do their part:

1. The distilling industry will be invited to Washington soon "to develop plans for continued and intensified conservation of grain after the 60-day voluntary shutdown ends December 25."

2. The brewing industry will be asked to extend its conservation program beyond the February 1 termination date of its present reduced operations.

3. The baking industry will be asked to take more vigorous action to curtail consignment selling of bread.

4. Farmers will be asked to intensify the programs now in operation to insure savings of grain on the farms.

5. Recipes featuring nutritious foods which are most plentiful and least expensive will be provided the public by home economics

GOP Would Hand Truman Inflation Issue

'Voluntary' Program Under Presidential Rule Being Prepared

House and Senate Republicans hope to unload the hot inflation issue on the White House doorstep in a "top level" party policy statement soon.

Preliminary work on a largely "voluntary" program, that would be put up to the President to administer, has already quietly begun.

House and Senate leaders and price spokesmen began work on the GOP pronouncement Wednesday. The plan is to clear it through House and Senate Republican steering committees before it is released, possibly late next week.

Anti-Trust Law Revision

The still incubating Republican declaration would combine "yes" and "no" answers on all points in the President's programs with a projected legislative and administrative price program of their own.

One of the proposals being discussed would ask the Government to initiate voluntary industry-wide agreements on prices as well as allocation and priority of materials.

To make it possible for industries to talk it over, without running afoul of the anti-trust act, legislation would be offered exempting such conferences when called at the Government's behest.

Pressed to enactment this session would be at least one point in the the President's program, extension of export control powers with amendments of a more mandatory character. Republicans accuse the President of not using the export control power he now has. This move may have a direct bearing on the size of foreign aid.

Proposals Being Discussed

Most party leaders shied at any comment yesterday, but House Banking Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) told reporters: "We expect to have our own program."

Among the proposals, still in the discussion stage, with no set agreement as yet are:

1. A call on the Administration

GOP Defeats Move to Speed Aid Bill Vote

House Republicans Rush in Speakers as Democrats Waive Time

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A House Democratic maneuver to shorten debate on the $590,000,000 stopgap foreign aid bill was nipped by the Republican leadership yesterday, as the House nearly ran out of foreign aid talk.

The scheduled two-day (12-hour) debate got off to a rousing start but petered out about midafternoon when Democrats started forfeiting their speaking time.

Republican managers had to send out a rush call for GOP speakers to keep the debate going. Later Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) took the House floor to announce voting on amendments will not start until Monday regardless of what time debate is concluded today.

No Vote Until Monday

This was the program approved by the Rules Committee Wednesday and ratified by the House yesterday when it concurred in a 12-hour debate rule.

After a huddle with House Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.), Halleck told reporters members had been assured there would be no vote before Monday and he intended to go through with the program.

He said Democratic tactics were "apparently" designed to make it look like Republicans were delaying a vote.

Premises No "Rubber Stamp"

"We're not going to rubber rubber stamp any bill, but they've had a lot of experience at it," he added.

Democrats declined comment on the surprise shortage of speakers. Minority Leader Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), however, asked the chair what the parliamentary situation would be if debate ended before the scheduled 12 hours expired. Representative Earl C. Michener (R., Mich.), in the chair, ruled that in that case the bill would be read for amendments.

When the House quit at 5:28 p. m. until 10 a. m. today, Democrats had used only 1 hour and 42

Order Bars Nativity Carols From 23 N. Y. Public Schools

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—An assistant superintendent of schools today banned the singing of Christmas carols making references to the Nativity, and celebrations having "religious significance" in 23 Brooklyn public schools.

The order drew an immediate protest from the New York State Council of the Knights of Columbus, which termed it "an insult to all Christians" and demanded a public schools system investigation to have the order revoked.

Assistant Superintendent Isaac Bildersee, in charge of the public schools of two districts, declared in his order:

"Christmas, and other similar occasions, may be celebrated only as seasonal, pre-vacation occurrences. There must not be any reference in dramatizations, songs or other aspects of the occasion to any religious significance involved.

"Christmas carols with reference to the Nativity may not be sung, nor may decorations include religious symbols of any faith."

Bildersee, a member of the Jewish faith, emphasized that his order applied only to carols of religious significance.

The order was issued, he said, because songs of Christian significance and Jewish significance have been sung in the schools in recent years and "have given offense to those of the opposite faith."

A general order of the same purport was issued 40 years ago apply to all New York City schools, the assistant superintendent said, but has not been observed.

Molotov Hits At Aid Plan In Council

Marshall Has First Chance for Direct Denial of Charges About U. S. Aims

By Walter Kerr

London, Dec. 4 (NYHT).—The Marshall Plan for European recovery was brought out in the open before the Council of Foreign Ministers here this afternoon as a basis of current disputes between the Soviet Union and the three Western powers.

Its topmost enemy, Soviet Foreign Minister Viacheslav M. Molotov, told its author, Secretary of State George C. Marshall, that it was aimed at destroying the independence of nations and at the enslavement of peoples.

Secretary Marshall had heard the charges before but never with an opportunity to give a direct answer across the conference table. He leaned forward in his chair and said:

"We have all heard before this distortion of United States motives," he said evenly. "I stated recently (at Chicago) that there was no foundation whatsoever for such charges. I now repeat that statement. But beyond that categorical denial I will not take the time of my colleagues by engaging in futile and unseemly namecalling and propaganda attacks.

Cites 'Real Purpose'

"We are all aware of the real purpose of attacks of this nature. Indeed, it has been announced, it is to disrupt the great cooperative movement that is being launched for the economic recovery of Europe."

This exchange came during an examination of an Austrian peace settlement on which no progress whatsoever was made, and in the end the four foreign ministers at Lancaster House agreed to drop the Austrian problem for the time being and try to solve some of their German problems.

The talk revolved about the toughest Austrian question—a definition of what constitutes German assets in that country. Molotov rejected a French compromise proposal, which Secretary Marshall and Ernest Bevin, the British Foreign Secretary, were willing to accept.

The Soviet delegate then offered a plan of his own, saying his government was prepared to accept a settlement 10 per cent less than it was entitled to of the German assets in its occupation zone of Austria.

This appeared to mean 10 per cent less than the Soviet Union now claims and controls, but the other ministers were not interested. According to American experts, claims are valued at something between 700 and 800 million dollars, and they say that a lot of the property was taken from Austria by force after the anschluss in 1938.

No Specific Terms

Throughout, Marshall and Bevin tried to badger the Soviet delegate into saying exactly what Soviet claims amounted to; that is, to describe them in specific terms. He never did.

The one-day discussion of an Austrian settlement, added to the dispute over the Marshall Plan, provides an excellent example of how this Council session is progressing. Today was the ninth meeting in London; nothing has been accomplished so far. Tomorrow, the truly difficult problems on the German question come up for study, but an objective report of the possibilities would permit little optimism.

The Marshall Plan has, in fact, been in the minds of all men at the conference table since this

Angry Arabs Press Fight In Jerusalem

Scores Wounded In Attacks on Buses; Death Toll Estimated at 45

Jerusalem, Dec. 4 (AP).—Angry Arabs carried their "war" against partition of Palestine to the highways today as a wall of encircling British troops and police kept apart would-be combatants in the major cities.

Alert security forces on 24-hour duty contained the major threats, but scores of Jews and Arabs were wounded in attacks on taxis and bus convoys, and the Associated Press compilation of deaths for three days of rioting, arson and looting mounted to 20 Jews, 15 Arabs.

The compilation listed hundreds injured. Hebrew newspapers estimated damage in Jerusalem alone at four million dollars, only 15 per cent of the loss covered by insurance.

Convoys Attacked

The major clash of the day was in the Arab town of Ramle on the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv road where crowds of Arabs shouting insults attacked two Jewish bus convoys with stones, sticks and guns and were fought by Hagana escorts using guns and grenades. Unofficial reports said at least four Arabs and three Jewish passengers were wounded.

The bloody "border" area between Jewish Tel Aviv and Arab Jaffa, scene of an armed battle yesterday when Arab sallies were turned back by a barrier of Hagana, self-styled Jewish defense army, was comparatively quiet, but the Arabs were reported to have attempted one new sally and there was occasional sniping, with the result that the bodies of two more Jews and two Arabs were picked up.

There was scattered violence and death in Jerusalem, Haifa and elsewhere.

The violent battle at Ramle left the main street a litter of damaged cars, stones, staves and glass.

The first convoy, led by an armored car, succeeded in fighting its way through the howling Arabs, and then the second had to run the gantlet. The Arabs succeeded in closing the road to traffic temporarily.

Arabs Taking Toll

Palestine's roads were nearly empty except for occasional convoys, but occasional bloodstains and shattered glass showed the Arabs were taking a toll. Scores of buses were showered with stones.

A convoy of airline passenger transports was attacked between Tel Aviv and the Lydda Field. The Jewish driver of a Norwegian airline car was severely beaten and an Airfrance driver injured by stones.

An American TWA car turned back to Tel Aviv for a police escort.

While it was the last day of the scheduled three-day Arab strike, the opinion of many was that it would continue, and some observers predicted that Arab feeling would mount to a new high Friday, a Moslem day of rest, when crowds of angry people are expected to congregate at the mosques.

In Jerusalem, Arab mobs shouted taunts at British infantrymen guarding the exits from the old walled quarter to the modern business section which they invaded on Tuesday, looting, burning and killing.

Jewish fighters assembled again in Zion square to protect their people.

Two Jewesses were arrested in Jerusalem's Saint Julian's Way for

Barrett Personally Releases 2 Statements in Clegg Case

Maj. Robert J. Barrett personally entered the Clegg case yesterday on the eve of trial board action on charges against three police officers.

The superintendent of police summoned reporters and released the result of a special investigation into a bite wound suffered by Mrs. Julius Willie Clegg, wife of the 26-year-old Negro war veteran who charges he was unlawfully arrested, detained and beaten by police August 2.

Barrett gave reporters copies of a typewritten statement which he said Mrs. Clegg made but refused to sign. The statement said the bite injury on her right shoulder had been inflicted by her husband "in a spirit of playfulness.

Mrs. Clegg, a 5-foot-9-inch, 152-pound woman, later told reporters her husband, 5 feet 9 inches, weighing 130 pounds, bit her to free himself from a headlock in a family brawl when Clegg came home late after going to the movies and drinking beer. She said she indicated to police the bite had been "playfully" inflicted to protect her husband from possible police charges.

Barrett also released the text of a complaint by two waitresses August 1 that they were being annoyed "each morning" by a "sex pervert" near 13th and F sts. nw. Clegg was arrested next day in that vicinity.

Clegg later was placed in a police lineup but was not identified.

Barrett's disclosures came as the District Commissioners were reported considering appointment of a police trial board in the case that would exclude any representative of the corporation counsel's office. The board will try three policemen on Clegg's accusations.

Scheduled to face the trial board on Clegg's accusations are Detective Sergt. Alex K. Kapsol, Special Investigator David S. Ennis of the Sex Squad and Pvt. John C. Gibboney of the First Precinct, who arrested Clegg.

Mrs. Clegg, who is 25, said yesterday when she returned from questioning by Inspector Floyd Truscott at the Ninth Precinct Station house that she never had complained about the bite. She said that shortly after the brawl Tuesday afternoon, she had a severe attack of "a heart pain." A neighbor took her to Casualty Hospital.

She said the hospital physician asked about the bite as he was examining her. Her statement then was that her husband had inflicted it apparently led to the report to police. The doctor gave Mrs. Clegg some pills for her heart condition.

Foley Sounds Warning on Chest Failure

Sees Duplicating Drives Resulting In Costly Confusion

Failure of the Community Chest drive might result in the "great mistake" of havink many separate drives by charitable agencies, Campaign Chairman Edward H. Foley, jr., warned yesterday.

Foley envisaged great confusion if the $3,900,000 quota is not met and if hospitals or social agencies decide to do their own financing.

"When people realize the significance of the possibility of failure," Foley declared, "I believe they will put this campaign over."

Duplicating drives would increase total overhead costs, leaving less money for health, welfare and recreation, he said.

"The welfare drives would become a plague to the citizen, too," Foley said. "His doorbell would be run, not once, but 125 times."

The campaign total thus far is $2,854,751, or less than 74 per cent of the minimum goal set last summer. A progress report meeting for campaign workers is set for 12:15 p. m. today at the Burlington Hotel.

Chest President Daniel W. Bell announced executive council approval of a new $7.50 a day rate for care of Chest-aided patients in 20 local hospitals. The present rate is $5.

Bell said failure of the campaign would be "tragic" for all service agencies. The effect on hospitals is "particularly dramastic, if they find they are forced to turn patients away to lack of funds," he said.

Foley hoped that any person missed in the drive will send contributions to the Community Chest Federation, 1101 M st. nw.

Greek Amnesties Given 10,261 in Month

Athens, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Ministry of Public Order said today that 10,261 persons including 5647 Rightists were granted amnesties during the month ended November 14. It reported 3419 Communists had "surrendered."

The Ministry of Welfare said 400,000 refugees from guerilla warfare areas were receiving state assistance.

Suppliers Fear 'Panic' Run On Gasoline

Situation 'Tight' But Supply Regarded Sufficient for Now

Major gasoline distributors here said yesterday that supplies are not at a critical level but might become so if the public is alarmed and starts a panic run on supplies.

Generally their opinion was this: Even though the situation is "tight" they will be able to keep their customers supplied with gasoline.

Hint "Tight" Situation

This optimistic report followed several developments which indicated a worsening of the gasoline situation, among them:

1. An announcement by the Retail Gasoline Association of Washington that it will ask the Government to request a voluntary gasoline rationing program among dealers. The association will suggest that stations operate only from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. on weekdays and remain closed on Sunday.

2. The disclosure that the District is still having difficulty in obtaining official gasoline. Four police precincts and the Water Department were without gasoline for a short time yesterday until emergency supplies were obtained.

Customers Held at Fault

"Half of the trouble," said an official of one of the oil companies, "comes when the news gets nosed around. People get panicky. Tell them there's danger of a shortage and they form a queue.

A spokesman for another large distributor said, "we feel very comfortable."

"We're not asking our dealers to do anything," he said. "We're not taking on any new business, but we'll be able to take care of those we have.

An official of another oil company said the situation in this area remains "unchanged" as far as his company is concerned.

"As we see it now," he said, "this month looks all right. But, of course, anything can happen. There's no doubt about it, supply and demand here have been nip-and-tuck."

He said his company is not ac-

Five Students Attend Classes As Parents Strike Second Day

Five students attended classes in the Webb annex to Browne Junior High School and the Blow annex was empty yesterday afternoon on the second day of the strike by parents to keep their children out of the two buildings.

Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning said school officials plan no action to force a return of the students to school.

"It is an unusual emergency and it is up to the Board of Education to decide what shall be done," Corning said.

Mrs. Henry Gratton Doyle, president of the board, commented:

"I feel that the situation will take care of itself when better counsel and thought prevail."

Under the annex plan, 589 students attend Browne in the morning for shop, laboratory and gym work and Blow and Webb in the afternoon for academic subjects. Another group of 557 attends Blow and Webb in the morning and Browne in the afternoon. A third group of 281 students attends Browne part-time in the morning and a fourth group of 394 part-time students in the afternoon.

Parents for the second day picketed the Franklin Administration Building, 13th and K sts. nw., where the Board of Education and school officers have their offices.

"We shall continue to picket and to keep our children out of school

U. S. Office in Iraq Attacked by Arabs

Saudi Arabia Protecting U. S. Interests

(The following story was written by Tony Smith of the Gannett News Service Washington staff on assignment in Saudi Arabia.)

By Tony Smith

Copyright 1947, Gannett News Service

Ras Tanura, Saudi Arabia (Via Cable) (AP). — Vital United States oil operations in Saudi Arabia are proceeding on schedule, despite mounting Arab-Jewish riots throughout the Middle East.

The iron rule of Saudi Arabia's King Saud is preventing disruption of the American oil field concessions.

Some hot-headed Arabs here, however, caught the fever of violence that is spreading throughout the Holy Land, in Cairo and other Middle East sections in the wake of the United Nations Palestine partition ruling.

They tried to stage a protest strike over the Palestine issue.

The move was immediately crushed by Amir Turki Ibn Atalshau, King Ibn Saud's personal agent here.

The strike would have hit operations at Arabian American Oil Co.'s principal refinery at Ras Tanura, on the Persian Gulf.

I talked with Amir Turki, after he conferred with Arab chiefs who came to find out about Saudi Arabian policy on the Palestine partition issue.

"We want no trouble with the Americans here in Saudi Arabia," Amir Turki said.

"They are our friends. I treat them as my own subjects.

"There will be no demonstrations or riots here without the approval of the King."

King Ibn Saud is keeping his pledge to protect Americans here.

Saudi Arabia is becoming a haven for Americans caught in riot areas such as Damascus and Beirut, Syria, and other parts of the Middle East.

A plane carrying several Americans arrived at Dharran, Saudi Arabia, after it failed to get into Damascus, and found trouble at Beirut where the rioters stoned the Trans-Arabian Pipeline office.

Enraged Youths Smash Furniture In Demonstration

By The Associated Press

Enraged Arabs attacked the United States Information Service office in Baghdad, Iraq, and demonstrated elsewhere in the Middle East yesterday over the partition of Palestine.

In the Baghdad demonstration enraged youths — protesting the decision of the United Nations General Assembly to divide Palestine into separate Jewish and Arab states — participated in a mile-long parade and then attacked the United States Information Service Office. They broke up furniture, burned books and papers and threw radio sets out the window. No one was injured.

Minor damage also was done to the British Institute and kindergarten where doors were smashed and about 20 boys inside bruised from stones.

An official communique issued later said all demonstrations must cease. The Foreign Ministry was reported to have apologized to the American Charge d'Affaires and to have promised that the Iraq government would pay for the damage.

Guards Charge Mob

The Egyptian government banned further demonstrations after police and frontier guards charged a mob of 15,000 in a Cairo street battle which Egyptians said had resulted in the death of three students. Police officials said they knew nothing of any fatalities.

One small group threw stones at the American University smashing windows.

About 5000 persons gathered before the Arab League office in Cairo where Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha, league secretary general, told them a recruiting office was being opened for volunteers to fight in Palestine. He declared if the U. N. partition decision is implemented by force then "with the help of God we will oppose force with force."

The chief Syrian tribes were reported to have decided at a congress to put all their men at the disposition of the Palestine Liberation Committee.

A British Embassy official in Washington said Britain had notified the United States she expects the United Nations to assume responsibility for temporary administration of Palestine next May. The old League of Nations mandate under which Britain has been in charge of the Holy Land will be formally terminated at that time, the official said, although the last British troops are not expected to be withdrawn before the following October.

In London, however, spokesmen for the British foreign and colonial offices said the Washington report was "untrue." Herbert Morrison, floor leader in Commons, scheduled a full two-day debate on Palestine for next Thursday and Friday.

Among the subjects before Prime Minister Attlee and his government are the manner of handing over power to the United Nations commission; approval of a timetable for pulling out approximately 70,000 troops and 210,000 tons of supplies; settlement of British assets and liabilities in Palestine, and Britain's future relations with the new Arab and Jewish states.

[Zafarallah Kahn, Pakistan delegate to the United Nations, said in a speech to university students in Bagdad today that the United States coerced many delegates into voting for partition, the United Press reported: He said the Haitian delegate voted for partition "with tears in his eyes." Allies Approve Devaluation Of Schilling

Vienna, Austria, Dec. 4 (AP).—The four-power Allied Control Council today gave unanimous approval to an Austrian bill devaluing the schilling by 66 per cent and wiping out practically all bank accounts opened before the end of the war.

The bill specifies that the conversion of old schillings into the new will take place in accordance with separate agreements previously concluded between the Austrian government and occupying powers.

This clause, it was believed, is to protect the Russians.

Austrians said the Russians would be allowed to convert 490 million schillings on a basis of one for one in settlement of their claim for 600 million schillings.

The Russians loaned 600 million reischmarks at the end of hostilities and demanded 600 million schillings in repayment. Austria never used the marks and the Russians refused to take them back, demanding schillings instead.

The money is now in the Russian State Bank of Austria, which never has been recognized by the government.

The remainder of the fund, it was reported, will be devalued by 66 per cent.

Woman, Great Niece Burn to Death in Home

Pennington Gap, Va., Dec. 4 (AP). Mrs. John Collins, 63-year-old invalid, and her great niece, Irene Collins, 8, were burned to death when the Collins' five-room white frame home burned early today. Collins himself suffered serious burns in trying to bring them to safety.

U. N. Partition Of Palestine Marked Here

The United Nations sanction of a Jewish state in Palestine will be commemorated at services in synagogues in the greater Washington area today at 8 p. m.

"What Partition Should Mean to Us" will be discussed by Rabbi Morris Pickholz at services in the Washington Highlands Jewish Center, 100 Atlantic st. se. A question-answer period will follow. The women of the synagogue will serve refreshments after the service.

Maj. Seymour Pomrenze, archivist at the United States Archives and educational director of Adas Israel Congregation, will speak at services at B'nai Israel Congregation, 14th and Emerson sts. nw., on "Priceless Treasures Brought Back." Rabbi Henry Segal will conduct the service and Cantor Simon Weiss will chant.

Rabbi Solomon H. Metz will conduct services at Adas Israel Synagogue, 6th and I sts. nw., where the speaker will be Judah Shapiro, associate national director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, an organization for Jewish students in educational institutions.

The Holy Land partitioning also will be commemorated at Tifferеth Israel Congregation, 14th and Euclid sts. nw.; Beth Sholom, 8th and Shepherd sts. nw.; Agudath Achim, 909 Quackenbos st. nw.; Ohev Sholom, 5th and I sts. nw., and in other synagogues.

Youth Revival Planned

Winchester, Va., Dec. 4.—Fifty students will arrive here tomorrow to conduct a three-day youth revival at the First Baptist Church. Young people of all faiths are invited to attend the meetings at 7:45 each night, followed by a fellowship hour on Friday and Saturday.

Jewish Leaders Considering Appeal to Export-Import Bank

Lake Success, N. Y., Dec. 4 (U.P.). Jewish leaders are considering an appeal to the United States Export-Import Bank for a loan to help them set up the projected Jewish state of Palestine, it was learned today.

A Jewish agency spokesman said the amount requested would depend on how much could be raised through private Jewish philanthropies in America. It was assumed the request would amount to tens of millions.

The new nation, scheduled to begin its official existence by October 1, will need large funds to finance local militia, to set in motion complex administrative machinery that will have to be built from scratch, and to take care of a vastly increased flow of immigrants.

It is estimated that the Jewish immigration program alone will cost more than 300 million dollars in 1948. The plan is to jump the quota of Jewish immigrants sixfold as soon as possible and absorb some 100,000 new settlers during the year.

Writer Tells Of Holy Land Terror Ride

By Carter L. Davidson

Ramle, Palestine, Dec. 4 (AP).—Terror rode the highways of the Holy Land today.

Only occasional convoys ventured on the roads of central Palestine, the blue-gray mountains of Judea, the green plains of Sharon.

The roads were ghostlike except for a few armored cars with jeeps accompanying buses from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem. Some of those bore broken windows and bloodstains.

This correspondent and a driver, Ibrahim Kuba, went to Ramle, a small Arab town lying athwart the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv road.

We drove over Ramle streets that were knee deep in stones that had been flung at passing motor cars.

Gunmen, lurking in crowds of Arabs or crouching behind stone walls, shot at us. One shot wounded Kuba in the left shin and bruised this correspondent's heel on a ricochet which had sufficient force to rip a hole in the shoe.

At Ramle a jeepful of Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders was arranged for, to run interference.

Retracing the route, we found Arabs still milling in the streets, shouting insults but this time holding their fire.

The correspondent drove, because Kuba, an Arab, had a special assignment.

Every time the Ramle Arabs yelled "dirty Jew" at us, Ibrahim leaned from his window and yelled back: "No, Arab."

Soil Conservation Tour Arranged in Harford

Bel Air, Md., Dec. 4 (AP).—Real estate men, directors and officers of banks, and farm machinery dealers of Harford County will tour farms tomorrow to observe soil conservation practices.

W. Vernay St. Clair, Jarrettsville, chairman of the Harford Soil Conservation District, arranged the trip, another in a series aimed at informing people not engaged in agriculture of the effect of conservation on farming.

carrying Sten guns, ammunition and grenades.

Arab attackers from Jaffa were reported to have been driven out of Barnett Street in Tel Aviv by Hagana fighters, leaving one dead and many wounded. Shots from a police patrol in Jaffa struck a Tel Aviv factory and killed a worker.

Elsewhere in Palestine, a Tel Aviv source reported a "strong Arab attack" on the Jewish settlement of Kfar Azar near Tel Litvinsky. The report said the attack was repulsed by Jewish settlement defense forces. It was the second attack reported on a Jewish settlement.

An official announcement said about 30 armed Jews attacked Arab orange grove workers near Jaffa with grenades and gunfire, wounding one Arab.

U. S. Army Denies Smuggling Arms To Palestine Jews

By the United Press

The Army said yesterday there is no truth in reports that members of the United States Occupation Army in Europe have smuggled weapons and ammunition to the Jewish underground in Palestine.

An Army public relations officer made the report in connection with a statement in Boston by Rabbi Baruch D. Korff of New York, cochairman of the American Political Action Committee for Palestine. The Army officer said every soldier must give a strict accounting for every weapon and every pound of ammunition in his equipment.

Rabbi Korff also said that a Zionist organization was recruiting 250,000 Americans as a volunteer army.

Korff, cochairman of the American Political Action Committee for Palestine, said the volunteers—to be known as the "George Washington Battalion"—hoped to win arms and support from the United Nations.

Hagana Lands 180 Refugees In Tel Aviv Despite Blockade

By Eliav Simon

Tel Aviv, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Uniformed men of the Hagana organization landed 180 Jewish refugees here at dawn today in a bloodless victory over the British anti-immigration blockade.

The entire operation was carried out with military precision within 15 minutes and a British navy sloop raced to the scene to find the landing spot deserted.

"We are your reinforcements," youths and men among the refugees shouted as they came ashore.

Their 50-ton ship Haporez had been lying off the coast for three days, awaiting an opportunity to run the blockade. It was planned to try to land the refugees on the Negev coast.

But last night Hagana advised the ship's master by radio to come to the mouth of the Yarkon River here.

The ship arrived at dawn to find Hagana men, proud in the new battle dress uniforms issued to 10,000 of them Tuesday, awaiting them. The refugees were brought ashore and put into waiting trucks which raced off to the countryside.

When I was taken to the scene a little later, on the city waterfront, there was no sign of the landing.

A swarthy young Moroccan Jew in a nearby Hagana defensive blockhouse said that the Haporez had already put out for another shipload of "reinforcements."

CIO Union Wins Vote to Bargain

The National Labor Relations Board announced yesterday that the United Chemical Workers (CIO) will be certified as the collective bargaining agent for 2878 employes of the Oak Ridge (Tenn.) atomic energy plant.

The CIO union polled 1445 votes to 821 for the AFL Atomic Trades and Labor Council in an election held to choose a bargaining agent for employes of the Carbide & Carbon Chemical Co., a unit of the Oak Ridge installation.

Rewards Total $800 For Church Burners

Atlanta, Dec. 4 (AP).—Gov. M. E. Thompson today offered a $200 State reward, bringing the total to $800 for arrest of persons responsible for burning every Negro church and school in the community of Loganville, 20 miles east of Atlanta.

Thompson said Loganville officials indicated there was no doubt the blazes were incendiary, but they did not believe racial tension was involved.

Senators Ponder Red 'Panic Buying'

Lucas Discerns Possibility of Crackup In Russian Economy; Lovett Questioned

By The Associated Press

State Department reports of "panic buying" in Russia were interpreted by several Senators last night as meaning that the Soviet economic system may be facing serious trouble.

Some other Senators, however, treated the reports with caution.

Two said that the reported difficulties in Russia should serve as a warning against a planned economy in this country.

Popular Confusion

American diplomatic authorities took the view that a temporary state of popular confusion exists in Russia, growing out of the government's efforts to cope with inflation and wind up wartime rationing.

These officials, giving what they described as the majority view among their associates, said Russia had developed the same difficulty as many other countries with surplus currency, but added that her basic economy is not believed to be shaky.

Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett told the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday that something "in the nature of panic buying" is going on in Russia.

Lovett was answering questions about a broadcast by the State Department's "Voice of America," which said a purchasing fever was touched off by rumors of imminent price increases and a devaluation of the ruble.

Persons with contacts inside Russia said there also were reports of runs on banks and of stores closing in Moscow and other cities for lack of goods.

Complete Crackup

Senate Lucas (D.,Ill.) told newsmen the reports indicate the "great possibility of a complete crackup in the Russian economy."

Lucas, assistant Democratic leader of the Senate, added that economic rumbles within the USSR would explain the "violent attacks made by Vishinsky and others upon the United States."

"They made those attacks for home consumption, to try and divert public attention," he said. "They knew when they made them they were false."

Senator Knowland (R., Calif.), who asked Lovett about the "panic" reports, said they "make the Russian argument against tying to the United States, because it faces a depression, ring false."

Knowland said the Russian trouble may explain why the Soviet refused admission to a congressional committee that visited Europe earlier this year.

Hiding Weaknesses

"They probably were unwilling to admit members of Congress because they were unwilling to display their weaknesses and did not want to explain them to the world," he said.

Senator Taylor (D., Idaho), declared: "If the Russians are having difficulty with their planned economy, it should serve as a warning to us in the United States with respect to our own economy."

Agreeing, Senator Bricker (R., Ohio) commented: "It indicates that the strictest controls the world has ever known are not enough to save money and goods. It shows controls don't do the job."

Lovett told the Appropriations Committee that the State Department is seeking further information about the "panic" reports from Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith in Moscow.

The reports were not confirmed immediately by Moscow news dispatches, which are subject to Soviet government control. The Associated Press queried its Moscow bureau, but received nothing.

There was no further comment from the Russian Embassy here, which said last night it had no information to substantiate the reports.

Paris Hears Reports

(In Paris, an official spokesman said "similar reports" of bank runs and heavy buying of durable goods have been received by the French government. He believed the reason was a fear among the Russian people of a forthcoming exchange of banknotes which would reduce the volume of currency in circulation.)

Rumors said to be widely current in Moscow included these:

1. New currency will be issued. The present ruble, which has a nominal value of about 20 American cents but is worth less in actual purchasing power, will be accepted in exchange only up to the amount of two months' salary. Savings accounts may be "frozen," at least in part.

2. A single price system, which would raise the cost of living considerably, may be ordained around December 15. This would replace the present system of rationing some goods at fixed prices and leaving others uncontrolled, so that they rise toward the highest price that people will pay.

Ferguson Comment

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) said the reported panic buying "clearly indicates a very serious economic upheaval and explains why the Russians keep the iron curtain."

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) said: "It has seemed for a long time Russia was more unstable and in a lower economic state than this country. They are basing their plans on our collapse, and were looking in the wrong direction for a collapse. They should have looked in instead of out."

Other comment:

Senator Wiley (R., Wisc.): "If true, it reflects fear conditions that we trust will not become general. We in America want to keep our heads."

Senator Watkins (R., Utah): "In the words of Mark Twain, I would say, 'its important if true.'"

Senator Kem (R., Mo.): "Reports of a flight from the Russian ruble direct attention to our own domestic situation.

"On top of an unbalanced domestic economy characterized by huge liquid assets and unprecedented shortages of goods, the Truman Administration has projected an amazing foreign relief and rehabilitation program.

"The continuation of this program in the proportions proposed entails the risk of a price debacle that may shake the United States to its very foundation."

Senator Lucas, however, asserted that the Russian reports should spur Congress to "vote this European aid program as quickly as possible. Ever since the Senate vote of approval it appears that the efforts of Communists in France and Italy have lagged," he said.

Tatarescu Resigns for Sake of Unity

Bucharest, Romania, Dec. 4 (U.P.). Georghe Tatarescu resigned today as leader of the National Liberal Party, which opposes the Communist-dominated government, "to safeguard the unity of the party," party sources disclosed.

These sources said his resignation was made in a letter which turned party leadership over to Petre Bejan, party parliamentary chief who leads the faction favoring cooperation of National Liberals with the government.

Tatarescu previously quit as Romanian Foreign Minister after the Communist press had campaigned to mark him as a "leak" of state secrets during the treason trial of Peasant Party Leader Juliu Maniu. He was succeeded on November 12 by Mrs. Ana Pauker, director of the Cominform.

a standstill in the big port city, where strikers controlled most of the streets.

Railroads were operating at about 80 per cent of normal. No trains were going any further south from Paris than Lyon, although some local trains in the south of France were operating.

Several persons were injured in the Paris suburbs when strikers tried to drive police from the central electric plant in St. Ouen.

Communist Leader Maurice Thorez, whose party alone opposed the strike control law, attacked Socialist Party leaders for supporting the legislation. He said the law "will become tomorrow a terrible arm in the hands of an apprentice dictator." Thorez, who returned three days ago from Moscow, again denounced the Marshall Plan for European reconstruction. He spoke at Henin Lietard, near Lille.

Late in the evening a small bomb shattered windows in the house of Thorez in suburban Choisy-Le-Roi. There were no casualties.

Dulles Arrives in Paris To Get First Hand View

Paris, Dec. 4.—John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to Secretary of State George C. Marshall, arrived in Paris tonight to "get a first-hand impression of the magnificent effort the French people are making.

Dulles, here for a two-day stay from the Council of Foreign Ministers, did not link his visit directly with the Communist-inspired strike wave. But he called French resistance "more important than anything we are doing in London.

He was met at the railway station by Jefferson Caffery, United States Ambassador.

Dulles said he did not know whether he would see Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the anti-Communist rally of the French people.

Molotov and Marshall Debate Recovery Plan at Conference

session opened. In this plan Germany and Austria are to play a part. But the Russians, opposing the Marshall Plan and hoping to wreck it, have a plan of their own, the Molotov Plan, and in the Molotov Plan, too, Germany and Austria play a part.

Disputes regarding the two countries, therefore, have conflicting plans as a background for discussion.

Refers to Own Plan

Molotov brought up the Marshall Plan when he talked of Austria and American aid to Austria, and he also referred to his own plan though not by name.

"In September, 1945," he said, "agreement on German assets in Austria had been ready for signature (by the Soviet Union and Austria). But on the eve of the signing the American and British representatives told Mr. Renner (Karl Renner), then Prime Minister of Austria, that they would not recognize his government. At Potsdam (two months earlier), the Soviet government had proposed the other governments (the United States and Britain) should recognize the Renner government immediately. But they had refused. Subsequently this nonrecognition was used as a threat held over the Austrian government.

"In 1946-49, other methods of pressure on Austria were used in the form of so-called financial aid in order to influence her internal and external policy. This type of aid led to enslavement. It happens more often now than it used to in 1945. Once having been ordered not to sign an agreement with the Soviet Union on German assets, Austria had become tied to other states on account of financial and economic commitments.

Marshall Asks Questions

"It is well known that the Soviet government never interferes with Austrian policy, and has rendered aid to Austria without ulterior motives, providing quantities of bread and grain in the first periods after the war."

The last paragraph is an official explanation of what is called the Molotov plan; American delegation members think more of Soviet claims to property in Austria.

"What is it the Soviet delegation wants from Austria?" Marshall asked when Molotov rejected the French compromise.

Later he said:

"The Soviet delegation has consistently declined to specify its demands. But if we take its so-called definition of German assets at its face value, the Soviet Union appears to be claiming a number of properties which, in the opinion of the United States delegation, is far more than was awarded at Potsdam.

"In substance, the Soviet Union appears to claim all assets in eastern Austria to which Germans held any kind of title, regardless of how that title was acquired. Yet it is abundantly clear that Hitler's Germany, as a result of the annexation of Austria, acquired extensive property interests in Austria by the abuse of power, by duress, by Aryanization, by involuntary transfer and by the discriminatory interpretation and application of laws."

The French compromise was intended to buy off Soviet claims by economic concessions of the Austrian government and the payment of 100 million dollars worth of goods to the Soviet Union.

It appeared after the meeting tonight that unless some agreements were reached soon in the council, this session of the foreign ministers would not last long.

Chilean Railway System Disrupted by Strike

Santiago, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Railway communications throughout Chile were disrupted today by a 24-hour strike called by the Railway Industrial Federation. Approximately 23,000 men were affected, including 6000 white-collar workers.

Army authorities took over the railways immediately. Claiming the strike was inspired by the Communists, who control the federation, and that it was a new defiance against the state, the government declared the strike illegal. Strikers demanded higher wages.

Benzedrine 'Lift' Source Traced to Inhaler Paper

Chicago, Dec. 4 (AP).—Since the banning of over-the-counter sales of benzedrine an increasing number of persons have been getting a "lift" by eating the contents of benzedrine inhalers, the journal of the American Medical Association said today.

Drs. Russell R. Monroe, Orangeburg, N. Y., and Hyman J. Drell, Chicago, said in an article the inhalers, sold for nasal relief in head colds "at every corner drug store," are broken open and the paper strips which contain a benzedrine base are either chewed or dipped in a warm drink like coffee, or an alcoholic beverage.

"The desired effect is the 'lift' which benzedrine temporarily produces," the article said. "... All the strips in an inhaler probably contain the equivalent of 25 benzedrine pills."

Suppliers Fear 'Panic' Buying May Cause Gasoline Shortage

cepting any new business unless it is of an emergency nature.

The official said that as production has increased, so has demand. His company, he said, has stopped selling oil burners as one means of reducing the sale of fuel oil.

However, a darker view of the situation was taken by R. A. Herrick, executive secretary of the Retail Gasoline Dealers Association, which has a membership of about 200 dealers in this area.

Herrick said he was written Assistant Secretary of the Interior William E. Warne requesting an appointment to discuss a Government program of gasoline conservation. He said he foresees a "severe" gasoline shortage for Washington and the Nation soon.

"We are going to urge the Government," said Herrick, "to take immediate action toward the conservation of gasoline.

"In our opinion, this will do a great deal toward conserving gasoline. This, however, would not apply to stations serving interstate transportation vehices, both buses and trucks, and those carrying food and other perishables.

Herrick's view was shared by A. Graham Shields, director of the oil heating division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, who said:

"If we want to avoid rationing by the Government later, we had better conserve oil and gasoline now. Fuel oil is in a very tight situation, but with proper cooperation of the public, we are going to get by, barring any very severe weather conditions."

Meanwhile, District Purchasing Agent Roland M. Brennan informed the Commissioners yesterday that the Bureau of Federal Supply, which contracts for gasoline for all Federal departments and the District, is urging that regular instead of premium gas be used wherever possible.

Brennan said all District departments, excepting emergency services such as police, fire, ambulance and the sanitary department, have agreed to follow that policy.

Brennan also announced that the Petrol Co., the contractor supplying gasoline to the District government, was unable to meet present needs and as a result four police precincts and the Water Department were without gasoline for a time yesterday.

Brennan said he completed a contract with Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey for emergency supplies until the Petrol Co. can resume deliveries.

The Petrol Co. difficulty in making deliveries was reported to be due to transportation troubles.

Bird Nest Mites May Furnish Medical Clue

Atlanta, Dec. 4 (AP).—From mites taken in the nest of a wild bird, scientists may have discovered a clue that will lead to successful treatment of sleeping sickness.

This possibility was suggested by Dr. William McD. Hammon of the University of California in an address before the National Malaria Society.

Dr. Hammon said a virus taken from the mites appeared to be the parent cause of two of three main types of sleeping sickness which affects horses and human beings. These are the St. Louis and western types. The other common type, he explained, is the eastern equine type.

Clark paid his fine with $100 bills.

Let Sea Gulls Dive at Sea, VA Employes Told

Seattle, Dec. 4 (AP).—Bulletin No. 130 of the Seattle regional office of the Veterans Administration, titled "Feeding of Sea Gulls," reads:

"It has come to the attention of this office that VA employes have been placing food on window sills and other projections for the purpose of attracting sea gulls. This practice results in distraction from their regular work as well as marring the appearance of the building."

To wit: "Effective immediately, no VA employe will place any items on window sills or other projections which might attract sea gulls. All supervisory personnel will take necessary steps to insure compliance."

Quality Character Fit

SALTZ F STREET SUITS 65. TO 135.

Quality, character, fit—these are the three all-important reasons why the Saltz F Street label means more to most men than any loudly touted manufacturer's label.

Certainly there is merit in many nationally advertised brands, including the famous brands of apparel in our stocks. But you can't wear a label, and a brand can have no greater merit than the standards of the merchant who sells it. We consider it our first duty to be selective. Each garment that enters our stocks must measure up to our standards of quality in fabric and tailoring, character in design and pattern. And of supreme importance to you is our feeling about the way a suit should fit. We believe that the finest garment has no value unless it fits you perfectly. Our collection of suits is at a five-year peak. Included are garments bearing labels which are known throughout the world, but on each suit the Saltz F Street label is more important to you, for it assures quality, character, fit.

Intensified Food-Saving Effort Asked

experts of the Department of Agriculture.

Shortage Until Harvest

In announcing its program, the Cabinet committee stated:

"The plain facts are that the food emergency will continue at least until the next harvest. The need for grain overseas will be urgent at least until that time. At home our grain supplies will be too small to meet all demands, and wheat crop prospects are not as promising as they were at this time last year."

Present at the conference were two members of the Cabinet Food Committee, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, and Secretary of Commerce Harriman.

Anderson emphasized his statement of Wednesday that he "doubted that we can get through next spring without price controls on meat."

When asked how price controls could be enforced without rationing, Anderson replied that they had been enforced on sugar in that manner.

"I started to say soap," Anderson said, with an obvious reference to the former food conservation director, Charles Luckman, president of Lever Bros., Inc., soap manufacturers.

"I don't know why that came to my mind," he added, as his remark brought an outburst of laughing.

Wants Distillery Curbs

On the subject of the use of grain by distillers, Anderson was more emphatic.

He declared that restrictions on grain consumption for liquor making must be imposed after the end of the present 60-day shutdown of the Nation's distilleries December 25.

"We must put some clamps on," he said, "or they will neutralize the benefits of the holiday."

Anderson agreed that, in spite of an agreement not to do so, distillers had stepped up their consumption of grain in the 25 days of October preceding the shutdown to double the amount of previous months.

There are two groups of distillers, he said, to consider. One, he said, had large stocks of liquor on hand and is seeking a continuation of the shutdown. The other wants to continue operations in order to build up its stocks.

No Definite Export Goal

The Distilled Spirits Institute, Anderson added, had asked a hearing to present a program of limited operations after the holiday ends December 25.

Anderson admitted that, in view of the large consumption of grain just ahead of the shutdown, that the "holiday" had brought only slight saving.

Anderson and Harriman joined in declaring that the Administration had no definite goal for grain exports other than to ship "all we possibly can."

"We're sure," Anderson said, "we can ship 470 million bushels. We hope to ship as much above 500 as possible—we hope to go above even 570 million if we can."

The present campaign, Harriman added, was a "trial period until Congress gives us the legislation we feel is necessary."

Secretary Harriman Eats Margarine and Likes It

Secretary of Commerce William Averell Harriman, a member of one of America's richest families, eats margarine instead of butter "and likes it."

"I'm ready to commend margarine to the American consumer," he said yesterday. "I've eaten it since the war. I can't tell the difference from butter. It's very satisfactory."

Harriman's remarks at the White House news conference, followed an expression that he was "surprised that people pay $1 a pound for butter."

Lady Astor Clock Ousts Indians in Va. Capitol

Richmond, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—Three Redskins bit the dust in the State Capitol today.

It was a bit of British business again.

Down from the wall in the Capitol building basement came the painting of Chief Black Hawk and two of his feathered friends.

Up in their place went an old parliamentary clock, the gift of Lady Nancy Astor, former British M. P., and native of Virginia.

The clock is a 5 foot, hand-wound affair.

State to Tear Down Old Ocean City Bridge

Baltimore, Dec. 4 (AP).—The State Road Commission announced today it will open bids December 16 on a contract to tear down the old Sinepuxent Bay bridge at Ocean City.

The wooden bridge was damaged by a hurricane several years ago. It has been replaced by a modern steel and concrete span.

Stopgap Aid Speedup Fails

minutes of the 6 hours allotted them. Republican members had taken up the slack with 2 hours and 49 minutes of talk.

If Democrats fail to use up their full time today, Halleck said, the clerk will start reading the bill for amendments but a weekend recess will be taken before any actual votes.

Final Vote Seen Tuesday

He said it may be possible to reach a final vote Monday if preliminaries are completed "by a reasonable hour. His "guess" was that the vote will not come until Tuesday.

Across the Capitol meanwhile:

1. Senate Appropriations Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) in effect served notice that there will be no foreign aid appropriations until the State Department accounts for $16,080,000 in lend-lease deliveries to Russia this year and "produces the individuals" responsible.

2. Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett told Bridges' Senate appropriations group he would recommend to the President that all American aid to France and Italy be stopped if those countries fall under Communist control.

Calls Transfer "Stupid"

Bridges told Lovett Congress provided last year that lend-lease shipments abroad must end December 31, 1946. He attacked the transfer as "stupid" and said his committee wants to know "who figured the deal, who authorized these shipments to Russia and specifically what was shipped."

Lovett told Bridges he had no personal knowledge of the shipments to Russia, but understood they were made up of purchases by Russia before lend-lease expired. He said he understood these purchases were stored by them in this country and subsequently shipped by them.

The House, meanwhile, heard speeches ranging from outright opposition to many shades of support for interim aid.

House Rules Chairman Leo Allen (R., Ill.) was the one outspoken opponent. Urging defeat of the bill, he said passage would be tantamount to a commitment to long range aid and asserted: "All we give in the way of aid may eventually be used against us."

Hopes For 'Era of Peace'

On the other hand, Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio) said the welfare and security of the United States are involved in the aid vote. Said Vorys:

"I hope when the Soviet sees we do not intend to back down any place that we will have an era of peace. But I hope that if a situation should develop where there is an invasion of a free nation by armed force, our Nation will not be failing to act."

Representative Eugene Cox (R., Ohio) termed the aid measure an "investment in National security" but resumed his criticism of the Administration's past handling of relief programs and said United States "appeasement" policies were to blame for Russia's rise.

In the twilight zone, Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.) supported the bill with big reservations. By mutual consent, Republicans and Democrats each gave Andresen 15 minutes. Andresen told the House he would offer an amendment that two thirds of the food provided by the bill be distributed by the Red Cross and similar groups.

Schendel Replies For Lincoln School

Chicago, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Officials of the Abraham Lincoln School declared today that "it is clearly a mystery that Atty. Gen. Clark should line himself up with those powerful groups who want to put a straitjacket on American thought."

The school was among those listed by Clark in a letter to the Federal Loyalty Review Board as "appearing" to be "adjuncts of the Communist party."

Herman Schendel, trade union director for the school, which he said teaches "political action and shop problems" to trade union members, issued a statement saying:

"Perhaps the confusion arises from not knowing which definition of 'subversive' Mr. Clark is defending. The Abraham Lincoln School will continue to educate in the spirit of Lincoln even though in Mr. Clark's definition, fighting for democracy is found under the category of 'subversive'."

Mrs. Taft to Speak At Mu-So-Lit Club

Mrs. Robert A. Taft is to speak at a meeting of the Mu-So-Lit Club, 1327 R st. nw., at 9 o'clock tonight. Attorney Perry W. Howard, president, said Mrs. Taft would speak on "Good Citizenship."

91 Organizations Are Listed As Subversive by Clark

quent careful study of the recommendations of all."

Clark went on to say:

"In connection with the designation of these organizations I wish to reiterate, as the President has pointed out, that it is entirely possible that many persons belonging to such organizations may be loyal to the United States; that membership in, affiliation with or sympathetic association with, any organization designated, is simply one piece of evidence which may or may not be helpful in arriving at a conclusion as to the action which is to be taken in a particular case. 'Guilt by association' has never been one of the principles of our American jurisprudence. We must be satisfied that reasonable grounds exist for concluding that an individual is disloyal. That must be the guide."

Organizations Deny Subversive Charge

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Organizations named in the Government's official list of "totalitarian, fascist, communist or subversive" groups replied tonight with statements denying they fitted any of the categories.

The Rev. William H. Melish, chairman of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, said the body was "prepared to fight through the courts any such imputation of our loyalty.

Armenian Progressive League

Martic Martntz, a member of the Central Committee of the Armenian Progressive League of America, said his organization was "a social, cultural organization" whose "aims are to educate the Armenians of America in the spirit of good citizenship and also, since Armenia is a Soviet Republic, we give factual information about the life there through our paper."

The Jefferson School of Social Science, said through its director, Dr. Howard Selsam:

"There is nothing subversive about the Jefferson School. Its organization and teaching is open and above board. Its aims and purposes are clearly defined in its bulletin of courses and other materials it issues. If the school is subversive, then any teaching of social science that differs from the beliefs of J. Edgar Hoover (chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation) is to be labeled subversive."

Officials of the Photo League said they could not comment until they had studied the matter more closely.

Court Hears Woman Suing Johnny Meyer

New York, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Blonde Patricia Miles, 25, glamorous in a long red suit and a beplumed hat, testified behind closed doors today in her court action seeking to prove that free-spending Press Agent Johnny Meyer, 41, is the father of her 10-month-old son.

The public and press were barred from the Special Sessions courtroom when two of the three justices hearing the paternity suit agreed that the secret proceedings were desirable for the protection of the child.

Corridors were jammed by spectators who stayed to see Miss Miles, former night club cigarette girl, and Meyer, nonchalant and quipping, come and go.

Meyer Is Undisturbed

Meyer, who recently testified under the spotlight of a Senate investigation of his boss, Howard Hughes, was in good spirits.

He told reporters before the proceedings recessed at 3:45 p. m. that he was undisturbed about results of a test which showed his blood type was the same as that of Miss Miles' son.

"You can take it from me I'm not the father of this baby," he said. "Yeah, I know my blood group is the same as the kid's but that doesn't prove I'm the father."

Tests showed that although Meyer and the baby, whose baptismal certificate bears Meyer's name, had the same blood type, the mother's blood was of a different type.

The decision to bar spectators from the trial, in which Miss Miles charges that Meyer fathered her child during a period when they kept trysts in a Manhattan hotel, resulted from motions of their attorneys.

Public Excluded

Elvin Unterman, attorney for Miss Miles, asked that the public be excluded. His motion was granted and Meyer's counsel, Jerome Strauss, moved that witnesses be barred except when they were testifying. This motion was granted.

"Are you moving that the press be excluded?" asked presiding justice Nathan Perlman. Both lawyers said they were not.

"By majority of the court we have decided to exclude the press," Perlman announced.

Father James Kane, priest of the parish where Miss Miles obtained her baby's certificate of baptism, followed her on the witness stand.

The day manager of the hotel at which Miss Miles claims she kept trysts with Meyers was the final witness today.

Attorney have been asked to complete their cases by tomorrow afternoon.

Crying Baby 'Nuisance' in Eviction Case

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Freda Gibson, 17 months old, was branded a "nuisance" today in a court order which evicted her parents from their apartment.

The baby's crying disturbed the landlord's family living directly below.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay W. Gibson announced they would fight eviction. "We were going to move, but now we've changed our minds," said Mrs. Gibson. "Otherwise not a child would be 'safe,' if its parents were renters."

General Sessions Judge William J. Bacon signed the eviction order, holding that "property owners have a right to live peaceably and undisturbed in their homes."

A child who cries excessively, he added, "disturbs their rest and comes under the heading of a nuisance."

Judge Bacon, 70, is childless.

The suit was filed by E. J. Hinz, landlord, who charged that Freda's excessive crying was affecting the health of his wife, who recently underwent an operation.

The Gibsons replied they had been unable to find another place. Besides, they said, the baby did not cry excessively. Gibson, an insurance agent, charged that Hinz was trying to evict him so he could get more than the $45 a month Gibson pays.

Philip's New Ship Anchored Near Palace

London, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, today received an answer to his request for active duty in the navy and was assigned to a depot ship which never moves from its anchorage in the Thames near Buckingham Palace.

The posting of the new prince consort was regarded as a compromise in palace circles. Philip, a navy lieutenant, wanted to continue as an active officer. Princess Elizabeth wanted him at her side as much as possible. Now both were believed satisfied.

Dr. Overholser To Address Dinner Of Eight et Forty

Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, will speak at the twenty-second birthday dinner of the District of Columbia Eight et Forty at the New Colonial Hotel tomorrow at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Mae Hart is chairman of the dinner and Mrs. Irene Arnold, L'Organisatrice and founder of the Salon, will again donate the 25-pound birthday cake decorated with the red and white colors of the organization.

Highway Crash Fatal

Atlantic, Iowa, Dec. 4 (AP). — Sergt. James L. Howe of Cresson, Pa., was killed and 16 other persons were injured last night when an eastbound Greyhound bus and a semitrailer truck sideswiped on Highway 6, 8 miles east of Atlantic last night. All of the injured were passengers of the bus.

Architects Vote Funds to Repair Octagon House

Funds for emergency repairs to historic Octagon House, 18th st. and New York ave. nw., in which President Madison once lived, were voted yesterday by the American Institute of Architects at a meeting in Charleston, S. C.

The Institute, which has occupied Octagon House since 1902 as headquarters, also formulated long-range plans for complete restoration of the structure.

Octagon House, built in the eighteenth century, served for a time as a home for President Madison after the White House was burned by the British. The Treaty of Ghent, ending the War of 1812, was signed in it.

The Institute selected Salt Lake City as the site for its annual convention next June 20.

Republicans Seek to Unload Inflation Issue at White House

to end its own "easy money" policies before Congress enacts consumer credit and bank credit controls. Some GOPers contends the Government can dry up a lot of credit by raising reserve requirements and rediscounts rates.

2. A major effort by the Administration to get stabilized currencies abroad. There was no intimation of how this would be done.

3. Another plug for tax reduction and cuts in Government spending.

4. Continuation of rent controls in some form.

5. Continuation of freight transportation controls.

6. Encouragement of Government bond sales and renewed efforts to get the people to save.

The Republican policy statement, when drafted, is expected to flatly say "No" at this time to the President's call for limited price ceiling and rationing powers.

Developments in Congress

Meantime, as argument over President Truman's 10-point anti-inflation program continued, there were these developments yesterday in congressional committees:

1. Federal Reserve Board Chairman Marriner S. Eccles renewed his proposal that the Nation's banks be required to set up a special reserve to curb expansion. He told the Senate Banking Committee that the plan was neither an "Eccles gadget" nor an "Eccles theory," but represents months of hard work by the board's "very capable" staff.

He added that the plan "is the mildest, least drastic way of dealing" with inflation.

The proposal has been opposed by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and by the Reserve Board's own 12-man advisory council of private bankers.

As for the unanimous opposition of the board's advisory council, Eccles said that was to be expected because the banker members have "vested interests."

2. The Joint Economic Committee heard cotton traders and exchange officers in oposition to the Administration plan to curb speculation in commodity markets by imposing margin requirements.

Their argument was that their own requirements are "sounder than those asked by the Government," and that the Government "has no right" to attempt to influence market prices. They cautioned against attempts to tamper with the "delicately balanced machine" of the exchanges.

3. A wrangle developed in the House Banking Committee as Democratic members challenged inquiries by Representative Smith (R., Ohio) on whether citizens who served on the Harriman Foreign Aid Committee could not profit personally by relief shipments.

The incident arose as Smith questioned Secretary of Commerce Harriman whether a steel executive, who served on the committee, and Randolph Burgess, New York banker, might profit if the long-range Mashall Plan for European aid is approved.

Smith named the steel executive as Hiland Batcheller of Pittsburgh, president of Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Corp.

Representatives Patman (D., Tex.) and Monroney (D., Okla.) protested, saying Smith's questions impugned the motives of prominent persons not then before the committee which is holding hearings on President Truman's proposal for domestic cost-of-living curbs.

Harriman told Smith that "It is very unfair to question what conceivable ulterior motives these men had in serving on the (Harriman) committee. They gave their efforts for the good of their country and in the interest of the people of the United States."

Monroney remarked that such procedures would discourage prominent citizens from advising the government.

Smith then withdrew his questions from the record, saying "I intended in no way to reflect on the motives or integrity of any-one."

4. Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) called for a "real" voluntary meat rationing program and said any American who refused to abide by it ought to be branded "a social menace." He told a reporter that was his answer to Secretary of Agriculture Anderson's statement that he does not see "how we can go through the spring without price controls on meat."

Flanders reiterated his opposition to price controls on any commodities—and to President Truman's request for standby power to impose them.

"If I go for any controls on meat, it would be rationing as a last resort," the Senator said.

He is chairman of a Senate-House Economic Subcommittee which recommended enactment of hold-in-reserve authority to ration meat.

But Flanders declared he wants the voluntary method given a fair trial first and he added that he does not consider the Truman Administration's "meatless Tuesday" as anywhere near an adequate program.

Yachtsman Dies Of Pistol Wound

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Frederick McCormack, 50, wealthy yachtsman and prominent Baltimore, Md., real estate owner, died today in Lennox Hospital a short time after he was found with a gunshot wound back of his right ear in his East Side penthouse apartment.

Detective John Moran said a .38-caliber revolver was found at his side and that the wound was self-inflicted.

McCormack was the son of the late Mrs. Isaac Emerson, whose husband was the "Bromo Seltzer king." His wife, socialite Margaret McNeil McCormack, filed for divorce last August, charging abandonment. She claimed he received $90,000 yearly from the Emerson estate.

Md. Agency Blocks Transit Fare Increase

Baltimore, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Maryland Public Service Commission today agreed to block at least temporarily a move by the Capital Transit Co. to increase fares on its lines which reach out from downtown Washington into Maryland suburbs.

The company had filed notice that it intended to institute a new "5-cent uniform zone" tariff December 11 in Montgomery and Prince Georges county areas which fringe the District.

The new fare system would have gone into effect automatically in the absence of any action by the commission. It decided today to give its people's counsel and attorneys for groups opposing the increase until January 6 to perfect their arguments.

Order Is Entered

The PSC then asked Capital Transit attorneys if they would agree to delay the new fares that long. They replied they would rather have the commission enter an order. The commission announced it would.

No exact date for resumption of public hearings was set. The company has applied to discontinue a streetcar line which runs out through Hyattsville and College Park to Beltsville. Several groups also are opposing this and the commission has agreed to hear their arguments on January 6. It will take up the arguments against the fare increase right after the abandonment matter is disposed of—maybe later the same day, perhaps not until the next.

Officials of Capital Transit today finished presenting their arguments to the commission for the increased fares.

E. E. Merrill, president and chairman of the board, said the company faces a critical financial situation because of increased expenses. He said it needs "immediate and substantial" relief in the form of increased fares. He referred to a recent 15 per cent wage increase granted operating employes.

Discriminatory Fares Cited

The company president followed Dean Locke, staff engineer, who said the "haphazard" system of suburban fares actually discriminates against some bus and streetcar riders. Some patrons, he indicated, get about as much of a ride for 2 cents as others do for 10.

He detailed for the commission how the "uniform 5-cent zone" system would work and explained the boundaries of the zones.

They would radiate from the District line and it would cost 5 cents to ride from there into the first zone, 5 more cents to ride across the first zone and into the second, and so on.

The company contended it lost $450,000 on its suburban operations in the 12 months ended November 1. Taking the wage increases into consideration, it said it stands to lose $588,000 in the next 12 months if income and other expenses remain the same. Even with the increase, it contended, it still stands to lose $178,000 on the suburban lines.

Jurisdiction Questioned

Philip H. Dorsey, jr., who represents consumers in proceedings before the commission as "people's counsel," and Roscoe Walter, attorney representing a Montgomery County group, indicated they want to cross-examine Merrill, Locke, and other Transit Co. officials when the hearing resumes next month.

Dorsey pointed out the company has never supplied any reports which show a breakdown of its expenses and revenues separately for inside and outside the District.

Some opponents of the increase also have raised the question of whether or not the Maryland commission has jurisdiction. They contended suburban commuters across the District line are interstate passengers and the rates are the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

English Town Unveils Memorial to GIs

Weymouth, England, Dec. 4 (AP). A 20-foot column bearing a light to commemorate the 517,816 American troops who passed through Weymouth en route to France was unveiled yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Clayton Bissell, United States military attache in the London embassy, recalled in a dedicatory address that many American soldiers had returned to Weymouth and married English girls "who now are cementing the bonds of friendship between the two countries which will last forever."

Ultimately the light will shine both day and night, but now, because of fuel restrictions, it is turned on only at night.

Vollten Drops Fight, Asks Retirement

Retirement on the grounds of physical disability for Capt. Theodore F. Vollten, veteran Montgomery County detective chief, was recommended yesterday by the Police Trial Board.

Charges against the 50-year-old official with 17 years of police duty were dropped by Police Chief Charles M. Orme at the outset of yesterday's hearing on Vollten's retirement request.

Dismissal of the charges, officials said, amounts to removal of Vollten's suspension ordered October 28 and his immediate reinstatement. Favorable action by the county commissioners on the trial board's recommendation is expected Tuesday, it was declared.

At the hearing which was a far cry from an earlier bitter legal battle, certificates of four physicians were presented revealing that Vollten is suffering from hypertension and "weakness of the heart muscle."

The detective captain testified he first noticed the condition in 1941 following "a tussle with a prisoner who was a prizefighter." He has since experienced several seizures, he said.

Statements of three physicians were presented and Dr. Emil G. Bauersfeld of Bethesda, who appeared personally, said in his opinion Vollten should not continue in active police work.

The retirement was a surprise ending to the police career of the veteran official who earlier fought a bitter legal battle to have the charges quashed.

If the retirement is granted, Vollten will draw an annual pension of $2000, or one-half of his pay, officials said.

$600,000 Cut In Falls Church Project Urged

Falls Church Town Manager Roy F. Dunn yesterday said he would recommend that the town council lop $600,000 from the estimated costs of a water supply main linking the town with the District's system.

When the council meets Monday night, Dunn said, he would also ask that it approve a 35-year bond issue of one million dollars to cover the new water system.

Civil Engineer Bernard F. Locraft, employed by the town to make a preliminary survey of the problem, had estimated the water supply system would cost $1,600,000.

Under Locraft's plan, a 24-inch main would run from Falls Church to a point north of Chain Bridge, cross the river, and connect with the District system at the Dalecarlia Reservoir.

Dunn said the town would save $400,000 by eliminating a special Potomac River crossing for the main and utilizing one already operated by Arlington County at Chain Bridge. By 1957, he estimated, the Falls Church system would have returned enough income to make a special crossing possible.

In addition, the town could save $75,000 by using 20-inch instead of 24-inch pipes from Chesterbrook to the Dalecarlia Reservoir, according to Dunn.

He also felt that the $210,000 fee asked by Locraft to direct the operation was excessive, and that an engineer's fee of from 3 to 5 per cent of the total project cost would save the town still more money.

Loudoun Woman's Club To Have Open Meeting

Leesburg, Va., Dec. 4.—Paul E. Elicker, executive secretary of the National Association of Secondary High School Principals, will be the guest speaker at an open meeting of the Woman's Club of Loudoun, at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, December 6, in the Purcellville Library. The meeting is sponsored by the club's department of education, Mrs. Winifrede E. Meyers, chairman.

Elicker, who has had experience in high school work in a number of States, will discuss, "When Is a School a Good School?"

Maryland Ballot Review Completed by Senate Group

By The Associated Press

A Senate subcommittee has completed its review of 18,000 contested ballots in Maryland's disputed 1946 Senatorial election and referred an additional 6700 to attorneys for the contestants for further screening.

Senator Jenner (R., Ind.), chairman of Senate Rules subcommittee which is investigating the election of Senator O'Conor (D., Md.), said the group will attempt to get its report ready to present to the full committee "in the early part of the next session," which starts in January.

D. John Markey, a Republican, defeated by O'Conor by an official State margin of 2232 votes, is contesting the election, charging errors and irregularities. The Senate, itself, will give the final decision of Markey's petition.

Jenner said the 6700 ballots turned back to attorneys for O'Conor and Markey consist of those in which there is a question about the initials of election judges and precinct workers.

"After they complete their work," he said, "we will have to go over them again for other irregularities."

The next step, Jenner said, will be submission by the subcommittee to the attorneys of "irregularities" uncovered in the State recount and investigation.

Counsel for both parties will be permitted to prepare briefs concerning these "irregularities," Jenner added.

Architects Vote Funds to Repair Octagon House

Funds for emergency repairs to historic Octagon House, 18th st. and New York ave. nw., in which President Madison once lived, were voted yesterday by the American Institute of Architects at a meeting in Charleston, S. C.

The Institute, which has occupied Octagon House since 1902 as headquarters, also formulated long-range plans for complete restoration of the structure.

Octagon House, built in the eighteenth century, served for a time as a home for President Madison after the White House was burned by the British. The Treaty of Ghent, ending the War of 1812, was signed in it.

The Institute selected Salt Lake City as the site for its annual convention next June 20.

Republicans Seek to Unload Inflation Issue at White House

to end its own "easy money" policies before Congress enacts consumer credit and bank credit controls. Some GOPers contends the Government can dry up a lot of credit by raising reserve requirements and rediscounts rates.

2. A major effort by the Administration to get stabilized currencies abroad. There was no intimation of how this would be done.

3. Another plug for tax reduction and cuts in Government spending.

4. Continuation of rent controls in some form.

5. Continuation of freight transportation controls.

6. Encouragement of Government bond sales and renewed efforts to get the people to save.

The Republican policy statement, when drafted, is expected to flatly say "No" at this time to the President's call for limited price ceiling and rationing powers.

Developments in Congress

Meantime, as argument over President Truman's 10-point anti-inflation program continued, there were these developments yesterday in congressional committees:

1. Federal Reserve Board Chairman Marriner S. Eccles renewed his proposal that the Nation's banks be required to set up a special reserve to curb expansion. He told the Senate Banking Committee that the plan was neither an "Eccles gadget" nor an "Eccles theory," but represents months of hard work by the board's "very capable" staff.

He added that the plan "is the mildest, least drastic way of dealing" with inflation.

The proposal has been opposed by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and by the Reserve Board's own 12-man advisory council of private bankers.

As for the unanimous opposition of the board's advisory council, Eccles said that was to be expected because the banker members have "vested interests."

Community Curbs Oppose

2. The Joint Economic Committee heard cotton traders and exchange officers in oposition to the Administration plan to curb speculation in commodity markets by imposing margin requirements.

Their argument was that their own requirements are "sounder than those asked by the Government," and that the Government "has no right" to attempt to influence market prices. They cautioned against attempts to tamper with the "delicately balanced machine" of the exchanges.

3. A wrangle developed in the House Banking Committee as Democratic members challenged inquiries by Representative Smith (R., Ohio) on whether citizens who served on the Harriman Foreign Aid Committee could not profit personally by relief shipments.

The incident arose as Smith questioned Secretary of Commerce Harriman whether a steel executive, who served on the committee, and Randolph Burgess, New York banker, might profit if the long-range Mashall Plan for European aid is approved.

Monroney remarked that such procedures would discourage prominent citizens from advising the government.

Smith then withdrew his questions from the record, saying "I intended in no way to reflect on the motives or integrity of anyone."

4. Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) called for a "real" voluntary meat rationing program and said any American who refused to abide by it ought to be branded "a social menace." He told a reporter that was his answer to Secretary of Agriculture Anderson's statement that he does not see "how we can go through the spring without price controls on meat."

Flanders reiterated his opposition to price controls on any commodities—and to President Truman's request for standby power to impose them.

"If I go for any controls on meat, it would be rationing as a last resort," the Senator said.

He is chairman of a Senate-House Economic Subcommittee which recommended enactment of hold-in-reserve authority to ration meat.

But Flanders declared he wants the voluntary method given a fair trial first and he added that he does not consider the Truman Administration's "meatless Tuesday" as anywhere near an adequate program.

Md. Agency Blocks Transit Fare Increase

Baltimore, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Maryland Public Service Commission today agreed to block at least temporarily a move by the Capital Transit Co. to increase fares on its lines which reach out from downtown Washington into Maryland suburbs.

The company had filed notice that it intended to institute a new "5-cent uniform zone" tariff December 11 in Montgomery and Prince Georges county areas which fringe the District.

The new fare system would have gone into effect automatically in the absence of any action by the commission. It decided today to give its people's counsel and attorneys for groups opposing the increase until January 6 to perfect their arguments.

Order Is Entered

The PSC then asked Capital Transit attorneys if they would agree to delay the new fares that long. They replied they would rather have the commission enter an order. The commission announced it would.

No exact date for resumption of public hearings was set. The company has applied to discontinue a streetcar line which runs out through Hyattsville and College Park to Beltsville. Several groups also are opposing this and the commission has agreed to hear their arguments on January 6. It will take up the arguments against the fare increase right after the abandonment matter is disposed of—maybe later the same day, perhaps not until the next.

Officials of Capital Transit today finished presenting their arguments to the commission for the increased fares.

E. E. Merrill, president and chairman of the board, said the company faces a critical financial situation because of increased expenses. He said it needs "immediate and substantial" relief in the form of increased fares. He referred to a recent 15 per cent wage increase granted operating employes.

Discriminatory Fares Cited

The company president followed Dean Locke, staff engineer, who said the "haphazard" system of suburban fares actually discriminates against some bus and streetcar riders. Some patrons, he indicated, get about as much of a ride for 2 cents as others do for 10.

He detailed for the commission how the "uniform 5-cent zone" system would work and explained the boundaries of the zones.

They would radiate from the District line and it would cost 5 cents to ride from there into the first zone, 5 more cents to ride across the first zone and into the second, and so on.

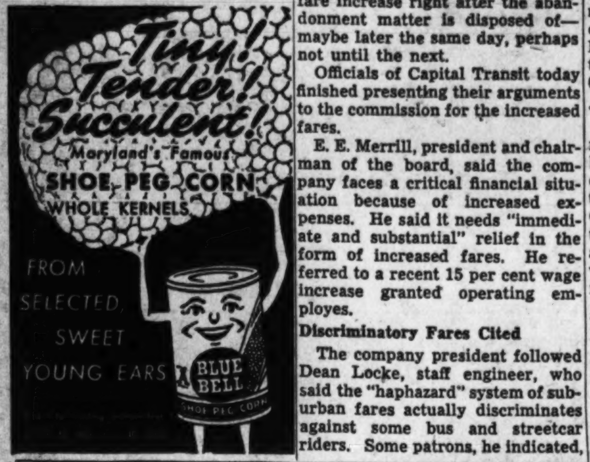
The company contended it lost $450,000 on its suburban operations in the 12 months ended November 1. Taking the wage increases into consideration, it said it stands to lose $588,000 in the next 12 months if income and other expenses remain the same. Even with the increase, it contended, it still stands to lose $178,000 on the suburban lines.

Jurisdiction Questioned

Philip H. Dorsey, jr., who represents consumers in proceedings before the commission as "people's counsel," and Roscoe Walter, attorney representing a Montgomery County group, indicated they want to cross-examine Merrill, Locke, and other Transit Co. officials when the hearing resumes next month.

Dorsey pointed out the company has never supplied any reports which show a breakdown of its expenses and revenues separately for inside and outside the District.

Some opponents of the increase also have raised the question of whether or not the Maryland commission has jurisdiction. They contended suburban commuters across the District line are interstate passengers and the rates are the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.



English Town Unveils Memorial to GIs

Weymouth, England, Dec. 4 (AP). A 20-foot column bearing a light to commemorate the 517,816 American troops who passed through Weymouth en route to France was unveiled yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Clayton Bissell, United States military attache in the London embassy, recalled in a dedicatory address that many American soldiers had returned to Weymouth and married English girls "who now are cementing the bonds of friendship between the two countries which will last forever."

Ultimately the light will shine both day and night, but now, because of fuel restrictions, it is turned on only at night.

Vollten Drops Fight, Asks Retirement

Retirement on the grounds of physical disability for Capt. Theodore F. Vollten, veteran Montgomery County detective chief, was recommended yesterday by the Police Trial Board.

Charges against the 50-year-old official with 17 years of police duty were dropped by Police Chief Charles M. Orme at the outset of yesterday's hearing on Vollten's retirement request.

Dismissal of the charges, officials said, amounts to removal of Vollten's suspension ordered October 28 and his immediate reinstatement. Favorable action by the county commissioners on the trial board's recommendation is expected Tuesday, it was declared.

At the hearing which was a far cry from an earlier bitter legal battle, certificates of four physicians were presented revealing that Vollten is suffering from hypertension and "weakness of the heart muscle."

The detective captain testified he first noticed the condition in 1941 following "a tussle with a prisoner who was a prizefighter." He has since experienced several seizures, he said.

Statements of three physicians were presented and Dr. Emil G. Bauersfeld of Bethesda, who appeared personally, said in his opinion Vollten should not continue in active police work.

The retirement was a surprise ending to the police career of the veteran official who earlier fought a bitter legal battle to have the charges quashed.

If the retirement is granted, Vollten will draw an annual pension of $2000, or one-half of his pay, officials said.

$600,000 Cut In Falls Church Project Urged

Falls Church Town Manager Roy F. Dunn yesterday said he would recommend that the town council lop $600,000 from the estimated costs of a water supply main linking the town with the District's system.

When the council meets Monday night, Dunn said, he would also ask that it approve a 35-year bond issue of one million dollars to cover the new water system.

Civil Engineer Bernard F. Locraft, employed by the town to make a preliminary survey of the problem, had estimated the water supply system would cost $1,600,000.

Under Locraft's plan, a 24-inch main would run from Falls Church to a point north of Chain Bridge, cross the river, and connect with the District system at the Dalecarlia Reservoir.

Dunn said the town would save $400,000 by eliminating a special Potomac River crossing for the main and utilizing one already operated by Arlington County at Chain Bridge. By 1957, he estimated, the Falls Church system would have returned enough income to make a special crossing possible.

In addition, the town could save $75,000 by using 20-inch instead of 24-inch pipes from Chesterbrook to the Dalecarlia Reservoir, according to Dunn.

He also felt that the $210,000 fee asked by Locraft to direct the operation was excessive, and that an engineer's fee of from 3 to 5 per cent of the total project cost would save the town still more money.

Loudoun Woman's Club To Have Open Meeting

Leesburg, Va., Dec. 4.—Paul E. Elicker, executive secretary of the National Association of Secondary High School Principals, will be the guest speaker at an open meeting of the Woman's Club of Loudoun, at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, December 6, in the Purcellville Library. The meeting is sponsored by the club's department of education, Mrs. Winifrede E. Meyers, chairman.

Elicker, who has had experience in high school work in a number of States, will discuss, "When Is a School a Good School?"

Maryland Ballot Review Completed by Senate Group

By The Associated Press

A Senate subcommittee has completed its review of 18,000 contested ballots in Maryland's disputed 1946 Senatorial election and referred an additional 6700 to attorneys for the contestants for further screening.

Senator Jenner (R., Ind.), chairman of Senate Rules subcommittee which is investigating the election of Senator O'Conor (D., Md.), said the group will attempt to get its report ready to present to the full committee "in the early part of the next session," which starts in January.

D. John Markey, a Republican, defeated by O'Conor by an official State margin of 2232 votes, is contesting the election, charging errors and irregularities. The Senate, itself, will give the final decision of Markey's petition.

Jenner said the 6700 ballots turned back to attorneys for O'Conor and Markey consist of those in which there is a question about the initials of election judges and precinct workers.

"After they complete their work," he said, "we will have to go over them again for other irregularities."

The next step, Jenner said, will be submission by the subcommittee to the attorneys of "irregularities" uncovered in the State recount and investigation.

Counsel for both parties will be permitted to prepare briefs concerning these "irregularities," Jenner added.

Armory Competition Will Close Uline Arena, Owner Says

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Competition from the National Guard Armory will force a shutdown of the $700,000 Uline Arena, its owner, Miguel J. Uline, declared yesterday.

Uline told the District Commissioners that unless the present policy is altered, he plans to close the 7-year-old structure at 3d and M sts. ne. on May 15, and dissolve the Washington Lions hockey club and the Capitols basketball team, which he also owns.

After an hour's session with the Commissioners, Uline said the officials expressed sympathy for his problem, but said they were helpless in the matter.

Commissioner Guy Mason declared, "Uline's got a good case. I am very much in sympathy with it. The Armory is a competing activity."

However, Brig Gen. Albert L. Cox, National Guard commander, said he did not expect to change the Armory's present policy of accommodating public social and athletic events at a 15 per cent of the gate charge.

He felt the armory was not in competition with the arena because it did not attempt to promote shows, but merely permitted groups to perform there as "service to the public."

Uline pulled no punches in his comment about the armory and its management. He emphasized that "everything that goes to the armory is a loss to us. They will keep cutting into us. This is government competition with private enterprise.

"Those brass hats are getting into this thing for the glory of it. They are biting the hand that's feeding them."

The last was a reference to the $165,640 paid in taxes last year by Uline on his enterprises and $125,610 paid in amusement tax by spectators at his events last year.

Uline, 72-year-old veteran promoter, said he would convert the giant structure into a cold storage plant for which there has been "great demand" from District food dealers. He said the nearest cold storage plants are in Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

The arena operator, who also owns the Uline Ice Co., painted a glum financial picture before the Commissioners. He said that in the past six years he has lost $200,000 and finally last year had reduced the loss to only $6000.

But now with the loss of $1000 a night rental income anticipated from seven college basketball games and the potential loss of other events, Uline said he was accepting no bookings after May 15. He said that programs were the lifeblood of his enterprise since his $3600 weekly payroll continued whether events were held or not.

Uline said he expected to lose additional bookings since the 15 per cent of gate rental figure set by the Commissioners and the Guard was far below his charge.

Bankers at Luray Hear Speculative Loan Warning

Luray, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—Bankers and agricultural workers from 11 counties in this area were warned by Hugh Leach, president, and Edward Wayne, vice president, of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, to guard against loans of a speculative nature.

"Every bank should carefully scrutinize every application for new loans," Leach said. "If it will increase production—fine, because production combats inflation."

Wayne termed America's basic economic problem today the "lack of balance between available goods and purchasing power." Instead of using credit for expansion at present, the farmer should try to get "more out of every acre instead of more acres," he said.

Earlier W. M. Early, jr., of Orange announced that a Statewide meeting of bankers and professional agriculture workers would be called at Natural Bridge—the date tentatively set for early April.

Museum Art Display Offensive, Is Charge

St. Louis, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—The City Art Museum was accused today by the head of the St. Louis Artists Guild of displaying paintings that would be banned by police if reproduced on postcards.

The three works Henry F. Chadeayne cited were entitled "Death of a Virgin," "Tom Walkers" and "The Immaculate Conception." Perry T. Rathbone, director of the museum, would not comment on Chadeayne's charge except to say the title "Immaculate Conception" was unfortunate. He said it has been removed.

'Dead,' Prisoner Said; And Next Morning He Was!

Richmond, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—Brought in on a drunk and disorderly charge, the prisoner told the desk sergeant:

"Look on my death certificate for my name. I died day before yesterday, will be enbalmed tonight and buried today at 3:30."

That was yesterday. During the night the man was observed walking about. This morning Officer O. S. Childress said he saw the prisoner sitting on his cell bunk looking pale.

A city ambulance was called. The ambulance physician made an examination and said:

"This man is dead."

The prisoner was listed as Linwood Henderson, 27, of Richmond.

An autopsy was ordered.

Gen. Quinton Promoted

Gas Overflow Held Cause of Airliner Fires

T. P. Wright, Civil Aeronautics administrator, said yesterday an investigation shows overflow gasoline running into the cabin heating system caused fires aboard DC-6 type airplanes which recently were grounded voluntarily.

Wright said an industry-Government committee has "determined to its satisfaction" that this was the cause of a series of blazes aboard this type of plane, one of which crashed in Utah after fire broke out.

He said the committee, representing airlines and manufacturers along with the CAA and the Civil Aeronautics board, has about completed its study of the steps which must be taken before the big Douglas transports are returned to service.

President Truman's new plane, the Independence, which is a DC-6, also was grounded pending outcome of the inquiry as to the causes.

More than 80 planes were grounded after an American Airlines ship landed with a serious fire in its fuselage at Gallup, N. M., last month. No one was injured in that accident, but 52 persons had been killed previously when a United Airlines DC-6 crashed in flames at Bryce Canyon, Utah.

"The committee already has determined to its satisfaction," Wright said, "that overflow of gasoline while it was being pumped between the main tanks and auxiliary tanks caused the fire at Gallup, N. Mex., recently and that the same conditions probably caused the fire in the Utah accident."

"This gasoline, forced back along the skin of the plane, was sucked into the plane's cabin heating system. Changes to prevent recurrence of this hazard are being recommended by the committee and considered by the CAA. Still other changes may be required before the plane is returned to service," Wright said.

The Utah accident occurred October 24. The forced landing of a DC-6 in New Mexico was on November 11.

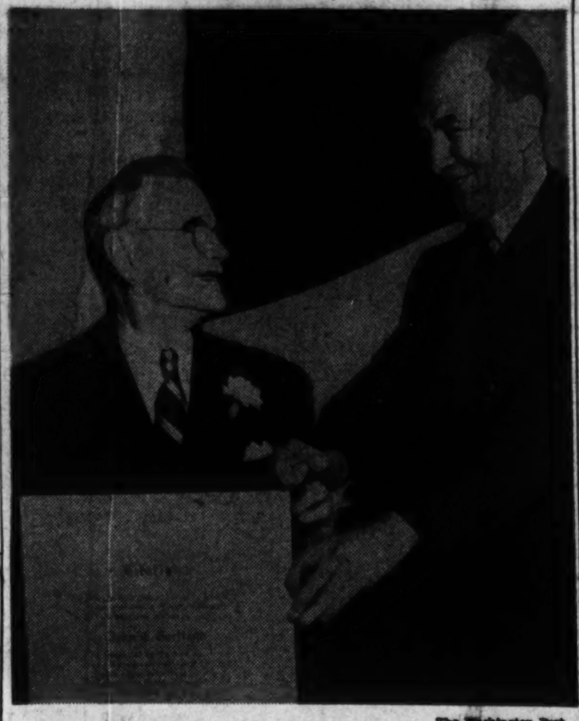
This is the first official statement on the cause of the two fires which led to grounding of the planes, temporary disruption of some trunk-line schedules, and losses which industry sources estimate in millions of dollars to the airlines.

Industry representatives who cannot be quoted say the airlines currently expect return of the DC-6 to service in January. The plane is an enlarged version of the C-54 Skymaster used widely as a military transport during the war. It carries more than 50 passengers and cruises at more than 300 miles an hour.

Community Center Dance

The Jewish Community Center of Greenbelt, Md., will give a benefit dance from 9 to 12 p. m. tomorrow at the Jewish Auditorium in Greenbelt. The building fund will receive a large part of the proceeds, Eli Radinsky, dance committee chairman, said yesterday.

End of 39 Years' Service . . .



The Washington Post

CONGRATULATIONS ARE IN ORDER—John C. Gartland (left), who retired yesterday from the Government after 39 years of service, receives a citation from Dr. Amos E. He has been active in Washington civic affairs many years and served three terms as president of the Georgetown Citizens Association

Plane Scrapes Mountain Top, Lands Safely

Los Angeles, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Two United Airlines cargo pilots wrestled their four engined DC-4 cargo liner to a safe landing last night with two engines bashed in and a wing ripped.

The plane apparently had survived scraping across a mountain.

Airlines officials said only that the plane dropped a propeller somewhere over mountainous Griffith Park, between Burbank and Los Angeles.

Newsmen who inspected the plane found sticks, twigs and pieces of sage brush clinging to the crumbled engines, both starboard propellers gone, jagged holes in the underside of the wings and a tear in the right wing.

The pilot, Capt. Eddie Eshleman, 40, airforce veteran of Vista, Calif., and copilot Sam Miller, of Hollywood, were the only people aboard.

The plane was carrying a cargo here from New York.

"It took superhuman flying skill to bring that ship in," Capt. Edward F. Kiessig, chief of pilots, said after seeing the wreckage. Experts said it would take two men to whip the controls of a ship so badly damaged.

22 Reported Killed In Montenegro Crash

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—The official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug today reported that 22 persons were killed when a plane crashed in Montenegro, near Bar, on November 27. The agency said 17 passengers and 5 crew members were killed and the only survivor, a passenger, was badly injured.

Fog Halts Search For Missing Plane

Frankfurt, Germany, Dec. 4—(AP) The sixth day of search for a missing American Air Forces transport with 20 persons aboard ended tonight with all search planes grounded by fog and the withdrawal of ground rescue units.

Air Force officials said that the search would resume tomorrow, weather permitting. It would be concentrated on the French zone area in Germany near Berschweiler where an apparent signal fire from the grounded plane was seen last night.

Spokesmen expressed confidence that radio signals which apparently originated from the crew of the lost plane were genuine. No further signals were heard today.

Dr. Butler Holding Own With Pneumonia

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, 85, president emeritus of Columbia University, has developed bronchial pneumonia, Dr. William H. McCastline, university medical officer, announced today.

Dr. Butler is in St. Luke's Hospital. Dr. McCastline said Dr. Butler's condition as of this morning is "in every way satisfactory."

Fairlington's Fire Ladders Are Too Short

By Donald Olesen
Post Reporter

Firemen's ladders in the Fairlington, Va., area are too short to reach the development's third-story windows, Charles H. Jennings, chief of the Fairlington Volunteer Fire Department, said yesterday.

Jennings, who lives at 3082 S. Woodrow st., Fairlington, described the situation, "potentially dangerous" to a reporter.

Present ladders used by the Fairlington company are only 24 feet long, Jennings said, and not tall enough to reach the top floor in Fairlington's many three-story units.

The nearest ladder of proper length, a hydraulic piece extending to 85 feet, is located in Clarendon, several miles away.

Potential Danger

"The men at that house say they can get over to Fairlington in from five to eight minutes," Jennings said, "but under bad snow conditions they might be dangerously delayed."

The longest ladders at the nearest Alexander fire company—Truck and Engine Company No. 3 are also only 24 feet. The company expects a truck with a 100-foot extension ladder by January, however.

All Fairlington apartment units are classed as fireproof, Jennings said, but lumber underneath the roofs is not. He stressed that in all of Fairlington's third-story rooms, a single door and the stairwell provides the only exit.

Equipment Needed

"The great fear on my mind is that we might have a bad third-floor fire in Fairlington and the occupants would be unable to get out the door."

He said the Fairlington fire unit badly needs a truck with at least a 65-foot ladder to reach the third stories. The problem is currently being studied by the Fairlington (Civic) Association.

County Manager A. T. Lundberg yesterday admitted the need for a longer fire ladder in the Fairlington area, and said a National Board of Underwriters survey conducted several years ago had called for it.

But funds to buy the new ladder wagon and to house it are lacking, Lundberg added.

Bursley Named Honduran Envoy

Herbert S. Bursley, a veteran in the diplomatic service, was nominated by President Truman yesterday to be Ambassador to Honduras.

Also nominated was Ava M. Warren, now Minister to New Zealand, to be Minister to Finland.

Bursley is a native of Washington, D. C. He served in many consular posts in Europe before being named Counselor of the United States Embassy at Ankara, Turkey, in 1945.

Warren is a native of Ilchester, Md.

Montgomery Leads In U.S. Rural Living

Census Bureau Reports It Noses Out Westchester, N. Y., Long-Time Leader

Montgomery County, Md., has the highest rural standard of living of any county in the United States, according to a book recently published by the Bureau of the Census.

Using an index figure of 100 as the national average for all counties, Montgomery County rated 174, giving it undisputed possession of first place over Westchester County, N. Y., long holder of the title, which came second with a 171 rating.

The rating is determined by combining results of five checks into a long formula. The five checks were:

1. Percentage of occupied dwelling units with less than 1.51 persons per room.
2. Percentage of dwelling units with radios.
3. Percentage of farms with gross income of more than $600 per year.

Autos, Schooling Figured

4. Percentage of farms with autos of 1936 vintage or later.
5. Average years of schooling of persons over 25 years old.

Prince Georges County ranks in a multiway tie for 118th in the Nation—high up the scale of 3050 counties in all the States. Its rating was 137. Anne Arundel rated 126.

Charles County had a 96 rating, Calvert rated 92, and St. Marys County was the lowest in the Free State, rating 81.

Fairfax rated as the leading county in Virginia with 129. Loudoun and Prince William each rated 109. Arlington County has no rating, since it was officially declared completely urban by the Bureau of the Census in 1940. Virginia has a State-wide rating of 88.

The average for the State of Maryland is 110. The book, entitled simply "County Data Book," shows that the number of farms in Maryland decreased from 42,110 in April, 1940, to 41,275 five years later.

More than one in every four farms in Maryland are operated by tenants, and almost one in three has an annual output cash value of less than $400. Showing its Middle Atlantic tendencies, mules and horses in Maryland outnumber tractors only 10 to 1.

In Virginia, there are 22 mules and horses for every tractor.

Virginia farms decreased from nearly 175,000 to just over 173,000. Almost 27 per cent of the farms are tenant-run, and 43.5 per cent have an average produce value of less than $400 a year.

Three States in the United States have no counties that rank above 100. They are Arkansas, Alabama, and Mississippi, with a total of 224 counties. Highest ranking in the Nation is Connecticut, whose 8 counties average 145.

New Jersey is close behind with 143, while Maryland ranks twenty-eighth, and Virginia thirty-sixth. Alabama nosed out Louisiana for forty-seventh place by two points, 66 to 64.

Social Register Drops a Few

New York, Dec. 4 (U.P.)—Some blue-blood names have been dropped from the social register of 1948, and new ones include that of Harry Hopkins' widow, it was disclosed today.

Maud Stevenson, who raced through Roslyn, N. Y., last summer clad only in bra and panties while police chased her, was included. Patricia Hoffman Nickerson Hoscheid, who was fined in Boston last summer for carrying a pistol, was missing.

Harry Cushing 4th, who married Actress Georgette Windsor and became involved in some Hollywood night club skirmishes, also was purged.

So also were retiring and recently married George Vanderbilt, and Henry J. (Bob) Topping, who married Arline Judge, divorced wife of his brother.

Ashley Chandler, great grandson of John Jacob Astor, was dropped. He has had trouble with his wife, the former Princess Maria Antonia de Braganca, now in Italy.

Louise Gill Macy Hopkins, widow of Harry Hopkins, was added after her marriage to socialite Geoffrey Gates.

FBI Seeks Veteran Who Can Identify 'Tokyo Rose'

By the United Press

The FBI said yesterday that it would like to get in touch with any Pacific war veterans who think they can identify "Tokyo Rose." It wants to pin a treason charge on her.

Pole Tells of Wide Anti-Soviet Underground

Warsaw, Poland, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—An anti-Soviet underground organization using the code name "Isthmus" is operating in 13 countries, including the Soviet Union, a defendant in the espionage-treason trial testified today before a Warsaw district military court.

The defendant, Wincenty Kwiecinski, said the Isthmus organization was formed by a former Polish cabinet minister and that its activities were directed against Russia.

Kwiecinski, who testified that former American and British Ambassodors to Poland were involved in underground activity, also described another clandestine organization known as the "Teresa Group" whose function allegedly was to smuggle "compromised" officials to Sweden.

Kwiecinski said "Isthmus" operated in Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, Baltic countries annexed by the Soviet Union, and in six nations in the Soviet sphere—Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Poland, as well as in Russia and Sweden. He did not specify the other two of the 13 nations.

Kwiecinski described in detail several alleged meetings of former U. S. Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane with other officials of the two embassies.

He said one meeting with a subordinate of Lane—his name was withheld because he still is on duty in Warsaw—began in a Warsaw apartment and adjourned to the town of Miedzescyn when Maria Marynowska, another defendant, "arrived in a British Embassy car."

The American official, Kwiecinski said, promised to help send the underground delegation abroad and expressed appreciation for underground news bulletins which were addressed to both the American and British Embassies.

Briton Thinks Tri-Zone Plan Is Sound Economically

Frankfurt, Germany, Dec. 4 (U.P.). An independent western Germany, including the British, American and French zones, and excluding the Russian, would have a "pretty good basis" for economic success, British bipartite strategist Lieut. Gen. Sir Gordon MacReady said today.

He told a press conference that a "trizonia" would succeed economically because of these assets. A population of nearly 50,000,000, "one of the world's biggest accumulations" of industrial strength and agricultural facilities already producing 55 per cent of the area's needs—"which could go higher, to 75 or 80 per cent."

MacReady, in a joint conference with his American colleague, Maj. Gen. Clarence L. Adcock, ret., emphasized he was speaking "theoretically" pending the outcome of the London conference of the Big Four Foreign Ministers.

The British general reiterated an old Anglo-American statement that ideally Germany should be rebuilt on the basis of complete political and economic unity. But, failing this, and on reasoning that "three are better than two," the present bizonal structure would be appreciably strengthened if the French would join in, he said.

City Manager Plan To Be Discussed on Air

A radio panel discussion on "Does Alexandria Have a True City Manager Form of Government?" will be presented tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. over station WPIK.

Taking part in the program will be: William T. Wilkins, Mayor of Alexandria; City Councilman Everett E. Hellmuth; Mrs. D. Tucker Brown, representing the League of Women Voters, and Mrs. Thomas M. Jones, vice president of the Republican Women of Alexandria.

The program is the third in a series of discussions on topics of public interest, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Alexandria.

Rent Control Test Expected Soon In Supreme Court

Cleveland, Dec. 4 (AP).—The legality of rent controls in peacetime will be submitted to a final test by the United States Supreme Court in a few weeks, housing officials predicted today.

The court will be asked to decide on a ruling by Federal Judge Paul Jones holding rent controls unconstitutional when peace "in fact" has arrived.

"We considered the decision of such Nation-wide importance," said Karl M. Duldner, area rent director for Cleveland, "that we decided to go directly to the United States Supreme Court for a quick ruling.

"We should have a decision before the Rent Act expires, February 29."

Ed Dupree, general counsel of the Office of Housing Expediter, said in Washington the appeal will be filed late this week or early next week.

"As for rent control," he commented, "it's still in effect until the Supreme Court passes upon it."

Denham Cites 'Illegal' Phase of ITU Talks

New York, Dec. 4. (Special)—Robert N. Denham, National Labor Relations Board general counsel, today cited AFL International Typographical Union cases as examples of attempts to obtain "illegal" contracts.

But, Denham said, in these cases the employers are "trying to comply with the law," in refusing to sign closed shop contracts, rather than "appeasing" the union.

Denham's comments came in the course of a speech to the National Association of Manufacturers Association convention. His reference was to the current negotiations between the ITU and newspaper publishers in several cities. The union is seeking to retain its traditional closed shop, a form of union security given no sanction by the Taft-Hartley Act.

Denham contended that the closed shop is "barred" by the law, and that a contract including it is "simply an illegal contract."

He pointed out that the NLRB will direct an employer to give a job to a man who was not hired because he did not belong to the union. He added that both employer and union may be required to reimburse the man for the pay he would have earned since his initial application.

But in addition to these penalties, generally understood as applicable under the new law, Denham touched on a significant new note. He strongly hinted that the NLRB might order every closed shop contract to be thrown out, and penalize the union and the employer in other ways for having concluded it. He said:

"The closed shop contract leaves both the employer and the union vulnerable to charges of unfair labor practices on several other counts.

"It well might be charged that such a contract is a type of support and assistance to the contracting union which would justify the board not only to order that the contract be set aside, but that the union be subjected to orders of the board depriving it of its representative capacity. And there are other orders the board might enter to remedy such a situation and to prevent its recurrence."

Denham said he knew a number of employers who had contemplated or actually accomplished the execution of an illegal closed shop contract, "as a matter of appeasement and as a price for what they think is immediate peace."

"A closed shop contract in such circumstances," he continued, may seem to be a short cut in labor relations, but it is actually a trouble-ridden detour . . . It certainly opens the door to unlimited Labor Board litigation."

Turning to other phases of the new law, Denham said he would obtain injunctions in labor disputes only when public welfare was in jeopardy or when violence was threatened.

The NLRB official said that if he applied for injunctions every time an employer or union asked him to, he would try most of his cases in the Federal courts.

He said that in the many cases where employers have requested injunctions "there has been no occasion to actually obtain such an injunction."

He said that several times when NLRB prepared to obtain an injunction "the conditions calling for such action quickly and definitely dissolved themselves into routine labor disputes."

Hearings Slated Today for Three Plane Borrowers

Three District youths will face preliminary hearings at Upper Marlboro, Md., today on charges of unauthorized use of an airplane, as the aftermath of a midnight flight in a "borrowed" plane Wednesday.

Hearing for two, including the 16-year-old pilot, will be at 2 p. m. in the Juvenile Court, while the older of the trio, 18-year-old Charlie Hack, is slated for hearing in open Police Court at 10 a. m. All three are free under $500 bond.

The three boys, all one-time Anacostia High School students, were arrested by Prince Georges County police in a wild 85-mile-an-hour auto chase when they left Columbia Air Center, Croome, Md., after taking a small monoplane aloft without the permission of the owner.

District police said yesterday they intend to question the youths "when Prince Georges authorities get through with them," in connection with several auto thefts in the neighborhood of their homes.

Ex-Officer Files Suit Here to Void Court-Martial

District Court yesterday was asked to set aside the court-martial conviction of a former Army officer on charges of converting reichsmarks valued at $3,000 to his own use.

Lieut. Col. William M. Brown of Bronxville, N. Y., charged in the suit that he had been placed on inactive duty and had started his terminal leave in January, 1946, when he was recalled to active duty and shipped to Germany for court-martial. He asserted he was beyond Army jurisdiction at the time.

He was originally sentenced to serve one year in an Army prison. This sentence was later cut to three months. Named defendants in the suit are Army Secretary Kenneth Royall and Maj. Gen. Edward F. Whitsell, Army adjutant general.

President Suns Himself On Beach

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Key West, Fla., Dec. 4.—President Truman took a sun bath on the beach today, but stayed out of the Atlantic. Some of his companions, who did go in, said the water was "pretty chilly."

Mr. Truman, who was very tired when he flew down from Washington yesterday, already gives evidence of his well-known bounce.

He arose this morning at 7 o'clock, an hour and a half later than his White House schedule, and walked a mile to old Fort Taylor, an officers club located on the ocean. Here he put aside his cane, doffed his tan slacks and shirt, and put on a pair of blue trunks so as to loaf on the beach.

Takes Camera Along

The Chief Executive took along the movie camera presented to him recently by the White House News Photographers Association, which he calls the "One More Club." He made some shots of his party and also of the photographers themselves.

Leaving Fort Taylor, Mr. Truman drove a Cadillac convertible to his quarters at the United States submarine base. He worked for a while on a speech he is to deliver Saturday at the New Everglades National Park. Then, after lunch, he took another long nap.

Tomorrow morning Mr. Truman will board the captured German submarine XU-2351 for the second time. The skipper, Lieut. Comdr. J. B. Casler, will present him with a scroll and a plaque bearing the dolphin insigna of the underseas service. This will make him a master submariner, an honor which he earned last year by taking a 450-foot dive on the former enemy craft.

Others Go Fishing

The President has not yet made up his mind whether to go fishing during his brief vacation here. Five members of his party went out today after amberjack—Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, White House Secretary Matthew J. Connelly, Rear Admiral James H. Foskett, naval aide; Stanley Woodward, State Department protocol officer, and Comdr. Bruce Forsyth, a naval dentist.

Lewis Renews Attack on Boyd Selection

John L. Lewis yesterday renewed his attack on the appointment of Dr. James Boyd as director of the Bureau of Mines, declaring there is a "serious" question whether Boyd is a citizen and qualified to accept the post.

Boyd, former dean of the Colorado School of Mines, promptly challenged Lewis' statements.

Boyd was named to the mine safety position last spring. The Senate Public Lands Committee approved the nomination but Congress recessed for the summer before the Senate acted on it. President Truman submitted it again last week.

Lewis, chief of the United Mine Workers, blasted Boyd's record at the time and took up the cudgels again yesterday in a letter to Committee Chairman Butler (R., Nebr.).

Born in Australia

The UMW boss contended that Boyd never was legally naturalized. He said the biography which Boyd submitted himself to the committee last spring showed that he was born in Australia, December 20, 1904, and was 21 years and 10 months old when his father was naturalized.

At that time, Lewis said the immigration laws granted automatic citizenship to children under 21 years of age when the parent was naturalized.

Since then, Lewis said, the laws have been amended to make this age limit 18.

Informed of the Lewis letter, Boyd told reporters the biographical matter which he submitted to the committee last spring evidently contained a typographical error. His father, he said, was given citizenship on November 6, 1925, not in November, 1926, as it appeared in the record.

Mine Knowledge Questioned

Boyd said he had documentary proof of his father's naturalization on the earlier date and that he was 20 years old when that occurred.

Lewis contended that "if the facts are as stated by Mr. Boyd (in his biography) and he is not a citizen of the United States as defined by statute, then I am sure the President would undoubtedly cause Mr. Boyd's pending nomination to be withdrawn from further consideration by the Senate."

In fighting Boyd's nomination before the Senate Committee last spring, Lewis questioned his knowledge of United States coal mines and emphasized that Boyd admitted he had no personal knowledge of or experience in coal mining.

Boyd was appointed to succeed Dr. R. R. Sayers, who resigned to become director of the UMW's medical board. During the war, Boyd served in the Army, at one time as chief of the metals sections in the Office of the Undersecretary of War.

Fascism Is Threat To United States, Jennie Lee Says

London, Dec. 4 (AP).—Miss Jennie Lee, a Labor member of Parliament who has just returned from the United States, says unions there have about as much political consciousness as British workers had in 1900.

Writing in the Tribune, a leftist weekly, Miss Lee says the effective left in the United States is crystalling around Walter Reuther of the CIO United Automobile Workers, and the organization known as Americans for Democratic Action.

Senate Group Approves Murdock, Gray, Denham for NLRB

The Senate Labor Committee yesterday unanimously recommended confirmation of Abe Murdock and J. Copeland Gray as members and Robert N. Denham as general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

Denham

Chairman Taft (R., Ohio) said the committee also unanimoulsy voted for confirmation of these other nominations by President Truman:

David A. Morse to be Undersecretary of Labor; John Kmetz to be Assistant Secretary of Labor, and Cyrus Ching to be chief of the new Federal Mediation Agency.

All of these nominees have been serving under appointments from President Truman, but must have Senate approval to continue in their posts.

Taft told reporters the nominations probably will come up for a vote in the Senate about next Thursday.

It was the second time the committee has acted on the nominations of the three NLRB officials. Mr. Truman sent their appointments to the Senate late in the last session. The committee approved them then, but the Senate adjourned without taking any action.

Last session, the committee vote was 10 to 3 in the case of Gray and Murdock, former Democratic Senator from Utah. Taft was one of those who voted against them then.

Asked yesterday why he had changed his mind, the Ohioan said he thought both Gray and Murdock "have done a good job up to date."

Meanwhile, the Senate Armed Services Committee approved the nominations of John L. Sullivan to be Secretary of the Navy, and W. Stuart Symington to be Secretary of the Air Force.

The committee also recommended Senate confirmation of other key officers in the new Department of National Defense, including:

William H. Draper, jr., Undersecretary of the Army; Gordon Gray, Assistant Secretary of the Army; W. John Kenney, Undersecretary of the Navy; Arthur S. Barrows, Undersecretary of the Air Force; Cornelius V. Whitney, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force; Eugene M. Zuckert, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force;

Admiral Louis M. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations; Gen. Carl Spaatz, Chief of Staff, United States Air Force;

Rear Admiral Roscow H. Hillenkoetter, Director of Central Intelligence; Arthur M. Hill, chairman of the National Security Resources Board; Thomas J. Hargrave, chairman, Munitions Board; Vannevar Bush, chairman, Research and Development Board.

The committee also approved 678 Regular Army promotions, 527 Air Force promotions and 251 Regular Navy promotions, along with a number of appointments and transfers in the armed services.

Bridge Approach Bid Approved

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Dec. 4.—A low bid of $526,173.10 by the M. J. Grove Lime Co. of Lime Kiln, Md., for construction of approaches to the new-cross Shenandoah Bridge have been approved by the State road commission.

The bid for building 2.2 miles of approaches to the bridge at the western end of Harpers Ferry has been recommended by the road commission to the United States Public Roads Administration, whose approval is necessary before the contract can be signed.

The new bridge, which will be toll-free, will establish all automotive traffic on highway bridges, whereas the only crossing now is a combination railroad-highway bridge from Harpers Ferry into Maryland.

This Was Yesterday's English Class at Webb

The Washington Post

"PRIVATE TUTORING"—Raymond J. Weir, English teacher at Webb School, holds his afternoon class yesterday with only two students—Claude Teague, 1223 Duncan st. ne., and Charles Nelson, 1928 Benning rd. ne. Only three other students were in the Webb building, 15th and Rosedale st. ne., in the afternoon as a result of the parents' strike. Nelson is one of four Browne Junior High School students, who, through their parents, have asked District Court to enjoin the Board of Education from using Blow and Webb Schools as annexes to Browne

Wife Weeps as Bookie Gets 9 Months; Gamblers Warned

A stern warning to professional gamblers in Montgomery County was issued yesterday by Chief Judge Charles W. Woodward as he imposed a maximum fine of $1000 and a 9-month jail sentence on a man convicted of accepting racing bets.

Before imposing sentence on Peter H. Hill, 33, of 8010 Eastern ave., Silver Spring, in Circuit Court, Judge Woodward told him "the evidence is as clear as day you are a professional gambler."

"It is a terrible thing for the people when professional gamblers get a grip on a country," he said, adding: "All professional gamblers in this county must realize if they get convicted in my court, they are going to serve time."

Defendant's Wife Weeps

Without referring by name to several Maryland counties currently experiencing gambling troubles, Judge Woodward said: "We see in other counties what can happen. It is not going to happen here."

Hill, father of two, was convicted Wednesday by a jury of accepting racing bets after Detective Corpl. Edward Barber testified he placed three horse bets with the defendant. Hill's attractive wife wept in the courtroom as she heard the sentence.

In sentencing Hill, Judge Woodward declared: "We are not going to stand for rackets in this county."

Sentence was to be imposed yesterday on Wilburn E. Morrow, 52, of Hanover, Md., but attorneys filed a motion for a new trial. Morrow, a former Silver Spring resident, who was convicted of accepting racing bets, has been described by police as "the kingpin" of gambling in the county.

The court imposed sentence on six other convicted defendants including Maurice Crawford, 30, of Scotland, Md. He was given seven years in the Maryland Penitentiary for two convictions of assault with intent to kill.

Charles H. Krouse, 31, of Hollywood, Md., convicted of shooting his former wife with a shotgun, was sentenced to two years. Seymour Thomas, 20, of Martinsburg, Md., was fined $100 for assault and battery.

James Fuller, 25, of Rockville, was placed on probation for a year. He must pay back $285 he stole.

Four Ken Gar, Md., residents were fined $200 each for illegally selling liquor. They were: Rosa Davis, 36; Alberta D. Davis, 26; Lula Potts, 34, and Walter C. Stewart, 33.

Cataloguers Plan Regional Dinner Here Tomorrow

The annual dinner meeting of the Maryland, Virginia and District of Columbia Regional Group of Cataloguers and Classifiers will be held tomorrow at the Lafayette Hotel, 16th and Eye sts. nw., at 6:15 p. m.

The guest speaker will be Dr. Maurice F. Tauber of the Columbia University School of Library Service, and president-elect of the Division of Cataloguing and Classification of the American Library Association. Dr. Tauber will speak on "New Developments in the Teaching of Cataloguing."

Preceding the dinner, the catalogue departments of two libraries will hold open house for members and guests of the group. At the Army Medical Library Miss Ruth MacDonald and her staff will receive visitors. At the Library of Congress visitors will be received by Miss Lucile M. Morsch, David J. Haykin and Richard S. Angell.

The chairman of the group is Dr. Werner Ellinger of the Library of Congress. Arrangements for the dinner are being made by Miss Marjorie Vivian of the Army Medical Library.

Five Students Go to Classes

until the Board of Education gives us something better than the Blow and Webb buildings," Mrs. Eulalia C. Matthews, 3944 Benning rd. ne., parent of a Browne student said.

Picket lines also moved around the Blow Building, 19th and Benning rd. ne., and the Webb, 15th and Rosedale sts. ne., during the morning. They were removed in the afternoon when parents heeded the requests of the pickets and kept their children home.

W. B. Stinson, principal of Browne and the two annex buildings, said that teachers today will send in reports to the school attendance department listing students absent the two days.

Under the compulsory school attendance law, parents who keep children out of school two days or more without an excuse are committing a misdemeanor and are subject to fine or jail imprisonment. Legal action can be brought by the attendance department through the corporation counsel.

The two annexes were transferred from white elementary schools to use by Negro junior high school children on Monday. The Board of Education authorized the transfer after a stormy public hearing at which Negro civic groups expressed their disapproval. The move placed 1223 Browne students who had been attending school part-time on full-time programs.

"I believe that parents will see that the board did the best thing in transferring the schools," Mrs. Doyle said. "It is to the best interests of the children that they be taken off part-time and be given a full day."

Three other white elementary buildings were transferred to use by Negroes at the time of the Blow-Webb transfer. These transfers have gone smoothly, Corning said.

When approving the transfer, board members emphasized that the use of Blow and Webb for junior high students is temporary. Construction of the Kelly-Miller Junior High School in the area will house the Negro students permanently. The building now in the planning stage is expected to be ready for occupancy in two years.

Mrs. Matthews said that parents object to sending their junior high age children to elementary schools and to the 15 blocks they must travel between Webb and Browne and the nine blocks between Blow and Browne.

Danzer Is Acquitted In Assault Case

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 4 (AP).—President William A. Danzer of the strikebound Colonial Hardwood Flooring Co. was acquitted today of assault on Richard Ringer, 35, a member of the United Furniture Workers, CIO.

Danzer told Magistrate Harry E. Snyder he pushed Ringer to prevent him from striking the occupants of a car with a picket sign.

Horse Show Saturday At Fauquier Springs

Warrenton, Dec. 4.—The Virginia Horse Show Association will hold its annual meeting at the Spring Fields Club, 7 miles south of here, at Fauquier Springs, on Saturday at 11 a. m.

On Saturday afternoon the association will present awards in the hunter, working hunter, jumper, green hunter, pony and equitation classes.

Bohannan Leaves $15,000 to W. & M.

Petersburg, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—James Gordon Bohannan, Petersburg attorney and leader in State legal and educational circles, left $15,000 to the College of William and Mary, of which he was a former rector, and specified that an additional $10,000 go to the institution if available after payment of other bequests.

The lawyer, who died November 19 after a long illness, willed a large part of his estate—estimated at about $200,000—to a brother, A. Wilson Bohannan; a sister, Mrs. Henry H. Galusha of Dinwiddie County, and several nieces and nephews.

The will was entered for probate in Hustings today. Willis W. Bohannan, a nephew and law partner of Bohannan, was named executor.

D. C. Man Acquitted in Death Of Girl From Rifle Bullet

Walter Freeman, 29, of 228 N st. nw., yesterday was acquitted of manslaughter in the shooting to death of Gertrude Hunter 20, of 1426 6th st. nw., by a jury, which, however, found Freeman guilty of carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

Freeman is scheduled to be sentenced tomorrow on the lesser charge.

The prosecution had charged that Freeman fired a shot from a .22 calibre rifle at another man named "Blue," that the shot missed and struck Miss Hunter.

Freeman denied firing at anyone. He denied he knew "Blue," who police have been unable to locate. He also denied that anyone else was in the vicinity of Mead's Court nw., when the shooting took place last Christmas Eve.

Freeman told the court he had concealed the rifle under his coat with the intention of selling it.

He said he heard it was illegal to carry a loaded weapon and that he attempted to unload it when the weapon went off. He denied that the shot struck anyone.

Livestock Show Sales Total Of $2,500,000 Is Predicted

Despite lower prices paid for the grand champion steer and the grand champion carload of cattle, first to be sold today, William E. Ogilvie, the exposition's general manager, said total sales were expected to reach $2,500,000 by the end of the show Saturday.

The grand champion steer, Big Boy, a shorthorn owned and shown by 6-foot 2-inch Claude Millwee, 18-year-old Future Farmer of America from Fort Cobb, Okla., sold at auction for $8 a pound. The price was $2.50 less than was paid for the 1946 king of beef animals.

Bert Overman, chief cattle buyer for Wilson & Co., bought the steer for the Davidson Meat Co., Chicago, paying a total of $8800 for the 1100-pound animal. Overman said the Davidson company, purveyors to hotels and restaurants, planned to slaughter the calf for distribution among its customers.

The record price for a grand champion at the International, $10.50 a pound, was paid by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, last year for Royal Jupiter, an Oklahoma A. and M. College entry.

The reserve grand champion steer, Wyoming Proud Mixer, a Hereford shown by the University of Wyoming, sold for $3.25 a pound, a show record for the runner-up. The animal weighed 1050 pounds.

10 of Hitler's Legal Aides Are Convicted

Nuernberg, Germany, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A United States military tribunal, concluding a unique case of judges sitting in judgment on other jurists, today convicted 10 of Adolf Hitler's leading legal officals on war crimes charges. Four others were acquitted.

Franz Schlegelberger, the main defendant, was sentenced to life imprisonment. He was Secretary of State in the German Justice Ministry from 1933 to 1941, and acting minister until 1942, when the post was taken by Otto Georg Thierack. Thierack committee suicilde in October, 1946.

Schlegelberger was too ill to appear in court. The tribunal described him as a "tragic character" who sold his intellect and scholarship "to Hitler for a mess of political pottage and for the vain hope of personal security.

Ernst Lautz, chief prosecutor in the notorious people's court of Berlin, was sentenced to 10 years.

Former State Secretary Kurt Rothenberger was sentenced to seven years. Although the Nazis removed Rothenberger from office because he wasn't sufficiently ruthless, the tribunal found he had aided the Nazi program of racial persecution and participated in the "corruption and perversion" of the German judicial system.

A life sentence was imposed on former State Secretary Herbert Klemm, a friend of the missing Martin Bormann. Klemm, absent because of illness, was held to be particularly responsible for inciting the German population in the slaying of Allied airmen.

Others convicted:

Oswald Rothaug, known as a "hanging judge," was sentenced to life imprisonment in the same building where he once had presided over a Nazi tribunal.

Wolfgang Mettgenberg, authority on international law, was sentenced to 10 years.

Rudolf Oeschey, who succeeded Rothaug as justice of the Nuernberg court and later was senior prosecutor of the People's Court, life imprisonment.

Joseph Altstoetter, former chief of the justice ministry's Division of Civil Law and Procedure who was convicted of being a member of the SS (Elite Guard), five years.

Those acquitted:

Paul Barnickel, Hans Petersen, Guenther Nebelung and Hermann Cuhorst.

The trial started March 5. Judges James T. Brand of Salem, Oreg.; Mallory B. Blair of Austin, Tex., and Justin W. Harding of Franklin, Ohio, made up the tribunal which heard the case.

Dr. Owens Heads Medical Group

Virginia Beach, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—Dr. Zack D. Owens, Elizabeth City, N. C., today was elected president of the Seaboard Medical Association of Virginia and North Carolina at its 52d annual meeting at the Cavalier Hotel.

Dr. Clarence Porter Jones, Newport News, was reelected secretary treasurer.

Other officers named are Dr. Bryan Grinnan, Norfolk, first vice president; Dr. John A. Payne, Sunbury, N. C., second vice president; Dr. Holmes Chapman, Suffolk, third vice president; Dr. T. W. Blanchard, Hobbsville, N. C., fourth vice president.

Elizabeth City was selected for the 1948 meeting.

Warrenton Gets Memorial Site

Warrenton, Va., Dec. 4.—Plans for a Fauquier County war memorial building, dedicated to county veterans of all wars, were started here this week by the John D. Sudduth Post, American Legion, with the announcement that Hubert B. Phipps, Virginia publisher, had donated 6.1 acres of land on the outskirts of Warrenton to the Legion as a site.

Dr. Byrnal M. Haley, post commander, has reported that a fund raising campaign for $75,000 would be started soon. It is intended to build a playground for children, tennis courts, etc., in addition to the main building which will include an auditorium and meeting rooms for the use of county organizations.

Legion Rents Arena

Winchester, Va., Dec. 4.—The Winchester Legion Post has signed a contract with the Farmers Livestock Exchange for the rental one night weekly of the arena in their new building, west of here on Rt. 50, for the presentation of sports events during the winter and next spring.

Sicily Strikers Try To Destroy Coal

Gunfire Halts Advance on Stocks of Fuel From U. S.; More Walkouts Near Rome

Rome, Dec. 4 (AP).—Striking asphalt miners attempted to destroy stocks of coal shipped into Sicily from the United States, but were driven back by the gunfire of police, the Italian Interior Ministry said today.

The strikers at Ragusa, a city of 50,000 in the southern part of the island, contended the importation of American coal prejudiced the demands of Sicilian labor. The ministry said there were no casualties during the disorders.

A new series of disorders also broke out in various parts of the nation which has been plagued for the past month by strikes and demonstrations as extreme Leftists exerted pressure on the middle-of-the-road cabinet of Premier Alcide de Gasperi.

General Strikes

General strikes in Frascati, Velletri, Albano, Nettuno and Anzio, all a short distance from Rome, interrupted traffic to and from the capital. Streets were overrun in the Forte Bravetta area, outside the capital by homeless marchers and crowds of unemployed.

A hand grenade was thrown against a police station on the edge of Rome, causing slight damage.

Press Strike Called

The National Press Association called a strike of newspaper editorial workers to begin Saturday morning following a breakdown of negotiations with representatives of newspaper publishers over demands for wage increases. Printers declared their solidarity with the newsmen.

The Communist newspaper L'Unita said chambers of labor in Milan and Varese in the north ahev drawn up demands that the government take temporary possession of factories which have been closed or are not keeping up with payrolls.

De Gasperi, who has been stricken with an attack of arthritis, continued conferences with political leaders in efforts to broaden his cabinet to better withstand leftist assaults.

Monetary Fund Frowns Upon Italy's Plan

By The Associated Press

The 46-nation World Monetary Fund frowned yesterday on Italy's new plan for varying its money exchange rates from month to month but indicated approval of that nation's markdown of the value of the lire.

The fund announcement said in effect that the markdown puts the buying power of the lire in Italy about even with its rate of exchange with the dollar. It also viewed the action as encouraging Italy's ability to export and tending to cut down Italian black markets.

The fund's primary objective is to keep money values steady without important variations over long periods. On Italy's system of resetting exchange rates each month, it said:

"Arrangements which in fact result in fluctuating exchange rates are not in accord with the long-term objectives of the fund."

In Sympathy With Italy

It expressed "sympathy" with Italy's purposes, however, saying:

"The fund recognizes that in some cases members may be required, for temporary periods, to institute extraordinary measures in an attempt to meet particular difficulties.

"The fund will look on such measures for temporary periods with sympathy.

"In the case of Italy, the fund feels sure that the (Italian) government is fully in agreement with the long-run purposes of the fund and will, as soon as possible, move toward the establishment of fixed and stable exchange rates."

No Loss of Aid for Italy

The fund, officials indicated to a reporter, will not attempt to bar Italy from any aid, but will keep behind Italy to set a stable exchange rate as soon as possible.

Italy is one of nine fund members which never have asked the fund to agree to a specified par value for its money.

This factor made it doubtful whether Italy is subject to the fund rule that members cannot change the value of their currence more than 10 per cent without fund approval, under penalties ranging to expulsion.

The expression of disapproval, although mild, was the first of the kind voiced by the fund since it began operating more than a year ago.

Parking Fee Refunded To 3-Year-Old Girl

Lebanon, Ohio (U.P.).—Phyllis Anne Rueppel wants no trouble from the police, even if it costs her eight cents.

The 3-year-old parked her tricycle by a parking meter while on the way to a corner candy store and dropped her pennies into the slot, just as papa does.

The eight cents was refunded by a policeman with the courteous explanation that parking meters are for big folks only.

School Picketing

The school picketing campaign launched Wednesday by a group of Negro parents seems to us a singularly ineffectual method of promoting anything except rancor. It is understandable that parents should be concerned over the arrangement whereby their children must shuttle back and forth as much as 15 blocks in order to benefit from full-day sessions. It is the means chosen for the protest, rather than the protest itself, that is objectionable. Attendance at the Blow and Webb Schools Thursday was reduced to virtually zero. The victims of this sort of strike are, of course, the students themselves.

There can be no gainsaying the fact that the present situation is a mess. Two of the five old schools transferred to Negro use are being employed as annexes to Browne Junior High School. In order that the students attending these two schools shall have gymnasium, laboratory and other facilities, it is necessary for them to spend half their school day at Browne. It is not surprising that parents, mindful of past inequities, have reacted to this shift as another attempt to slight Negro children. Nevertheless, it must be recognized that the Board of Education had no alternative in its effort to meet the most pressing inequity—namely, the overcrowding of Negro schools. Under the transfer arrangement, 3100 of the 6000 Negro students attending school part time can benefit by full-day participation.

Invoking truant laws, as has been suggested, may serve to get children back in school, but it will not heal the breach. A great deal of the bitterness might be resolved, it seems to us, if the Board of Education were to sit down with representatives of the parents involved and try to work out an acceptable solution. Possibly nothing better than the present expedient could be evolved, but if the matter were made a joint responsibility, that might serve to lessen materially the resentment over what the parents believe to be a dictatorial step by the Board of Education.

Ring Around A Rouble

The "Voice of America," which, as everybody knows, is actually the voice of the Department of State and its solitary vehicle of counterpropaganda in Europe, has scooped and startled all the newspapers of the world with the story of a buyers' panic in Soviet Russia. The story is that rumors of an impending devaluation of the rouble have precipitated a run on shops and savings banks in all the Russian cities. Everywhere, it seems, shelves have been stripped bare by purchasers eager to convert currency into any kind of durable goods, such as furs, jewelry, expensive books and Chinese vases. In Moscow the famous Mostorg, the government department store, and all its branches are said to have been closed, ostensibly for "repairs."

Several mysteries in connection with this story need, it seems to us, to be cleared up. One is why all the stores were not closed at the first symptoms of the buyers' panic. If a tenth of what we have heard about the vigilance and efficiency of the Soviet secret police is credible, it would have been no great trouble to clear the premises and to disperse the customers. It is conceivable, of course, to those who know something of the ways of bureaucracy, that nobody could be found with courage enough to give the order, and that very high-ups were too much preoccupied with their cold war to be aware of the panic. But this would indicate that the rumors about the devaluation of the rouble were unfounded.

Such devaluations to be sure are easily possible in any completely controlled economy, and they are certainly nothing new in Russia. Usually, however, they have been put into effect without any warning, and great precautions have been taken to prevent information from leaking out in advance. In the price decree of September, 1946, for example, the purchasing value of the rouble was arbitrarily cut in half overnight. But if the government were planning to move in an opposite direction, that is to increase the value of the rouble, the rumors become comprehensible, since it would be to the advantage of the government to call in as many of them as possible in advance of the decree.

There remains another possibility. Rumormongering is a well-tested tactic of propaganda which the Communists have exploited with considerable skill. Is it possible, then, that our own propaganda strategists have resolved to wage a little war of nerves on their own account? Before attempting to answer, we had better wait to see what else may develop in connection with this Russian buyers' panic. Meanwhile we may be assured that in an age of controlled economies and controlled news no story is improbable merely because it is fantastic.

Last Throw Of The Dice

In France the clock moves swiftly to the hour of decision. Both the Schuman government and the Communists have set out upon courses from which retreat is impossible. The cabinet is proceeding with its program of removing the workers from the power of Communist leaders and terrorists by calling them into the armed services, and the army is taking possession of the centers which would be strategically important in the event of general civil war. It has asked for and obtained from the Assembly emergency laws providing rigorous penalties for revolutionary agitation and sabotage. At the same time, the Communists, having pretty well exhausted their bag of tricks, have apparently determined on the ultimate gamble. They have called, almost in as many words, for open insurrection.

Actually, a revolutionary situation has existed in France since Monday when M. Raoul Calas, a Communist deputy, took the tribune of the Assembly to propose that the army refuse to obey the orders of the Schuman government. The presiding officer, M. Herriot, declared that this was an outright incitement to mutiny and called upon the deputies for a decree of suspension against M. Calas. The decree was immediately voted; whereupon the other Communists, evidently by prearrangement, crowded about M. Calas, who had refused to vacate the tribune.

Thus M. Herriot was obliged to decide whether to call upon the Republican Guard to enforce the decree. He decided instead to adjourn the Assembly. All save the Communist deputies then left the Chamber. The Communists remained in complete possession throughout the night. Meanwhile 50 deputies of the right and center appealed to Herriot for action. In the morning the Assembly reconvened. A detail of about 200 Republican Guardsmen had now surrounded the building, others were posted on the stairways and in foyers. An officer of the Guard followed by three soldiers entered the Chamber with the order for M. Calas' ejection. Again the Communists protested noisily. M. Calas said he would not leave except by force; M. Thorez, who had just returned from Moscow and presumably had his orders, shouted that this would be the signal for open revolt throughout the country. Nevertheless, the Guardsmen managed to lead M. Calas from the Chamber without violence, and the Communist deputies followed him to the street, singing the Marseillaise.

This melodramatic incident was perhaps suggestive of various episodes of the First Revolution; but when Herriot and the majority left the Assembly there was no armed mob waiting to drive them back as Herault-de-Sechelles and his colleagues were driven back into the convention in 1792. It was plain, even to the Communists themselves, that they had lost most of the popular following they formerly had been able to command. It was also apparent that the government was getting a considerable degree of support, even from members of Communist-controlled labor unions, in its fairly successful efforts to combat the epidemic of strikes which have paralyzed Paris, and to some extent the whole country. The Parisian police had seized the powerhouses, making it possible for the Metro to resume operations; railway employes were returning to work in large numbers.

This improvement, however, is merely temporary, for the Communists still have the key industry, coal mining, in partial control. Unless the miners can be got back to work, much of the power supply will soon be cut off again for lack of fuel. The tempo of violence and disorder and sabotage is being increased everywhere. Near Arras a passenger train was wrecked and 20 persons reported killed. In some of the coal mining districts of northern France, strikers are said to have fired upon the troops, evidently in the hope of drawing fire in return and thereby provoking an incident that might begin the civil war. All the same, it is evident that the new hardships created by the disorders, falling inevitably upon the poorest sections of the population, are increasing the bitterness against the Communist leaders. As the government goes ahead with its plans for calling more and more reservists to the colors, it becomes clear that the last hope of the Communists is the possibility of mutiny and civil war. The race between Russia's effort to wreck western Europe's economy and our effort to save it has, in other words, gone into a furious and perhaps final lap.

Austrian Provision

The Senate has made an exception to American on-the-spot supervision of interim aid in the case of Austria which deserves the support of the House. The exception is not intended to dispense with an insurance that there shall be a proper dispensation of supplies. The object of it has a far more significant purpose—viz, not to do anything which might bring about the partition of Austria. It was for this reason that the Senate inserted in the interim aid bill a provision which forgoes American observation in return for certification from our high commissioner in Vienna that supplies are being honestly distributed.

The difficulty in Austria is that the Russians will not allow our relief observers to enter the Soviet zone in Austria. But, if, in consequence, we were to prevent American supplies from entering the Soviet zone, we might incur the charge that we were fomenting a breakup of Austria. Indeed, the Soviet might take advantage of this denial by itself denying entry into the other zones of foodstuffs produced in the Austrian area under its control. This would be a serious matter for Austria. Out of the Soviet zone come grains, potatoes and sugar for outside Austria. The Soviet could easily justify any such action by charging that by withholding supplies our Government would be violating the four-power understanding to let the Austrian government pool imports and home-grown food in the interests of a uniform rationing system.

In the present situation of Austria nothing is more vital than to maintain the integrity of the government's administrative mechanism pending liberation. A very lively fear is expressed in Austria lest a too rigid application of the supervision clause split the country into two economic units. The Austrians, as well as the high commissioner, are satisfied that supplies are fairly distributed. Their assurance comes from actual inspection of conditions in the Soviet zone. It is to be hoped that the House, along with the Senate, will be content with the certification of our high commissioner, and allow our supplies of meat, fats, oils and peas to flow into the Austrian government's pool, and be distributed through the general rationing system.

Taft Program

We are in complete accord with the ultimate objectives of Senator Taft's eight-point program to combat inflation. If those objectives could be attained immediately, there would be no need to consider imposition of more positive curbs on prices of essential articles or rationing of scarce goods. In fact, controls of the latter type are, as Mr. Marriner Eccles said last week, "in the category of curbs rather than cures." Nevertheless, the country needs curbs on inflation in order to prevent conditions going from bad to worse and until such time as an ultimate cure of inflation can be effected.

A good many of Mr. Taft's suggestions for conquering high living costs are long-range, time-consuming cures that would do little or nothing to hold the inflation disease in check while the cure was being attempted. For instance, he urges a campaign to increase productivity per man and to make further wage increases conditional on a "more complete day's work." Yet he must know that at the present time the country is checked by industrial bottlenecks and shortages of certain food supplies that are causing prices to zoom. In case of foodstuffs we can't count on increased production to solve our price problem. The steel industry, the chief industrial bottleneck, is also confronted with conditions that make impossible an immediate increase in output sufficient to satisfy demand. As for the wage program, Mr. Taft is simply laying down a formula that everyone knows will be ignored in practice. For the more living costs are inflated, the more irresistible becomes the pressure to raise wages, regardless of the worker's productive output.

The plan for cutting Government expenses and reducing taxes is again a long-range program. For the present it is more important to maintain taxes at high levels as a means of reducing excess consumer purchasing power than it is to reduce taxes in the belief that production will be stimulated. Eventually that will undoubtedly be the case, but not in the midst of a boom, with industries already working at capacity and employment at ultra-high levels.

In regard to the European aid program Mr. Taft is suspiciously vague. He evidently favors more rigid restrictions on exports than contemplated under the Marshall Plan and calls for a tightening of export restrictions to countries outside western Europe as well. Of course, the less we export, the less will be the pressure on our domestic price level of an excess of exports over imports. But if the Marshall Plan is to be effective, it is obvious that we cannot escape those pressures, and that they will cost us heavily unless we resort to protective domestic curbs of various sorts. Senator Taft's approval of plans to restrain the increase of bank credit and impose limits on consumer credits are sound enough. But effective restraints on increases in bank credits would entail a type of curb that the Senator would doubtless reject, as, for instance, the Eccles plan.

We also approve of the Senator's proposed campaign to discourage spending and encourage saving. But, as we know perfectly well from our wartime experience, while such campaigns may help, they do not prevent prices getting out of hand when the money supply expands faster than the volume of goods. In brief, the country is faced with conditions that call for emergency measures to take the place temporarily of basic corrective measures that are not immediately applicable.

Italian Novelty

The Italian government has a novel plan for boosting British coal production and getting some part of the increased output for Italian use. The proposal is to give 11,000 British miners and their wives a 12 days' holiday on the Italian Riviera or the Italian lakes for every half million tons of coal exported to Italy. The expenses of these jaunts would be met by the Italians out of the savings resulting from purchases of British instead of American coal.

The vision of British miners vacationing under blue and alien skies as a reward for work well done is quite alluring. But, like so many idyllic visions, its beauties dim on close inspection. We hope the day may come when the workers of the world will have both the time and the surplus income for journeying to strange places. But we greatly doubt whether the Italian proposal of mass vacations at government expense is either suited to the times or consistent with those principles of nondiscriminatory trade which are the professed objectives of the world's chief trading nations.

We strongly suspect, too, that British trade union heads will oppose an invidious incentive scheme of this kind that would benefit only a limited number of miners in high production areas. It is our guess, therefore, that British miners, as well as workers in other industries, will be forced by circumstances to stay close to home for a long time to come. The most arresting feature of the Italian offer is its recognition of the tremendous importance of coal and mine workers in postwar Europe.

Loyalty And Conformity

In reference to your article of November 29, "Veteran With Hand Missing Won't Sign Loyalty Statement." When the names of free men, who do not have to sign loyalty pledges, or visit Freedom Trains, or shout "Red, Red," in order to obtain or preserve freedom, are recorded, to them should be added the name of Walter E. Davis. The un-American, undemocratic nature of a loyalty check on such men is too obvious to a free people. "Witch hunts" have reached a new low. Americanism has been dragged in disgrace through the streets of the world by those who would compel conformity—but to what?

Walter Davis deserves every cent our country pays him for disability. His is no "brass" disability. He carries a lifetime reminder of loyalty through suffering and sacrifice. Maybe he knows that is the only way to preserve freedom and liberty. Again he fights a real enemy of democracy. He may have to pay with his job this time. Economic security, marriage and a home do not mean much to men like Walter Davis if it means selling their "birthright" of freedom in order to have them.

May Washington soon realize that there is more to democratic Americanism than signing pledges and crying "Red, Red" along with the pack, as there is more to religion than joining a church and crying "Lord, Lord," when such religious conformity is popular.

I'd like to point out the difference between a citizen's right to hold any belief he chooses and his lack of right to commit treasonable acts. Membership in the Communist Party presupposes allegiance to Russia rather than to the United States, toward what possible results the sabotage and near civil war in France and Italy give compelling evidence.

The veteran would not object to pledging allegiance to the American flag; in fact, he pledged it at risk of life and limb in the last war. The non-Communist affidavit is just a pledge of nonallegiance to any foreign power.

Gen. Le Clerc

I was rather surprised at the brief attention given General Le Clerc in The Washington Post of November 29. His was one of the most exciting and eventful of war careers, and it has always seemed to me that he was the most brilliant of French war commanders. The story of the Fezzan campaigns has never been fully told in this country—the sortie against Kufra in 1941, the raids in lower Libya in 1942, and the conquest of the area in 1943—but some day a historical novelist will find in them grist for his mill.

The 45-day expedition from Fort Lamy to Tripoli is a case in point. Everything had to be carried along for that trip over the desert and the barren lands: food, ammunition, gasoline, water, medical supplies. There was food for 30 days and gasoline for 500 miles. Obviously, if these stores were to be supplemented, Italian and German stores must be captured in the district. They were, but this meant fighting.

The wounded rode in trucks. One truck had been fitted out by the doctors as a portable operating room. The medical problems were many. Heat by day (only tarpaulins protected the wounded against the Sahara sun) and freezing cold at night made life miserable for the sick. Water could not be spared for bathing, and wounds and amputations were washed with gasoline. If eventually someone writes the story, I hope that proper tribute will be paid to Major Monfort and his nine colonial physicians from the Tchad who, medically, brought the wounded men through. Some 87 per cent of the wounded recovered.

But most of the credit must go to the thin, austere Le Clerc, always in the forefront of battle but never seen without his maps and his walking stick. The Associated Press report is in error on two points. Le Clerc's real name was not Mauteclocque but Hauteclocque. (This was probably a typographical error.) He did not enter Normandy with General Bradley. The first elements of the French Second Armored did not land in Normandy until 3 a. m., on August 1, 1944.

I know because I crossed the Channel with the French Second Armored and flew back, two days later, to England to write a pamphlet, La Deuxieme Division Blindee Entre Dans La Bataille, which ran to 300,000 copies and was distributed over France.

Kem Amendment

What is the purpose of the amendment offered to the Senate interim-aid bill by Senator Kem of Missouri, under the terms of which specific notification would have to be made to all recipients of interim aid that what they were getting was furnished "without charge" by the United States in order to alleviate their sufferings?

This amendment passed the Senate: it is to be hoped that it will not pass in conference. It appears to be another, and singularly inept and cheap, example of the lofty attitude some Americans are taking, to the effect that they are granting European aid out of the goodness of their hearts, and that the Europeans had better be grateful for it or they won't get any more. I should imagine it would be considered by those receiving the aid rather as an unnecessary rubbing of salt into their wounds.

I wonder whether Senator Kem, and those Senators who voted for this amendment, would give food and money to a starving family in the United States, and carefully mark every item "Furnished without charge by . . .". If we are going to furnish interim aid without cost to people whose ruin is desperate and surely only partially to be blamed on themselves, then let us at least refrain from insulting them while we do it.

Stassen On Price Control

In a recent speech, former Governor Stassen charged President Truman with the responsibility for the serious inflation of the last 18 months. Mr. Stassen stated that the bill which Congress submitted to the President in June, 1946, offered an effective and practical means of modifying our wartime controls, while at the same time keeping inflationary pressures in check until production could get rolling.

Mr. Stassen's statement made me wonder if he had had an opportunity personally to study the bill which he feels that President Truman could have signed. If he did read it carefully it is quite possible, of course, that he did not fully understand its implications. The only other explanation is that Mr. Stassen's statement was purely a political one.

The bill, which arrived on the President's desk just 24 hours before the June 30 deadline, was the result of four months of intensive lobbying and log rolling in the Seventy-ninth Congress.

This bill would have resulted in the elimination of price controls on wheat, corn, petroleum products and other key items, on the theory that they were in "adequate" supply. It would have made it legally impossible to put price controls on cotton. If there was any question at the time of what these particular amendments would mean in the way of higher prices, it has been settled by the record of the last 18 months. Grain prices in the "free market," which these amendments called for, have already doubled. Meat at retail is up 80 per cent. Butter, cheese, milk, chicken, bread and other items which are dependent upon grain, have increased very substantially.

But these decontrol amendments were only part of the story. The bill which the President vetoed on June 30, 1946, would have restored all distributive profit margins to the levels of 1941. These margins were the highest in our history—in many instances, substantially higher than those of today. It would have eliminated, to all intents and purposes, all effective controls over the prices of apparel. This bill would have established an extraordinarily complicated formula for the pricing of most consumer goods, which most experts agree was impossible to administer and which, at best, could have resulted only in endless delays and substantially higher prices.

It was the opinion of most experts who had had an opportunity to study the inflationary problem at firsthand that this bill would have been worse than no bill at all. It could not have possibly curbed the inflationary pressures which have created such havoc in the last 18 months. Even worse than that, it would have put the Government in the impossible position of administering a piece of legislation which was clearly unfair to large segments of our economy. Respect for Government efforts in this field would have vanished.

The President pointed out the serious defects of this bill in his veto message and asked Congress to pass a simple resolution extending OPA to July 20 in order to allow time to work out a satisfactory measure. The House accepted his request, but the Senate refused. As a result, in four weeks' time, average prices rose higher than in the previous three years.

The bill which Congress finally put on the President's desk in late July was a very mild improvement on the first. As the President pointed out at the time, there was only a limited hope that it would help even to slow down the rise in prices. This hope went out the window with the carefully organized "meat strike" of September, 1946.

When President Truman put an end to OPA in November, 1946, he was, in reality, burying a corpse from which life had departed, for all intents and purposes, several months before.

The Republican members of Congress voted 9 to 1 to eliminate effective price controls in June, 1946. At the time, they were mighty proud of it. In fact, in the campaign of 1946, with few exceptions, they ran on the platform, "Elect me to Congress and I will see that the production of automobiles, housing and other items is sharply increased and that the prices you pay are reasonable."

The American people have learned an expensive lesson in the last 12 months. Probably that is why Mr. Stassen and other members of the Republican Party, who were taking such a delight a year ago in the fact that it was the Republicans who had rid the country of the OPA bureaucrats, are now trying to confuse the record.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Supreme Riddle

SASABE, Ariz.—In the memory of men who are by no means ancient, this country on the Mexican border was the old West, wild and open and beyond the law. The dude was not an industry but an occasional daring adventurer certain to go native if he stayed long enough.

While that era is now history, the country still is wild and open. You ride toward the mountains that thrust up like spires out of the vast emptiness of the land. To the Easterner from the city, the sky has an infinite look. In the thin air the sun is brighter and sharper, and when the cloud shadows fall across the mountains, they seem, to recede into unknowable distance, fold upon fold.

It is part of the American experience, this response to space—to the lostness and loneliness of it. It is one reason why it is difficult to adopt the idea of one world and one people who must survive together or go down together.

The implacable hatreds of Europe, the spreading chaos and disintegration, seem a long way off. Washington and the bitterness of partisan politics are a remote echo.

What we have "learned" is still only on the surface of the mind. I mean, of course, the lesson of August 6, 1945, when a small atomic bomb destroyed the Japanese city of Hiroshima.

SINCE THAT date, millions of words have been written and spoken about the destructive power of atomic fission. Responsible scientists have shown how large areas of the earth would be made uninhabitable in an atomic war. The annihilation of the human species—of all life—is possible.

Yet in the affairs of men there is a greater power. It is habit. Such is the power of habit that people everywhere go about their ordinary pursuits as though the new force had not been unleashed.

Going through the country and talking to all sorts of people, I have been struck with the way in which the new knowledge has been ignored or relegated to an obscure corner. This seems to me due not so much to a conscious desire to forget as to the fact that most of us simply are unable to take in a concept that is at once so vast and so utterly beyond the scope of experience. The bow and arrow is a deadly weapon. So is an automatic revolver. But in spite of the millions of words that have been written, the atomic bomb is a theoretical improbability.

Here and there in college communities, you find groups concerned with the imperative need for a world government in the face of such an absolute and final threat. These earnest, serious groups have meetings. They listen to speakers. They are eager for new recruits.

ONE SUCH organization is the World Federalists. In its national leadership it is sparked by men and women of deep conviction and power of intellect. Nevertheless it is on the outer edge. The converts spend their time talking to other converts, and the total number directly interested remains very, very small.

Often, when these groups discuss the riddle of our time, they raise the question of leadership. Somehow leadership on the national and international level should be able to show the way.

They are brought up short by a reminder that leadership cannot be effective without at least a minority which is informed and determined. The minority is still in the making, and to the World Federalist the process of winning converts must at times seem powerfully slow. There are few apostles with the patience, the persistence and the never-failing intensity of conviction of Clarence Streit, the author of Union Now.

Most of us cling to the belief that somehow we will escape, no matter what happens. The will of the individual to survive is in itself intensely individualistic.

What is more, the outward face of the world is just as it always has been. The Western sky at sunset glows with the same glory, and the stars in the desert night shine with the same clear brightness.

It is hard to believe that even here, where space and time have the limitless quality of the past, there is no promise of escape. It is the illusion of the individual—and the individual nation — standing alone that man must surrender in the atomic world.

Mandate Vs. Empire

Mr. Robert Bruskin's article in The Washington Post of November 30 about the vote of the United Nations Assembly in favor of the partitioning of Palestine contains a phrase in the next to the last paragraph that should not be allowed to stand without comment. The Washington Post's reporter wrote: "Almost unnoticed in the uproar of congratulations, cheek-kissing and back-pounding by propartitionists who filled the galleries was the loss of one more fragment of the British Empire."

The words, "one more fragment of the British Empire," are misleading, to say the least. Palestine is a mandate and therefore is not a part of the British Empire. This distinction is by no means an academic one. For if a mandate is part of the empire of the mandatory power, then trust areas are parts of the empires to which they have been entrusted. The basic concept of the trusteeship system will be destroyed if, even in a colloquial sense, mandate or trust areas are referred to as "parts of an empire." Such loose language might, for example, facilitate the continuing effort of the Union of South Africa to incorporate the trust area of Southwest Africa as a fifth province.

Transit Revenue

A Communication

RECENTLY I suggested three remedies as a solution to the present dilemma of the Capital Transit Co., namely, that it (1) reduce its expenses, (2) improve its service and (3) reduce fares to the value of the service rendered. I should have added a fourth remedy, that CTC should tap new or undeveloped sources of revenue.

This is perhaps what CTC is trying to do by petitioning the Maryland Public Utilities Commission for an increase in fares in the suburbs. If so, the company's approach is entirely wrong. An increase in fares in the Maryland suburbs will not result in greater revenue. More likely, it will drive the public to more extensive use of private motor vehicles.

DURING the war years and since then, owners of private cars have learned the value of group riding. While the cost of operating a car is five or six cents per mile, the burden is much lower when riding is shared. If five or six people go to work in one vehicle, the cost per person is only one cent per mile. Assuming that the average distance which the suburbanite must travel is 10 miles, of which only three miles are beyond the District line, the cost to each person in a private vehicle is only 10 cents per ride, as compared with 20 cents on CTC vehicles, if the increased rates are granted.

In addition, people traveling in private vehicles save time. They travel about 20 miles per hour, as compared with 10 to 12 miles per hour on streetcars or buses. They enjoy still other advantages best summarized in the Parking Manual of the AAA (pp. 21-22) as follows:

"They can come and go when they please with no waiting for a transit vehicle, they can get into their car at their own door and may use a parking lot or garage practically at the door of their destination, they can ride seated and uncrowded, they don't have to stop for other passengers, they avoid fumes which some buses emit, they can more nearly govern temperature and ventilation to suit themselves, they can choose their own routes, packages can be much more conveniently handled, they can make their own choice as to traveling companions, they don't have to transfer or wait in unfavorable weather, they can avoid jostling and other irritating actions or talk of others, they feel more independent, they find self-expression in driving their own car, they believe they are more esteemed by others when they drive, they can show kindliness and build friendships through taking others downtown, after work they can go places to which it would be difficult or time-consuming to go by public transportation or from which later it would be inconvenient to go home by transit lines, they use their car during the business day, they enjoy driving."

THE SHIFTING of passengers from public to private transportation should be of great concern to CTC, even if the question were considered only from the standpoint of revenue. Each passenger in a private vehicle will mean a loss of $2 per week; each car-sharing group will mean a loss of $10 per week or $500 per year. The increase in fares will never make up for this loss.

But there are other consequences which should concern CTC, even as they concern the general public and the business establishments in the District of Columbia. Greater use of private cars by people in the suburbs, working or shopping in the District, means greater traffic congestion, slowing down the movement of vehicles, including those used for public transportation, and an added burden on the already overtaxed parking facilities. It means that there will be more street parking, for it is a well known fact that persons desiring to park all day will walk farther from free or low cost space.

An increase in fares is not a solution. On the contrary, the solution lies in the elimination of extra fares for transportation to and from the Maryland suburbs and in the establishment of a uniform fare over the entire CTC system.

THE POLITICAL line dividing the District from Maryland is of no significance in the operation of the CTC system. In riding over the system between two points in the different political jurisdictions, the passengers are in no different position from those riding between two points in the same jurisdiction, especially since the latter distance may be greater than the former. There should be no discrimination. The charging of extra fares is unjust, because CTC is taking advantage of an imaginary line having no relation to its operations, revenues and expenses. There is no more reason for regarding the operations in Maryland separate and apart from the District than there is to regard the operations in Anacostia, Brookland, Sixteenth Street Heights, Wesley Heights or Georgetown as being separate and apart from the operations in and about the Federal Triangle.

That this is so has been demonstrated with transportation to and from the Pentagon in Virginia. When these operations were about to begin I (then chairman of the PUC) took the position that transportation to the Pentagon should not carry any extra fares, but should in all respects be an integral part of the entire CTC system. Immediately, CTC ran to the ICC for "protective" jurisdiction, and filed a tariff for five cents per ride between the Pentagon and a specified point in the District.

As was to be expected, the additional five-cent fare created personnel problems which interfered with the war effort. The Secretaries of War, Navy and Commerce then requested the ICC to determine and fix the proper rates. The ICC treated the operations to the Pentagon as part of the entire CTC system and held that there should be no differential in rates. The Supreme Court sustained this ruling.

THE PEOPLE in Maryland, within the CTC system, are in no different position. That the determination of the proper fares lies with a State rather than a Federal commission does not obliterate the fact that these people participate in the support of the entire system, not merely of the portions of lines extending into Maryland. It is their right to receive nondiscriminatory service, and it is the duty of CTC to give them such service.

Entirely apart from this duty, however, but only from the standpoint of future revenue, CTC should eliminate the extra fares. Here is a source of revenue that had hardly been tapped. With the elimination of the extra fares, public transportation between the suburbs and the District is bound to increase. This is exactly what happened on the crosstown (H2) line which connected isolated sections within the District itself. An increase in public transportation between the suburbs and the District will require operation of streetcars and buses at more frequent intervals. This in turn will stimulate more frequent use of CTC facilities. In addition, the establishment and maintenance of cheap transportation in the suburbs will expand and develop the suburbs with resulting revenue to CTC from intrasuburban and even intersuburban patronage.

Formerly Member of District Public Utilities Commission.

Iran Cabinet Resigns In Dispute With Premier

Tehran, Iran, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—The cabinet resigned tonight in a dispute with Premier Ahmad Qavam es Sultaneh over domestic policies and martial law measures were taken immediately.

The premier refused to resign himself unless the Majlis (parliament reverses the vote of confidence it gave him last month. His popularity has waned rapidly because of his failure to implement reform measures but all poltical parties have supported his foreign policy.

Irish Bomb Theater Showing Wedding Film

Dublin, Eire, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—A small bomb exploded early today in an empty movie house on Dublin's famous O'Connell st. where a film of the wedding of Britain's Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip is being shown.

The front of the cinema, the Carlton, was damaged by the explosion. Similar incidents have occurred previously when Dublin cinemas showed films of British royalty.

Pork Chops And The Marshall Plan

THE OFFICIAL Administration version of the Marshall Plan is now being whipped into final shape. According to present intentions, it will be submitted to Congress as soon as the interim aid program has been passed. For some weeks, in an atmosphere of considerable confusion, a number of committees composed of representatives of the interested Government departments have been busily combing over the 16-nation Paris report, in an attempt to revise it in terms of American availabilities. Other committees have been attempting to draw up a blueprint of the organization which is to be charged with administering the program. President Truman will shortly unveil the results of all this effort.

There may be last-minute changes, but the chances now are that the President will call for a large, separate Government agency, to be headed by a single administrator directly responsible only to the President. This agency would be charged only with the foreign aspects of the program—the allocation and administration of the dollars and goods for the European countries. The new agency would be buttoned into the rest of the Government by a complicated committee system.

One committee, on which the State Department would be represented, would be responsible for coordinating the work of the agency with American foreign policy. Other committes, with representatives of the Commerce, Treasury and Agriculture Departments, would deal with the impact of the program on the domestic economy. The idea of a board of directors to work with the Administration has been tentatively discarded as unworkable.

THE CUMBERSOME committee system envisaged in this plan has in the past tended to bring in its train a rich crop of rows and jurisdictional disputes, and an elephantine slowness of action. The plan may be greatly revised before it is submitted to Congress. And under any circumstances Congress is pretty certain to treat it with scant respect, since Congress is clearly determined to make up its own mind on how the program is to be administered.

More interesting than the official Administration version of how the foreign aid program is to be organized is the fact that the great majority of the technicians who have been studying the European needs have reached much the same disturbing conclusions. First, they doubt that the enormous job of transforming western Europe into a going concern can be accomplished in a short four years. Some estimates of the time actually required are as high as 10 years. Second, they are privately convinced that the official figures for the over-all amount required—between 16 and 20 billion dollars—just will not do the job. The statistics seem to many of these technicians to indicate that the cost to this country of an economically and politically healthy Europe may come in the end to not much less than 30 billion dollars.

That is where the second great issue which now confronts the Congress, the price issue, bears so heavily on the European Recovery Program. For the political pressure inherent in the price issue is wholly in the direction of a sharp reduction in whatever sum the Administration asks for the European program. And that pressure is very great indeed. As one of the Democratic Party's shrewder panjandrums has remarked, "Politics today is the price of pork chops—and nothing else."

THAT EXPLAINS why in Democratic political circles these days there is an atmosphere of slightly nervous jubilation, in marked contrast to the aura of the tomb which prevailed only a year ago. For the Democratic strategists are pretty confident that, whether or not that was his intention, the President's stand on the price issue has neatly draped the Republicans over a barrel. There are many Republicans who dolefully agree.

The danger—and it is a very real danger—is that the Republicans will succumb to the temptation to retaliate by cutting the European Recovery Program to shreds. Obviously the most immediately painless way to prevent $5 wheat is to stop sending wheat to Europe. No doubt it was this danger which was present in the minds of such presidential advisers as Secretaries Harriman and Forrestal when they urged him not to go the whole way for rationing and price control.

The sentiment in favor of a bargain basement Marshall Plan has been clearly demonstrated on Capitol Hill in the last few days. In view of the mounting pressure of the price issue, it would be miraculous if this sentiment did not exist. Yet the responsible leaders on both sides of the aisle, and especially Senator Arthur Vandenberg and Representative Charles A. Eaton, are fortunately fully convinced that it is impossible to buy peace at cut rates. The betting now seems to be that, despite the fierce political pressure provided by high prices, their views will prevail.

U. S. Opens Contempt Case Against 10 Hollywood Figures

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Government yesterday opened its grand jury presentation of contempt of Congress charges against 10 high-salaried Hollywood writers and directors identified in evidence before the House Committee on Un-American Activities as card-carrying members of the Communist Party.

Charges against the 10, whose salaries ranged around $100,000 a year, stemmed from their refusal to answer committee questions as to whether or not they were members of the Communist Party.

The writers also refused to say whether or not they were members of the Screen Writers Guild, although Emmett Lavery, guild president, told the committee he was proud of his union membership, he was a Communist and added that his union was not Communist-dominated.

Lavery, a lawyer, said that in responding to committee questions or in volunteering information, he was not passing upon whether or not the committee had the right to ask such questions.

The 10 all contended that the committee was violating their constitutional rights in asking about their union and political affiliation.

In addition, most of the 10 yelled and shouted with varying degrees of fury that the committee hearings were "the beginning of Nazi concentration camps," "Hitlerism" "disruption" "intimidation" "censorship" etc., etc.

Motion picture producers have since barred all 10 from their pay rolls.

Presentation of evidence to the grand jury was largely a technical matter since the whole evidence on the contempt of Congress charges is contained in the stenographic transcript of the hearings.

It is believed that the grand jury yesterday heard the case against eight of those involved and will hear the evidence against two more today.

District Attorney George Morris Fay was assisted in presenting the case to the jury by Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz, who has had considerable experience with this type of case.

Hitz successfully handled the contempt case against Gerhard Eisler, described by the FBI as a top international Communist agent in the United States. Eisler was convicted by a District Court jury and has appealed to the United States Court of Appeals.

Hitz also handled the successful prosecution of Benjamin Fields, who was convicted of contempt of Congress in connection with a surplus property investigation.

Chief attorney for the 10 is Robert Kenny, president of the National Lawyers Guild, cited by Attorney General Francis Biddle as a Communist front.

The National Lawyers Guild is, however, not on the list of organizations which Attorney General Tom C. Clark yesterday referred to President Truman's loyalty review board as subversive.

The Justice Department declined to answer questions as to whether the omission meant that Clark had reversed the Biddle decision.

A spokesman first said a reporter would have to use his own judgment to determine that.

Informed that the query was directed at getting a fact about the policy of the Department of Justice of the United States, rather than indulging in a reportorial guessing game, the spokesman then pointed out that Clark had said the names of other organizations would be given to the loyalty board when investigations were completed.

The 10 whom the Government is charging with contempt of Congress, an offense punishable upon conviction by maximum sentences of a year in jail and a $1000 fine are:

The committee put into its records not only the Communist party cards, numbers and dates of membership, but also the Communist front affiliations of the 10.

Cole and Trumbo were recently dismissed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Samuel Goldwyn had previously been one of the loudest critics of the committee headed by Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.).

Lardner was dismissed by Twentieth Century Fox, and RKO dismissed Scott and Director Dmytryk.

Maltz, Ornitz, Lawson, Bessie and Biberman were not under contract but their reemployment has been banned by the producers.

First witnesses when the committee started last spring to lay the groundwork for its movie hearings was FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, who termed Communists "red Fascists."

"The Communist Party is content and highly pleased if it is possible to have inserted in a picture a line, a scene, a sequence conveying the Communist lesson, and more particularly if they can keep out anti-Communist lessons," Hoover told the House committee.

U. S. Note to Reds Protests Denying Wives Exit Visas

The State Department made public yesterday a note sent to Russia six months ago saying Moscow's continued refusal to permit the departure from the Soviet Union of more than 250 wives of American citizens was "incomprehensible."

Russia was urged to permit this group to leave and also persons claiming American citizenship who had been "forcibly removed" to the Soviet Union from various countries of eastern Europe.

Of the latter group, whose number was not estimated, the note said:

"All efforts of the American Embassy in Moscow to obtain permission to interview these people with a view of establishing their American citizenship and arranging for their return to the United States have been fruitless."

Note Sent Last May

The note was sent to the Soviets last May 28 and was signed by Dean Acheson, then Undersecretary of State. It was published because of a court action in the New York Supreme Court by Hamportzoon Choolokian, seeking custody of three minor children before emigrating to the Soviet Union.

It was in reply to a Soviet note which asked that the State Department give assistance to Armenians in the United States who desired to return to their "mother land" by permitting them to leave, export their property, and give up their American citizenship.

The reply said:

"American citizens, or alien residents of the United States except the German or Japanese nationals who desire to emigrate to the Soviet Union are freely permitted to do so.

U. S. Policy Cited

"No exit visas are required, and such emigrants are at liberty to take their personal property with them. American citizens may voluntarily relinquish their American citizenship by making a formal declaration of allegiance to a foreign country in accordance with the laws thereof."

Contrasting this policy with that of the Soviet Union, the note said that Russia has refused to permit the departure of the wives of Americans and the group claiming United States citizenship.

Francis B. Stevens, deputy director of the department's Division of Eastern European Affairs, told reporters that in recent months "very little progress" has been made in the negotiations to obtain exit visas for the wives, but there has been a "small trickle of departures."

The Gallup Poll

Most Americans Would Outlaw 'Disloyal' Communist Party

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 4.—Although America by tradition is a land which freely tolerates all sorts of minority political parties expressing widely varied points of view, the majority of Americans seem to regard the Communist Party as a distinctly different kind of thing.

Voters polled by the Institute indicate their belief that the Communist Party is not a truly American party but one whose loyalty is to a foreign power—Russia. To that extent it is regarded by the majority as a subversive party. Largely for that reason the majority polled by the Institute say they think membership in the party ought to be outlawed.

These views on the status of the American Communist Party are revealed in coast-to-coast interviewing on several questions, as follows:

In general, do you think most American citizens who belong to the Communist Party in this country are loyal to America or to Russia?

The vote:

Loyal to U. S.	19%
Loyal to Russia	59
No opinion	22

Do you think membership in the Communist Party in this country should be forbidden by law?

Yes	62%
No	23
No opinion	15

The question of whether it would be wise policy to try to suppress the Communist Party has often been debated. Some observers have contended that this would simply drive the Communists underground and make martyrs of them.

It is interesting to note that among American voters with a college education there is considerably less sentiment in favor of suppressing the party than there is among voters who have only gone through grade school or high school. There is more anti-Communist-Party sentiment, too, among manual workers and farmers than among professional and business people. The differences are brought out in the following table:

	Favor outlawing party	Opposed	No opin.
By education
College	46%	48%	6%
High school	63	25	12
Grade or no school	66	15	19
By occupation
Prof. & bus.	56	34	10
White collar	57	29	14
Farmers	69	18	13
Manual workers	66	17	17

The above results show that among the less educated and the so-called "proletariat" or working class, antipathy towards the Communist Party is greater than among the business class. Russian leaders have tried to make it appear that anti-Russian and anti-Communist sentiment here is confined mainly to "Wall Street interests" and "reactionary capitalists." But the poll results quoted above would indicate that the workingman and the farmer are Russia's most severe critics, not the capitalists or the petit bourgeoise.

The widespread belief current today that American Communists are directly under the thumb of Moscow is shown in another of the questions put in today's poll.

Yes	62%
No	13
No opinion	25

Senate Gets Inter-American Defense Pact

President Truman submitted the Inter-American Defense Treaty to the Senate yesterday and asked for its approval.

The pact, signed September 2 in Rio de Janeiro, pledges 19 nations of the Western Hemisphere to act jointly against any aggression in the hemisphere's security zone, extending from pole to pole.

"The principles, purposes and provisions of the treaty have my complete and whole-hearted approval, and I am happy to recommend the treaty to the favorable consideration of the Senate," Mr. Truman said in a brief message.

Move by Vandenberg

Mr. Truman acted three days after Chairman Vandenberg (R., Mich.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called for immediate submission of the pact for consideration.

Vandenberg, one of the authors of the treaty, said it should be given speedy approval as a demonstration of the "tremendous solidarity" of the North and South American nations.

The document must be ratified by the legislative bodies of the 19 republics. They are:

Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Peru, El Salvador, Panama, Paraguay, Venezuela, Chile, Honduras, Cuba, Bolivia, Colombia, Mexico, Haiti, Uruguay, Argentina, Brazil and the United States.

Other hemisphere nations, including Canada, will be permitted to sign later if they desire.

The treaty provides that:

An armed attack against any of the signing nations is considered an attack against all of them; collective military defense measures will be taken in the event of any armed attack within the hemisphere's security zone; joint consultations will be held for defense of an American nation attacked outside the zone; the nations jointly will issue a cease fire order in the event of hostilities between two American States.

Norfolk Air Station Staff Gets Long Holiday

The holiday will be given employes of the assembly, repair and inspection departments who have the requisite annual leave.

'Supersonic Illness' Affecting Jet Pilots

Chicago, Dec. 4 (AP).—Some British pilots of jet planes have complained of a mysterious illness, and government and industry experts are investigating the possibility of "supersonic sickness" connected with jet engines, the Journal of the American Medical Association reported tonight.

The journal also mentioned a gines, who suffered from ear trouble, lending suspicion that vibration and sounds inaudible to the human ear may have an effect on persons around such engines.

RFC Explains Destruction Of Records

By The Associated Press

A congressional hearing into the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's multi-billion-dollar wartime operations was thrown into an uproar yesterday when Representative Bender (R., Ohio) suddenly demanded:

"What's this I hear about the wholesale destruction of RFC records?"

Two high RFC officels, waiting to testify, jumped up to deny that any RFC files were being destroyed which might be needed in the investigation.

"Those files are being destroyed only after approval from the National Archives," said Harvey J. Gunderson, member of the RFC board of directors.

"And I personally initialled all papers for destruction myself," RFC Counsel James L. Doherty broke in.

Doherty testified that the destroyed documents concerned RFC loans to banks in distress back in 1932, 1933 and 1934 and said all the loans were paid back 10 years ago.

Freight Rates Argued

The flurry occurred at a hearing conducted by the House subcommittee on Federal expenditures, of which Bender is chairman.

Late in the day, a Federal accounting official asserted and RFC officials quickly denied—that the RFC's failure to demand preferential military freight rates from railroads during the war cost American taxpayers more than nine million dollars.

Theodore Herz, assistant audits director of the General Accounting Office, told the House subcommittee that this estimate was "extremely conservative."

Welford J. Massie, GAO general counsel, explained that railroads which obtained Federal land grants were required by the 1940 Transportation Act to give so-called freight rates to the Government on the shipment of materials for miliary use.

Massie said that in some cases as much as 50 per cent was saved on land-grant rates.

Confident of Result

Asked by Committee Counsel if the GAO would go into court and attempt to recover land-grant claims for the RFC, if authorized by Congress, Massie replied:

"If we had the authority, we'd feel we ought to recover wherever possible and to thefullest extent—and I would feel sanguine of the result."

But RFC Director Gunderson disagreed. He testified that the RFC had saved 24 million dollars on freight rates' by other contractual agreements" with the railroads, whereas it would have saved only eight million dollars by land-grant rates.

Chairman Bender adjourned the hearing until Tuesday with the explanation that committee members were anxious to join in the House debate on aid to Europe.

Jones Goes to Texas

One of Bender's [illegible]es told newsmen that former RFC Administrator Jesse Jones, who on Wednesday volunteered to testify before the committee, was invited to appear yesterday but sent word that he was returning to his home in Texas.

The aide quoted Jones as saying he would follow the House group's hearings "with a great deal of interest" and would return to Washington in a week or two "if he decided he should say something."

Jones headed the RFC, the world's largest financial institution, from 1932 until January, 1945.

Sewer Contract Goes To Langley Company

Manassas, Va., Dec. 4.—The Langley Construction Co. of Hampton has been awarded the contract for sewer expansion and improvement in Manassas, on a bid of $41,670.33.

The contract award by town council covers initial work on a sewer program estimated to cost $200,000.

Immunization Dec. 8

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 4.—Immunization against whooping cough and diphtheria, and vaccination against smallpox will be offered by the Stafford County Public Health Department Monday, December 8, beginning at 2 p. m., for children from 6 months to school age. Children who have received one immunization should report at this time for the second.

Havana Parley Moves for Customs Union

Havana, Dec. 4 (AP).—Latin American nations laid the groundwork today for a possible all-embracing customs union.

The Ecuadorian delegation to the United Nations Conference on Trade and Employment offered an amendment to the proposed charter for an international trade organization to authorize:

"Latin American countries, in consideration of their special position resulting from the need for economic development and their common language, origin and culture, freely to negotiate a preferential tariff system between all or some of their number, including the possible establishment of a customs union."

Ecuador also asked that the charter recognize "preferences in force or in the process of negotiation between Colombia, Ecuador, Panama and Venezuela."

Central American countries previously had asked recognition of their aspirations to a customs union, and "the possibility of a political union," from the Panama Canal north to Mexico.

Chile also proopsed that the charter exempt preferential systems by regional groups.

If approved, the amendments would sanction economic unity in Latin America similar to that provided for in the Arab League treaties.

Cuba asked recognition of "prior international commitments," probably with an eye on its own commercial treaties with the United States.

Bank Loans Here Set New High in Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Business loans by Federal Reserve member banks in Washington and the Fifth District rose to another new high during the week ended November 26, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday.

Outstanding loans increased to $203,977,000 for the 18 Washington member banks, advancing $1,674,000 over the figure for the preceding week. Real estate loan here also reached a new peak of $63,316,000, a gain of $253,000 over preceding week.

For the Fifth District as a whole, business loans aggregated $780,001,000 for a gain of $1,864,000 over the November 19 week and an upsurge of $129,634,000 over the same 1946 period. Real estate loans totaled $165,131,000, off $606,000 for the week but up $46,483,000 for the year.

Nationally, business loans of Federal Reserve banks rose to $14,257,000,000, a gain of 53 million over the preceding week. Real estate loans reached $3,380,000,000, up about 13 million.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve Board here estimated yesterday that the Nation's banks had $41,780,000,000 out on loan as of October 29, an increase of $3,410,000,000 since June 30.

Besides money on loan, the banks had $82,750,000,000 invested in Government securities, and $10,630,000,000 invested in other kinds of securities. This represented increases of 70 million and 580 million, respectively, since June 30, the board reported.

FARE BOOST: American Airlines this week requested permission of the Civil Aeronautics Board to increase its passenger fares 10 per cent, effective December 12. Its fares now average about 5 cents a mile and the increase will raise them to around 5.5 cents. At least nine other airlines have filed similar requests in recent months.

NICKEL PHONES: Behind the recent sale by Gray Manufacturing Co. of its telephone pay station business lies one of the real romances of American enterprise. One night in 1885, William Gray of Hartford, Conn., rushed out of his home to call a doctor for his dangerously ill wife. There was one telephone tucked away in a nearby factory building, but he was refused use of it. That night he determined to build and make available to everybody a system by which a person could telephone without any owner's by-your-leave. One small coin would be all the authority required. From that time until 1932, when certain basic patents were invalidated, Gray dominated the field while the pay station grew to an American institution.

Stocks Again Drift Lower On Tax Sales

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—The general directions still was downward in today's stock market although assorted favorites contested the shift with moderate success and little real weakness appeared.

Year-end tax selling again was a handicap. Accounts also were trimmed because of skepticism over possible congressional economic moves and explosive elements contained in the disturbing French and Palestine situations.

Dealings quickened at intervals after a fairly active opening and transfers of 970,000 shares were the largest since November 21. They compared with 920,000 the day before. Early losses running to a point or more were reduced in most cases in the final hour.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .2 of a point at 63.6, equalling the low since September 8 which was a bottom since June 24.

A big batch of dividends again was more or less ignored although a modest response was made by Chicago & North Western preferred, Woodward Iron, Ward Baking, Colgate-Palmolive, National Supply and Lima Hamilton.

Touching lows for 1947 were Pennsylvania, which emerged unchanged at 15¾; Pacific Telephone off 1 at 91¼, American Power & Light ½ at 7⅛, Pan American Airways ⅛ at 8⅝, Warner Bros., ¼ at 12¾, Twentieth-Century-Fox ⅛ at 22½ and Standard Brands ¼ at 23¾.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Dec. 4 (AP).—Rain and snow over a wide area of the Southwest today caused a steep downturn in wheat prices on the Board of Trade. The bread cereal lost as much as 6 cents and ended right on the bottom.

Wheat's action was not followed by other grains. Corn moved upward as demand for the cash grain remained good and shipment to market was slowed by persistent rains. Oats were steady most of the session, but slumped toward the close and ended with minor losses.

Wheat closed 3⅜ to 6 cents lower, December 3.04@3.03½; corn was ½-1¾ higher, December 2.60½@2.60; oats were ⅛-1¼ lower, December 1.25½@1.25⅜, and soybeans were 2 cents lower, March 3.84.

Practically all the Western Great Plains area, the territory in which the 1948 winter wheat crop will be made or broken, received moisture. Rains were reported as the heaviest in four months. Some of this territory obtained moisture about two weeks ago, at which time wheat was seeded.

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Cotton futures registered losses of 5 to 75 cents a bale in slow dealings today. Traders were inclined to lighten commitments in the face of Washington uncertainties regarding foreign aid and domestic price curbs. The lack of aggressive mill buying in futures and the approaching Government cotton crop report, scheduled December 8, also encouraged commission house selling.

Princess Worked in New York

Mihai'll Probably Marry In Mama-Made Romance If Communists Are Willing

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THOUGH both King Mihai of Romania and Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma deny they will marry, the chances are they will. But Mihai is in a curious position. He will have to ask permission to marry his Princess from the Communist government which controls Romania. However, only 2 per cent of the Romanians are Communists and the reactions of this 2 per cent are sometimes extremely monarchistic—for instance, no respectable Communist meeting in Romania is opened without a rousing cheer for the King!

The romance, if you could call it that, was started over a year ago—and by their mothers! Queen Mother Helen wrote Princess Margaret of Denmark—Bourbon-Parma—to send along a batch of Anne's photographs. The pictures of pretty Anne arrived and were duly inspected by Michael who rated them "very nice."

They had never met, of course, until Princess Elizabeth's wedding. According to reports they "got along" fine. Which is as it should be since Mihai is a conscientious young man intent on doing his job and avoiding the amorous mistakes which upset the royal applecart of his father, ex-King Carol.

Family Was Brave, Hard Working

NO Communist could really object to Princess Anne and her brave, hard working family. During the war when both Copenhagen and Paris were Nazi occupied they arrived in New York almost penniless. Princess Margaret, her husband Prince Rene, their three boys and Anne, all squeezed into a tiny East 57th Street apartment. Princess Margaret obtained a job with Eric, a Danish milliner, who had a Paris success shortly before the war.

Her friends, coming to buy hats, were always in an etiquette fix—they had curtsied to her in Europe, so what to do in a New York shop? The determinedly international minded bobbed a knee, others shook hands a bit confusedly.

After work, Princess Margaret went home, cooked dinner for her family.

A few years ago Princess Margaret inherited a most unexpected fortune. Billy Wessel, a Chilean of Danish descent and well-known figure in Paris and on the Riviera, left her all his money. Billy and his brother, whose yacht, the White Cloud, was familiar in every Adriatic port, were kind to everyone they liked and it is pleasant to think of the Wessel money freeing Princess Margaret from financial worries.

Just Looking, Thank You

FROM PRAGUE comes the story of a large reception Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt gave for visiting Senators and Representatives to meet the local big shots. Everyone turned up on the dot except Senator Hickenlooper. An hour passed, another half hour when, seeing the punctilious Ambassador's distress, another Senator said he knew where Hickenlooper was and would retrieve him immediately. Within a few minutes he returned, the missing Senator in tow. Hickenlooper had been up to his usual pastime—window shopping! Everywhere he went he spent a good part of the time peering in windows, looking through shops. And, at the end of his trip, experts who should know say Iowa's smart legislator has the most comprehensive grasp of merchandise, of retail production and its wants, of any one in the country.

Mr. Steelman Pleases

THERE IS a nice story about the handsome diamond and ruby-studded gold pin and matching earrings worn by slim Mrs. John Steelman. Some time ago her husband, who is alter ego to the President, announced he intended to give her a wedding anniversary present. Now Mr. Steelman is kept so busy he has never been known to shop. "Oh! dear," thought Mrs. S. "He'll just send Miss Lacy out to buy me something." The next day, to her amazement, Mr. Steelman called from a jeweler's, said he'd found an "exciting" present and would she like it? "I'd adore anything you choose for me!" she replied. And, looking at the results of the initial Steelman solo shopping expedition—he should be encouraged to try again!

NARROW shoulder lines and a small waist accentuated by unpressed pleats in the skirt characterize this summer print silk frock from the group of 1948 Carnegie originals shown yesterday at the luncheon given by the League of Republican Women. The collection was brought to Washington by Julius Garfinckel & Co.

A FAVORITE suit silhouette for the coming year is depicted in this two-toned costume which features a snug waistline and flared peplum effect. The black wool jacket is trimmed with the gray and black pincheck fabric that formed the full skirt. Sailor-type hat is small and pinned over one ear

THREE-PIECE gray silk taffeta for dinner or cocktail wear. Without the jacket, it's a strapless evening gown.

GOP Fashion Show Predicts

Elephant Gray Will Be '48's Color

By Peggy Preston

HATTIE CARNEGIE and the GOP both favor gray as THE color for 1948.

But while Hattie recommends it for the ladies in silk and satins, the playful politicos visualize it in elephant hide suits for all good men and true.

Those were the "New Look" forecasts yesterday at the luncheon and fashion show (or shows) given in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel by the League of Republican Women. La Carnegie sent her latest collection of gowns, hats and jewelry from New York for the event. It brought cries of delight from feminine guests. But it was the offering of male styles, arranged by Mrs. Roy St. Lewis that brought down the house.

Seven hardy GOPers served as models in the sketch which traced the history of men's "fashions" from 1890 to 1950. Irving Bridgers, jr., local swimming expert, appeared in a splashy swim suit of the Gay '90's. Next came Douglas Hatch as an Edwardian dandy of 1900; then Maurice Massey strutted down the runway, depicting a tennis enthusiast of 1910 in straw hat, loud blazer and tight white flannels. Clad in plus-fours, A. Burks Summers represented a golfer of 1920.

Ralph MacBane was attired in a raccoon coat to show what was the rage in 1930. In 1940, it was a GI uniform, whether you liked it or not, and Jack C. Fulton was the model.

But what will the well-dressed man be wearing in 1950? Why, naturally, say the GOPers, an elephant suit. That's what Warren Lawson Stephenson wore for the climax of the show.

Glamour a la Carnegie

THEN THE ladies took over and injected some glamour into the proceedings. They couldn't have picked a better medium than the Carnegie collection.

Miss Carnegie has harked back to the romantic period of the 1820's and '30's for inspiration in fabric and line. The dresses, suits and coats she showed were completely feminine in tone, down

Horace Booths Have Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Horace R. Booth of Arlington, Va., are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter on Tuesday, in Doctors Hospital. The baby, their first child, has been named Sarah Gardner.

In Fashions, Republicans Favor Glamour–and Femininity

to the last piece of ruffle, braid or lace, all of which she used with fragile taste.

Stiff materials, such as silk taffeta and organdie, were the important fabric news of her spring designs. She used them in wide, full-skirted evening dresses and for dress suits. One of the prettiest was a white organdie for dancing. Tiny lace ruffles were sewn in an all-over diamond design and it had a huge pink taffeta sash.

Suit skirts were both pencil slim and circular, giving us a choice of silhouettes again for spring. Some of the unusual costumes included a beige silk faille "duster," reminiscent of 1900; a handsome black taffeta suit with heavy braid embroidery at the hipline which Miss Carnegie made for the fashion collection at the Philadelphia Museum of Art; a printed swiss taffeta evening dress and some bright colored street dresses of silk shantung, a departure from traditional black.

For Husbands, Too

THE LOCAL feminine Republican contingent was out in full force for the party. Wives of almost all the Capitol Hill delegation were present, and not a few husbands trailed along.

Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, wife of the Delegate from Hawaii, and president of the league, had reservations for 36 guests, who were seated at tables for 10. Among them were Mrs. Caroll Reece, whose husband is chairman Republican National Committee; Mrs. John Macauley, executive director, women's division, Republican National Committee; Mrs. Lindsey P. Rawley and Mrs. Ralph Harris, National Committeewoman from Kansas.

Serving as ushers were a group of junior Republicans including Beverly Farrington, Mary Pearl Alexander, Elaine LeFevre, Rosalind Rust, Betty Burke, Marion Norris, Anita Haskell, Diana Hatch, Louise Reece, Maxine Howell and Sonya Macy.

On Capital's Party Front

MME. SLAVIK, wife of the Czechoslovakian Ambassador, entertained at tea Wednesday afternoon for members of the Chamber Music Guild. Around 500 guests attended.

Mrs. Edwin Martin Watson, president of the advisory board, and Mrs. Marcel Ancher, wife of the founder of the guild, were among those who poured.

Other assistants included Mme. Winiewicz, wife of the Polish Ambassador; Mme. de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Ambassador; Mme. Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador; Senora de Espinosa de los Monteros, wife of the Mexican Ambassador; Mrs. Makin, wife of the Australian Ambassador, and other ladies of the Diplomatic Corps.

Deane Rucker Entertains In Honor of Mother

DEANE RUCKER entertained at a cocktail party Wednesday afternoon at his apartment in the Fairfax Hotel. The party was in honor of his mother, Mrs. J. Deane Rucker of Detroit, who is visiting in Washington this week. The guests were mostly old Washington, and included cousins of the Ruckers, the Misses Mary, Louise and Irene Sheridan, and Mrs. Rucker's sister, Mrs. Francis Dwyer.

Among others who dropped in were Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, Mrs. Hamilton Lewis, Merrett Swift, Clarence B. Hewes, William K. Ryan, John Breckinridge, George Williams, Mrs. Alex B. Legare, James Parks, Miss Emily Davis and Mrs. Hamilton Fish.

Hugh Applings Are Feted Before Going Abroad

MRS. DEE WITT LIEVSAY entertained at tea on Tuesday for Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Appling who will sail January 8 for Europe. Mr. Appling has been appointed to a foreign service post in Vienna. Mrs. James Peeler and Miss Dorothy Best presided at the tea table.

Mrs. Peeler will entertain at dinner on Sunday for Mr. and Mrs. Appling.

Harrisons Leave for Cruise to South

Mr. and Mrs. Judson O. Harrison have closed their lodge at Millenbeck, Va., and are cruising south aboard their yacht, Chups. They will spend the winter months at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., returning in the spring to spend some time with their sons before going back to Virginia.

Your Questions on Homemaking

We are making a serving tray, the bottom of which is mahogany plywood (which will show through glass) and the frame of which is ash. Is there any way to treat the ash so that it will have the same or very similar color as the mahogany? If this isn't possible, is there any way to finish both kinds of wood so that the resulting color will be similar to wheat or limed oak? We would like something a little different from the ordinary yellow-tan. J. L. S.

Mahogany stain can be used in making the ash frame and the bottom of the tray the same color. Oil stain of this type (purchasable in paint stores) is brushed on, then wiped off. The longer you let it stay on, the darker the tone will be. It will undoubtedly take some experimenting before you can tell just how much to put on to get a matching shade in both woods. If you have small pieces of wood left over from making the tray, experiment with those.

You might get a similar light color in the two woods by bleaching. This can be done with a commercial bleach or with oxalic acid. Use one ounce oxalic acid crystals and one pint of water. The oxalic acid solution has to remain on overnight, after which it must be washed off with borax dissolved in warm water. A second coat of bleach may be applied before washing if a lighter color is wanted. Experimentation will be necessary here, too, to achieve a matching shade in the two woods.

After the tray is bleached, the wood should be sanded smooth as the bleaching process raises the grain somewhat. If the color obtained is lighter than you want it can be darkened with a light application of oil stain in a light color. If stain is used, it must be sealed in with a coat of shellac. This can be sanded lightly after it dries if you do not want a shiny effect. Wood which has been bleached is usually finished with either shellac or wax.

Do you know of anything that will remove rust from tin wall sconces and lighting fixtures? These were bought in Mexico recently and, after being used only a few months, are covered with rust. N. L. D.

A rust remover for use on metals is sold in the household wares section of a local department store and should be helpful in refurbishing these tin fixtures. However, if the rust has penetrated very deeply, it will be hard to get it all off. It's a good idea to coat decorative tinware of this type with clear shellac or hard wax(of the type used on automobiles) to preserve it.

How can I remove household cement from a pair of cotton slacks? M. B.

Try sponging with white vinegar. If this doesn't soften the spot, rub petroleum jelly into it and let stand for an hour or so. Then sponge with carbon tetrachloride, gasoline, or a similar solvent.

I have inherited from my mother a long, black, satin evening cape, lined with ermine. I haven't lived here very long and have no use for such a gorgeous thing. I would take for less than its value, but know that good furriers will not handle second-hand garments. I'm afraid ads wouldn't reach a buyer for so expensive a cape. Have you any suggestions? A. C. B.

Many people sell valuable fur garments through classified ads in the newspapers, and this seems about the best solution of your problem right now. The Junior League Out-Grown Shop, 2001 Massachusetts av. nw., sells second-hand clothing on commission, but has a large number of things on hand right now and will therefore not be accepting clothing for several months. None of the local furriers buy second-hand furs, apparently, though I understand some New York firms do so.

I spilled a cup of tea on a blue rayon quilted house coat. The cleaners have been unable to remove the yellow stain. I'd consider bleaching or redyeing if it's possible with rayon faille. Any suggestions? J. F. M.

Tea stains can often be removed by sponging first with water, then rubbing glycerine into the spots. After standing half an hour, the glycerine should be rinsed out by sponging with water over an absorbent pad. However, since dry cleaner was unable to get the stain out of your housecoat, it seems unlikely that home remedies will work at this late date. Redyeing isn't recommended for rayon faille, unfortunately. The material often dyes unevenly and shrinks from the wetting.

I have two antique picture frames I'd like to have refinished. Both have lots of gold leaf on them and the other finish is that old, dark—or rather dull—finish. They are unusual and lovely. Where can I have them restored to their original beauty? Where could I buy gold leaf and what would be the price of a small bottle? P. E.

A local picture framing firm does gold-leaf work. It is one of the few shops in this area which has experts trained in this line. Telephone National 1739 for further information. Gold leaf is sold by a local paint store for $1.65 a book. Sizing and other materials are also necessary to lay gold leaf. It's a difficult job for the inexperienced.

What, if anything, will take the shine out of nylon hose? Ordinary washing doesn't do it, as I've washed them several times and they are shiny as ever. D. J. I.

Some of the sheerer nylon hose do have a definite shine, but I do not know of any solution they can be washed in to remove it.

Where can I sell second-hand suits and overcoats? These are too nice to give away as many are tailor-made? P. E.

Why not insert an ad in the classified section of The Washington Post?

Can you tell me how I may prevent tarnish on a new dress woven with gold threads? I want to take action now so as to keep it bright as long as possible. M. S. M.

If the gold threads in your dress are metal, I see no reason why the usual methods for preventing tarnish will not be helpful. Keep the dress wrapped in black tissue paper in a box so that it is not exposed to the air. You might also place a chunk of camphor in the box with the dress. No method is an absolute guarantee against tarnish, since the metallic fabrics vary so much.

SMOOTH construction is important in making smooth-looking garments, so Maryann Niedermair (standing) fits the sleeves carefully into her wool suit, while Barbara Levy makes tailor's tacks to help her in sewing her corduroy dress together in clothing class at Wilson High. Both girls are seniors at Wilson

"THE fit is the thing!" says Jane Hough of 4114 38th st. nw., as she helps Barbara Jean Pryse of 4609 Albemarle st. nw., in fitting a gray woolen suit. Materials for Barbara Jean's suit cost about $25 but the finished garment will be the equivalent of a $75 suit.

STEAMING seams in a corduroy coat isn't easy work, but Dorothy Goldman is doing a grand job of it here with the aid of a steam iron and a special pad made for this purpose. Dorothy, who is just finishing her junior year at Wilson High, lives at 3511 Davenport st. nw.

Woodrow Wilson High Teaches Tailoring

'Homemade Look' Is Taboo for Teen-Age Sewing Class

By Lucia Brown

"WHAT a sweet little dress! Did you make it yourself?"

That's one remark that will never be made to girls who have studied clothing at Wilson Senior High—not if their teacher, Mrs. Natalie Diermier, has her way, at any rate!

The "homemade" look is strictly taboo in the Wilson clothing laboratory. It's the "professional touch" that Mrs. Diermier and each of her 75 students strive for, from the time a pattern is selected until the day the girl steps proudly out in her completed dress or suit.

"Using patterns carefully, good construction, skillful fitting, and proper pressing are a few of the things we stress," says Mrs. Diermier who has been teaching at Wilson since the school opened in 1935 and makes most of her own attractive clothes.

The class we visited out at Woodrow Wilson this week wasn't made up of beginners at the gentle art of sewing. It's members were in their last semester of high school home economics. Many have been making their own clothes at home and some plan careers in fashion designing.

Nevertheless, they were 'teen-age youngsters embarked on their first adventure in tailoring. But the work they were doing would have reflected credit on many an experienced tailor turning out suits and coats for an expensive clientele.

Before the girls started tailoring suits and coats, they spent some time studying designs, discussing the lines that were most becoming to them, considering their individual wardrobe needs, and the cost and appropriateness of various materials. They also had a brief course in costume design.

Many members of the group are also members of the Home Economics Club, an after-school group that makes a sizable contribution to various activities at Wilson. The club is responsible for costuming operettas and plays given at the school. Some of the costumes they make; others are rented, with club members doing the fitting. A recent big job was costuming for "The Pirates of Penzance," and just ahead is the costuming for the school's Christmas pageant.

A full year's clothing course is offered at Wilson. It is an elective, but only girls who are particularly adapted to the work are allowed to take the second semester course in tailoring. Courses in foods and nutrition, home management, and home nursing are also given by the three-teacher home economics department.

MRS. MITCHELL J. DENIKOS

Denikos—Makestas

Miss Katherine Makestas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Makestas of New York, was married on November 30 to Mitchell J. Denikos, son of Mrs. James Denikos of Washington. The wedding took place in St. Sophia Greek Orthodox Church and Mr. Makestas gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride wore a gown of white satin brocade and finger-tip veil and carried calla lilies. Miss Georgia Makestas, attending her sister as maid of honor, wore sky blue taffeta and carried blue gladioli and pompons. Miss Catherine Pappas and Miss Joan Sear, bridesmaids, were costumed in pink taffeta with bouquets of red roses.

Ushers were George J. Denikos, William J. Denikos, John N. Deodes and Charles E. Glezas.

Carroll

MRS. FRANCIS P. FUNSTON

Funston—Nolan

Before the altar of Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, which had been decorated with white flowers and palms, Miss Miriam Dolores Nolan and Francis Patrick Funston were married at 10 a. m. November 29. The Rev. Joseph A. Cutter officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor L. Nolan of Silver Spring, Md., and was given in marriage by her father. Her husband is the son of Joseph J. Funston of Willow Grove, Pa.

Mrs. Funston wore a princess style gown of white brocaded satin with a fingertip veil held in place by orange blossoms and lilies of the valley. She carried a prayer book with a shower of white orchids.

Mrs. John L. Denner attended her sister as matron of honor wearing a princess dress of maize colored taffeta brocade. She carried yellow roses. The bridesmaids, wearing princess style dresses, were Miss Gertrude Falkenbach, cousin of the bridegroom, from Philadelphia, in coral; Miss Esther Havenner, in gold; Miss Marian Sneeringer, in blue, and Miss Marjorie Ann Morris, in aqua. All carried brandywine roses. Miss Peggy Lou Harris, god child of the bride, wore a princess style dress in white and carried an old-fashioned bouquet.

Frank Solensky was best man and the ushers, all from Philadelphia, were Edward J. Funston, John Falkenbach, John L. Denner, and Joseph McNulty.

A wedding breakfast was served at Stone House Inn and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride. The couple will live in Philadelphia after a northern honeymoon.

The bride was graduated from Immaculate Conception Academy and served for 15 months in the Women's Reserve of the Marine Corps. The bridegroom attended Drexel College in Philadelphia.

Brooks

Mrs. Jack Z. Sandow, the former Sylvia Moskowitz of Washington, has returned to make her home in the Capital after a honeymoon to Niagara Falls and Canada. She is the sister of Irving Moskowitz, also of Washington

Goldkind—Hyman

Mr. and Mrs. George Joseph Hyman of Silver Spring, Md., formerly of Albany, N. Y., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Joan Irene Hyman, to Murray Goldkind, son of Kopel Goldkind and the late Mrs. Goldkind. The double-ring ceremony took place on November 16 at Mount Eden Center, New York City, with Rabbi Hollander officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in ivory satin trimmed with lace and her fingertip veil fell from a tiara of seed pearls. She carried her father's prayerbook and the wedding handkerchief of her mother and grandmother.

Mrs. Leonard Rosenberg was her sister's matron of honor and wore a gown of American Beauty taffeta and carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Florence Rosenberg and Mrs. Abe Goldkind, were costumed in nile green and orchid taffeta with nosegays of yellow roses. Helaine Myra Rosenberg, the bride's niece, acted as flower girl, wearing pink taffeta with matching bonnet and carrying a nosegay of roses and sweetpeas.

Abe Goldkind was his brother's best man and ushers were Leonard Rosenberg and Lawrence Klein.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Widower With Small Son Marries Again, Telling Bride His Mother Will Keep His Son; But Mother Rebels, Causing a Storm

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was married five years to a woman I did not love and an unplanned child was born to us. My wife died four years ago, after which my mother took my son to raise, as I felt I wasn't qualified to provide a home for him.

Now I have been married again for several months to a woman I love very much. We have every chance for happiness except for the fact that in courting her I gave assurances that I didn't expect to bring my son to live with us. I told her I didn't think it was her duty to care for him and that I felt we would be happier by ourselves.

Man Sees No Fault In His Performance

However, since our marriage my mother and the neighbors think Tommie should live with us. My wife's rejoinder to this is to say that she would feel she had been tricked into something, and that inasmuch as I made no attempt to take responsibility for Tommie before, she would regard it as shifting the burden from my mother to her.

As to that, I feel that in leaving the boy with my mother, I did what any man would have done in the circumstances, and that my wife's attitude is really selfish, since Tommie is nicely behaved and not much trouble. Am I the one who is wrong?

Incidentally, my wife and mother don't get along since my mother told her some untruths about my feelings for my first wife. Please advise me what we should do, as the situation is a strain on our marriage. A. G.

Man's Irresponsible Buckpassing Fellow

DEAR A. G.: In view of your irresponsible buckpassing approach to second marriage, based on your jaunty assumption and fulsome assurance to your bride that you were, in effect, an unencumbered man, you can't logically take an injured attitude towards her obstinate rejection of the stepmother role that is now being thrust at her.

Her attitude is selfish, yes; but even so, there is literal justification for her rude disobliging rejoinder. And her behavior is certainly no worse than your mother's, who is trying belligerently—for bad will reasons: without humane regard for Tommie's welfare—to foist that hapless lad on a resistant stepmother and shirker-father, while also needling poison into the new marriage by gossiping maliciously about your past.

Obviously both women are about equally deficient in those beneficent nurturing qualities of spirit that characterize fine wives and mothers. And I daresay your mother is bent on making the marriage a bed of coals—to break it up, if possible—primarily because she realizes that the newcomer is an adversary equal to both of you on the score of selfishness.

Man Might Try Going on Knees

IN all probability your first wife was a gentler soul, passive and vulnerable, who didn't count much in your experience, nor resist Mom's will or your puppet-reflection of it, in the brief unhappy marriage that transpired.

Judging by the results produced in you, it's logical to infer that your mother's philosophy and tactics have always been of the Mom-type: that she didn't mind catering to your selfishness to the nth degree so long as you loved her best, leaned on her and didn't turn your back on Mom to eat out of some other woman's hand—as has been your disposition in relation to the second wife.

For advice: Taking into account the shabby character shown by all three grown-ups involved in this family fracas, I find hardly any material with which to work out a decent solution—good for Tommie. However, is it possible for you to become somewhat more of a man, even at this late date?

If so, maybe if you got down on your knees to your wife, beseeching her care of Tommie as a special favor, pledging eternal gratitude and full fatherly helpfulness in exchange, she might relent, give you a break and become a good mother—if you keep these promises absolutely, never faltering, failing or evading. M. H.

Legion Women Will Receive Work Awards

By Genevieve Reynolds

Approximately 60 members of the District of Columbia Department, American Legion Auxiliary who have chalked up 50 hours as volunteer hospital workers at Mount Alto Hospital, will receive graduation certificates, Tuesday December 12, 8 p. m. in gala ceremonies at American Legion Auxiliary headquarters, 2437 15th st. nw., Dr. C. M. Griffith, manager of Mount Alto and R. M. Brownlee, chief of special services, who has direct supervision of the workers, will present the certificates.

Volunteers will don trim blue and white uniforms and white headbands bearing the auxiliary's insignia for the occasion. As an extra windfall for ward service and rehabilitation work among the veterans, Mrs. Pearl Heagerty, national delegate and District of Columbia department chairman of the workers, will award the Legion's VHW pins.

Among the speakers and guests from Mount Alto Hospital will be Dr. T. J. Perkin, clinical director: Dr. T. M. Brown, chief of general medicine; Dr. W. P. Kaufman, chief of neurological services; Mrs. Elizabeth Earle, chief nurse, and Miss Agnes Brophy recreational director.

On December 11, Mrs. May C. Hilleary and her staff of officers plus members in all auxiliary units will man the gift shop at Mount Alto, which is under the direction of Mrs. Nellie May Linville, gift shop chairman. Each year the auxiliary sets up shops to assist the disabled veterans with their Christmas purchases and mailing of gifts. While over 500 gifts have been purchased by Mrs. Linville and Mrs. Isabel C. Gourley, still many more are needed.

Similar gift shops for hospitalized veterans will be set up at St. Elizabeths next Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Fellows Will Fly to Ethiopia

After a round of farewell parties given during the past few weeks, Mrs. Perry Fellows and her 18-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, left yesterday for New York and will fly this week to Ethiopia, where Mr. Fellows is director of planning and industrial and economic adviser to the Emperor.

This will be Mrs. Fellows' first trip to Ethiopia, where her husband was head of a technical mission during the war. Frank Fellows, just returned from service with the Army in the Philippines, will join his parents in January, and another son, Larry, is a senior at Ohio Wesleyan University. A married son, Philip, is with an airline company in Washington, where the family has resided since 1934. Mr. Fellows formerly was assistant commissioner of the WPA and later was with the Foreign Economic Administration.

Salvation Army Starts Yule Drive for Needy

Back in 1890, when the country was in the grip of a depression, a welfare organization hung out family-sized pots or kettles as a symbol of the hunger of American families in what should be a joyous Christmas time.

That organization was the Salvation Army, which has continued the tradition started in Pittsburgh more than 50 years ago, and now yearly stations the familiar tripod and Salvation Army kettle on downtown Washington streets to appeal to those in better financial circumstances for funds for the needy at Yuletide.

The Salvation Army here has just launched its 1947 appeal for Christmas funds. Indications are that this Christmas will see a substantial increase in number of families which will need either food or other forms of aid beyond their means.

Last year, the Salvation Army collected toys, which it distributed through its toy shop to needy parents, who were assisted by Army personnel in choosing such gifts for their children. The children never knew the dolls they received were gifts of the Salvation Army.

In addition, last year 730 families were sent checks, varying in size, according to the number in the family, from $3 to $12 to augment their Christmas celebration. Over 400 of these families were on public relief rolls, with allotments insufficient to allow Christmas expenditures.

Salvation Army personnel also visited bedridden patients in District and nearby hospitals, presenting them with "sunshine baskets" and scripture mottoes at Christmas time.

8 District Lawyers Assisted In Nazi War Crimes Trials

Mrs. Mary Kaufman — Albert Levy — Morris Amchan — Mary Bakshian

Josia Dubois, Jr. — Emanuel Minskoff — Edmund Schwenk — Belle Mayer

A list of eight Washington lawyers who have assisted with prosecution of war crimes trials in Nuernberg, Germany, has just been released by the War Department overseas.

All but one of the attorneys were members of the legal battery which recently concluded prosecution of 23 I. G. Farbenindustrie officials on war crimes charges.

Recently returned to the United States is Miss Belle Mayer, who helped prepare the Farben case for trial and introduced evidence in court. Miss Mayer lives at 2901 18th st. nw.

Another woman lawyer, Mary Bakshian, arrived in New York a few days ago and will return to her home here shortly. A member of the prosecution staff for the Farben trial, she was chief of the control and reports section of the foreign procurement and development branch of the Foreign Economic Administration from 1942 to 1946. She is the daughter of Mrs. A. H. Bakshian of the Dresden apartments.

Josiah E. DuBois, jr., Assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury in 1944, is deputy chief of counsel for war crimes in Nuernberg and chief prosecutor in the Farben case. DuBois maintains a law office at 177 I st. nw.

Morris Amchan, associate prosecutor for the Farben trial, is a former Reconstruction Finance Corporation and War Assets Administration lawyer. His residence is at 3448 S. Stafford st., Arlington.

Albert G. D. Levy, an assistant prosecutor, was commercial policy analyst for the Tariff Commission from 1944 to 1946. Levy formerly lived at 12 Danbury st. sw.

Emanuel E. Minskoff is on loan from the Treasury Department to assist in the prosecution of I. G. Farben officials. Minskoff's home is at 9216 Kinsbury dr., Silver Spring.

Mrs. Mary Metlay Kaufman was an attorney for the National War Labor Board and the National Wage Stabilization Board here before accepting a legal assignment on the Farben trial's prosecution staff. Mrs. Kaufman's Washington address is unknown.

Edmund H. Schwenk, formerly of 219 Upshur st. nw., is the sole District attorney not connected with the Farben case. Schwenk is senior trial counsel in the war crimes trial of 14 former officials of the SS-Race and Settlement Office and other Nazi racial offices.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Four Radio Men Honored by Navy

Four radio network officials have received citations from the Navy for their support if the civilian reserve recruiting program in 1947.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air John H. Brown presented the citations in a ceremony at the Navy Department on Wednesday.

Popular Astronomy To Be Meeting Topic

Carl H. Gamble, president and founder of the Popular Astronomy Club, Moline, Ill., will speak on "Popular Astronomy" at the meeting of the National Capital Astronomers at the National Museum, 10th st. and Constitution ave. nw., tomorrow at 8 p. m.

He will demonstrate with a 12-inch globe, spotlighting the two motions of the earth—night and day, and the seasons.

DAV Ball Tomorrow

The second annual benefit ball of the Disabled American Veterans will be held tomorrow at the Washington Hotel from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m.

Here's a secret we never try to keep!

Do you know why more people are buying Four Roses today than at any time in its 60-year history?

The reason for this overwhelming preference is a secret we never try to keep . . . because we're so proud it's true.

It's simply this: In Four Roses you enjoy a distinctive, different flavor unmatched by that of any other whiskey in America!

Try Four Roses—won't you? See for yourself!

Ginger Ribs the 400

And She's Lela's Little Girl, Too

By Richard L. Coe

GINGER ROGERS, daughter of Lela Rogers, the lady who sees Communists in front of Hollywood typewriters, is appearing on the Warner screen in an enjoyably funny comedy, "It Had to Be You."

So we presume "It Had to Be You" must be what you'd call a capitalist comedy. Not only is it about high-toned people who live in richly furnished Fifth Avenue mansions; it also offers some interesting examples of what one assumes is capitalist conversation.

"You know, dear," says Spring Byington to Ginger after Lela's daughter has called the butler by his first name, "we don't call Benson George. George is his first name, but we call him Benson."

Ginger's rich, respectable father—capitally played by Percy Waram—is similarly class conscious. "What!" he shouts when Ginger tells him she's going to marry Cornel Wilde, who's playing a fireman. "Nobody marries firemen!"

One of Ginger's prospective fathers-in-law (we'll explain that in a minute) is similarly contemptuous of virtues when it comes to money. "Honor," he snorts. "You can buy a lot of honor for three million dollars."

The numerous fathers-in-law crop up because Ginger is never satisfied with her prospective bridegrooms. Three times she leaves them flat at the altar, for her subconscious tells her that this is not the man for her. The guy she dreams about wears an Indian suit and likes to do such things as dip bread crusts in wine, kiss underwater and shout like a Seminole. She can't get the fellow off her mind.

"IT HAD TO BE YOU," Columbia release produced by Don Hartman. Screen play by Norman Panama and Melvin Frank from a story by Hartman and Allen Boretz. Directed by Hartman and Rudolph Mate. At the Warner.

THE CAST

Victoria Stafford	Ginger Rogers
"George"	Cornel Wilde
Johnny Blaine	Cornel Wilde
Mr. Stafford	Percy Waram
Mrs. Stafford	Spring Byington
Oliver H. P. Harrington	Ron Randell
Mr. Harrington	Thurston Hall
Dr. Parkinson	Charles Evans
Evans	William Bevan
Conductor Brown	Frank Orth
George Benson	Harry Hays Morgan
Mr. Kimberly	Douglas Wood
Mrs. Kimberly	Mary Forbes

Sure enough, he finally pops up in her train compartment, explaining that he doesn't really exist, but is simply the man of her subconscious desire. He appears clearly enough to her family, however, and quite disrupts her fourth wedding plans. This is a good thing, because Ron Randell doesn't please Ginger, however respectable his background.

High-Class Miming

Sooooo—the wedding party watches some movies of Ginger's girlhood and there's your answer. At 6 she was kissed by a dark-haired neighborhood child dressed in an Indian suit! Ginger hunts him up to the great satisfaction of her guardian Indian, who's the spit image of Fireman Wilde.

All this is handled as pleasant fluff and turns out some good chuckling laughter. Ginger, of course, is adept at this farcical style, though she does seem to be breathing heavily throughout. (Of course, if it weren't for her mother's erratic volubility, we never would have noticed those conversational mots of her capitalist associates, but since Lela has pointed out that movie dialogue is apt to contain all sorts of propaganda, these stand out like the Monument over the Ellipse.)

The Technicolored Wedding

Wilde is an effective scene-stealer in his juicy dual role of the noble fireman and the Indian of the subconscious. And the rest of the cast, particularly Miss Byington and Waram, are most adept at their upper-crust miming.

Also on the Warner screen (and at the Ambassador) is the highly touted J. Arthur Rank Technicolor film on the marriage of Princess Elizabeth. This half-hour, we suspect, would strike even a monarchy-loving Briton as a trifle sanctimonious and over-long.

The first half, while framed in a Technicolored album, is largely of newsreel or still photography. And the wit-loving English would certainly get a smile out of the soundtrack, which relates: "The young Prince Philip came to Britain at an early age." The page is turned and there you see Philip dressed in a Roman toga for a school play. An early age, indeed.

The wedding and family gathering afterward are filmed in Technicolor and do have fine richness of color. The trouble with them, however, is that there are very few closeups and one gains the impression that royalty does nothing other than get in and out of doors, carriages and buildings. After watching that "glass" coach arrive at the Abbey in several newsreels, we feel a good word should be remarked somewhere for the coachman who managed to stop the carriage at just the right spot. And further cheers for Queen Mary, still, at 80, the paragon of royalty.

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe writes of people about the town.

HER GUARDIAN INDIAN: Ginger Rogers and Cornel Wilde, who plays her gnawing romantic conscience, in the Warner's new comedy, "It Had to Be You"

All Is Not Corn With Hillbillies

By Bill Gottlieb

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—It's being rumored that from 25 to 50 per cent of the records now being sold are hillbilly. Whatever the figure, it's astonishingly more than I had ever expected. On checking further, I learned that except in the Northeast, hillbilly talent holds practically every important dance hall attendance record in every part of the country. Top oat tuners like Ernest Tubb, who was even a hit in Carnegie Hall, gross a million a year. Dollars, not hay.

TUBB

Most interesting new development in the hillbilly field is the revamping of standard, hit parade tunes into cow country meter, for consumption in the country. At first, when I heard Alonzo and Oscar (RCA-Victor) tear apart songs like "Near You" and rebuild them like silos, I thought they played for laughs. I find they're dead serious. Red Ingle (Capitol), who actually did do the trick with tongue in cheek on his famous "Timtayshun" "Temptation," was bought straight-faced by thousands.

Here are some of the latest contributions from the new-born hillbillies: Kay Kyser, real rickey-tickey, on "Friendship" (Columbia); Alonzo and Oscar, in a humorous situation, on "I'm My Own Grandpa" (Victor); Red Ingle, with some deserving slaps at Phil Harris, on "Nowhere" (Capitol) and, with some undeserving but hilarious blows at Paganini, on "Keep 'Er Going' Stomp."

PASSIONATE WAX: There's a lot of emotional conviction behind Ernie Andrews low-down vocal on "Soothe Me" (Columbia). Sounds like a sweetened Josh White . . . Another telling vocal comes from Lena Horne, now with MGM, on "I Feel So Smoochie." Plattermate is the sensational but neglected tune, "Take Love Easy." Wait 'til Billie Holliday gets around to this one.

IN PACKAGES: Machito, who leads our greatest rhumba band, has a souvenir album on Decca that I suspect was recorded years ago. A rhythmic gem . . . Best of the vocal quartets today is the Charioteers, if for no other reason than that they don't make every record sound like every other. In their Columbia album, "Sweet and Low," listen to the way they and Accompanist Mitch Ayres vary styles and employ modern orchestral effects swiped judiciously from Stan Kenton, Joe Mooney and others . . . The South African veldt folk singers, Josef Marais and Miranda, are delightful in an album of "Songs From Many Lands."

'Arizona' Hasn't Lost a Digit Of Population in Seven Years

By Leo Brady

"Arizona," at the Metropolitan, is the latest in F st.'s revival parade.

If your memory goes back to 1940, you may recall it as an epic Western starring Jean Arthur and William Holden, and its exhumation is largely based on the hope that time mellows even celluloid.

The reason for dusting this one off is obviously based on its pretensions to epic stature—epic defined as a slim and routine story containing too many characters and burdened with irrelevancies of background and atmosphere. Ben Hecht, who complained a while back that American movies didn't have any atmosphere, should sit and watch "Arizona" for a while.

In a Western epic, the trimmings take the form of innumerable Indians, clusters of cattle, hordes of scraggily-bearded extras, a few half-baked swipes at historical importance and a snifter or two of patriotism.

The history in "Arizona," of course, has to do with the settling of that territory in 1860. The story was written by Clarence B. Kelland, who is no threat to Arnold Toynbee on one side or Zane Grey on the other.

Miss Arthur is probably the first heroine to get away with the name of Phoebe since "The House of the Seven Gables." She is a frontier heroine whose own little girlish dream is to establish a cattle empire—an aspiration understandable, I suppose, in a hotbed of free and untrammeled enterprise like the early West.

As a standard collection of gunfights, Indian raids, "shucks Ma'am" loves scenes and untidy villains, "Arizona" is right up there with Hopalong Cassidy. Warren William and Porter Hall are good, if verbose, villains and Edgar Buchanan plays the most slovenly character since the beggar in "The Thief of Bagdad."

Miss Arthur's fans will enjoy watching her enjoy herself and William Holden is an affable hero. Good scene: Phoebe ordering groceries while her husband shoots it out with Warren William in sound effects off-screen. We won't tell you who wins.

Naylor Ownership Decision Due Soon

Tenant Group Contends Cooperative's Contract With DHC Is Not Being Fulfilled

Whether Government-built Naylor Gardens will become the property of a veterans' cooperative or private owners is to be settled shortly—when the knot of a year-long, involved tangle is expected to straighten out.

Knot-maker in the disposition of the 748-unit project is the Naylor Gardens Association, a group of tenants who claim that the cooperative's contract with Defense Homes Corporation is not being fulfilled.

Late in 1945, DHC announced that the seven-million-dollar project was on the block. A little more than a year later, January 15, 1947, a group of veterans organized as the Veterans Cooperative Housing Association, signed a one-year option with the Government for sale of the project.

Terms of Contract

The contract required that, within a year, VCHA, which would have control of the project, would turn over to DHC $512,500—10 per cent of the total sale price. In that year, it was also decided, VCHA should get substantially "300 member occupants." If the terms of the contract were not fulfilled, the contract would become void on January 10, 1948.

To become a member of VCHA, an applicant pays $50 with his application, and if he is accepted, is put on the waiting list for a vacancy. When one occurs, and he moves in, he pays VCHA 20 per cent of the cost of the apartment he is buying. Prices range from $5860 to more than $8000.

Monthly payments for VCHA members, who must buy their apartments, average around $65, of which $40 is monthly service charge for lights, coal, insurance, upkeep, and general overhead.

At the outset of the contract, vacancies were occurring in Naylor Gardens about 30 times a month. With a continuation of that rate, and a certain number of tenants joining, it would have been a minor matter to fill the project with VCHA members.

To protect their interests, members of NGA had Defense Homes insert in the contract that occupants would not be evicted before rent control expires—at the moment, March 31, 1948.

Vacancies Plummet

Suddenly, with the return to Washington of Government agencies, and a rising cost of homes, vacancies at the project plummeted to 15 a month, where they have remained. In addition, tenants showed little interest in joining the cooperative.

When a vacancy occurs, a VCHA member moves in. But even so, VCHA was forced to admit around September 10, that a predicted maximum of VCHA member occupants on deadline day would be 213, 87 short of enough.

Three weeks ago, seeing that they could get neither the 300 member occupants nor the $512,500, VCHA hired Realtor Victor Wickersham to sell apartments. In three weeks, by intensive advertising, and allowing VCHA members to make down payments before they move in, Wickersham carried VCHA over the top—financially. But he is no more able to sidestep the occupancy clause than VCHA is.

Well over half the present occupants of the project oppose the VCHA contract with DHC. What these tenants, who make up Naylor Gardens Association, want is to rent their apartments at approximately present rates, which are now the same as monthly payments for owners—$65 a month.

NGA, which claims the apartments are not good real estate buys, and will cost too much to maintain, insist that the exact stipulations of the contract be fulfilled. In short, the group prefers a private owner.

Opposition Stiffens

Since Wickersham entered the already confused picture, NGA's opposition has stiffened. Each Sunday and any other day an NGA member is available, pamphlets have been passed out to prospective purchasers of apartments. The pamphlets state NGA's point of view.

One of the strongest points that NGA has advanced, and which its counsel, Arnold, Fortas & Porter have echoed, is the statement of the Veterans Administration, which turned down applications for the GI loan.

Delivering a lengthy legal opinion on November 6, Edward E. Odom, solicitor of VA, pointed out, "if any one or more of the others (VCHA members) fails to pay his obligations incident to the project, the veteran will not have a legal right to anything in the project, not even the right of occupancy." Odom summed up the situation by saying that "the veteran's hazard is much greater in this type of project than in the conventional single family home transaction."

Definitely interested in the 43-acre project are private owners, probably including the Fairmac Corporation, which was "definitely interested in all the projects when they first came up for sale." Outbid for Naylor, Fairmac would in all likelihood, welcome a second chance to get the development.

Status Quo Preferred

Fairmac would, if McLean Gardens and Fairlington, which it owns, are examples, retain the project as it now is, renting rather than selling units.

Lifting of the fog over the project depends on DHC.

In a letter to the counsel of VCHA, William A. Zeigler, then general manager of Defense Homes, but now holding the same position in Fairmac, wrote: "You may rest assured that the Government will not avail itself of technicalities to prevent your client from completing its undertaking."

But in a letter sent even later, DHC assured representatives of NGA that no changes in the contract were anticipated. It added that if any plea were made for changes, NGA would get a complete hearing.

Teachers Associations Group to Meet Here

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Dec. 4 (AP).—The National Association of Secretaries of State Teachers Associations at the final session of their annual convention yesterday reelected all officers, chose Washington, D. C., for their 1948 meeting and unanimously urged immediate congressional action to relieve the plight of the Navajo Indians.

Reelected officers were Frank L. Grove, Birmingham, Ala., president; Joe Chandler, Washington, D. C., vice president; Martin Moe, Helena, Mont., secretary-treasurer, and Walton Bliss, Columbus, Ohio, and Andy Holt, Nashville, Tenn., executive board members.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Feed Europe Spiritually, Too, Italian Cultural Envoy Asks

Satisfying Europe's hunger will not defeat the enemies of democracy and peace—"the spirit of man must be fed too."

Universal cultural collaboration is the means to that end, Italy's first postwar cultural envoy declared in Washington yesterday.

With all the fervor of the men who are seeking economic and political peace over international tables, Prof. Fernando Della Rocca of the University of Rome has taken his message to the Americas for the last 16 months.

FERNANDO DELLA ROCCA
Visitor from Rome

An Understanding Needed

"Cultural relations are more important than political and economic ones," he declared. "Cultural relations eventually will make every people of every nation understand the others in spirit, psychology, justice and peace."

Professor Della Rocca was quick to admit that hunger is "the best ally of the elements against peace and order," but he called for "food for the intelligence and conscience of man" to realize a quicker and more certain world peace.

His statements also contained a plea to defend culture against political elements. "Little Italian school children marching militaristically in black shirts for Mussolini . . . " was a picture he drew to show culture bent to politics.

Lauds Cultural Program

Loud in his praise of the United States' "marvelous efforts" toward the reconstruction of Italy, Professor Della Rocca likewise lauded America's cultural program.

"During my long tour in South America, I was homesick twice," he grinned—"once for Italy and once for the United States."

He is scheduled to make one address at Catholic University and another at Fordham University in New York before leaving the United States for Italy late this month. Dates for the lectures have not been set.

Do Wet Streets Cause Rain?

Do High Prices Cause Inflation?

WET STREETS no more cause rain than high prices cause inflation.

Wet streets are the result of rain. High prices are the disastrous result of inflation.

In order to halt inflation we must first understand its cause.

Inflation comes when the flow of money into the markets is greater than the flow of goods into the markets.

Trying to control the result of inflation—high prices—therefore, is putting the cart before the horse.

That's why a way must be found—and quickly—to bring the flow of money (demand) into better balance with the flow of goods (supply). That is the only way to reduce the inflationary pressures which drive prices up.

At the same time, we all want to maintain the standard of living of the American people, and provide the necessary amount of aid to foreign nations.

To accomplish all three of these high purposes, the following 12-point program is offered by the National Association of Manufacturers—in the public interest.

Twelve Forward Steps to Halt Inflation

1. Reduce government spending by maximum efficiency in administration; eliminating excessive government personnel and activities; and postponing all government expenditures not immediately necessary.

2. Provide funds for further capital investment by making an immediate and substantial reduction of individual income tax rates.

3. Adopt a systematic plan for paying off the public debt, with provision for a minimum annual debt retirement of $2½ billion.

4. Offer, and vigorously promote, a new long-term government bond issue having an interest-bearing rate attractive to individual investors; the proceeds to be used to retire government bonds held by banks.

5. Discourage inflationary expansion of bank credit by permitting interest rates to seek their own levels free of government domination.

6. Redoubling, by management, of its efforts to increase production, to lower unit costs, and to pass on the benefits of such increased productivity to the public.

7. Encourage management to plow back earnings and increase output, by eliminating present U.S. Treasury pressure on business to distribute at least 70 per cent of its profits as dividends.

8. Encourage labor leaders to forego demands for further general increases in wages without a corresponding increase in productivity, except in cases of gross inequity.

9. Set aside all restrictions on individual productivity not essential to the safety and health of employees, and remove all feather-bedding rules.

10. Give emergency foreign relief in goods, not in dollars, with an American relief agency making the necessary purchases of whatever goods in whatever markets, here or abroad, prove most economical, and identify them as having been provided by the United States.

11. Finance, to the greatest extent feasible, reconstruction loans to foreign countries, as distinct from gifts and grants, through the World Bank and private sources rather than out of taxes collected from the American public.

12. Provide maximum incentive for increased production abroad by requiring foreign nations, as a condition of our aid, to establish sound currencies and to modify and eventually eliminate price control and other controls over the internal production and distribution of commodities.

Toss Out Classics, Algebra, Commission Advises Schools

By The Associated Press

For up to 80 per cent of their students, high schools might well toss out such courses as algebra and foreign languages, such literary classics as Silas Marner and Il Penseroso, a commission which wants the Nation's secondary school curricula revamped suggested yesterday.

The commission added that colleges may need to change their teaching techniques and courses as much as high schools do—and that one of the greatest needs is for moral and ethical training.

The Commission on Life Adjustment Education for Youth, appointed by the United States Commissioner of Education for a three-year term, proposes to help United States high schools readjust themselves to provide adequate training for the estimated four million students—60 per cent of their enrollments—who are attending classes aimlessly, studying subjects of no particular application to their future. An additional three million have dropped out of high schools for lack of satisfactory courses.

Decisive Action Imperative

"Decisive action is imperative to satisfy the required needs of all youth today and in the future," Benjamin C. Willis, Yonkers, N. Y., school superintendent and commission chairman, told a news conference following the commission's first meeting.

"We cannot maintain our national security or world position on the present level of educational attainment."

Commission Member J. C. Wright of the American Vocational Association, said one remedy may be to substitute supervised work experience for classwork for students not taking vocational courses and not planning to go to college.

These students, he said, would work not less than 20 hours a week—afternoons and weekends—in department stores, drug stores, offices of various kinds, and would receive special training in attitudes toward employers, new labor practices and allied practical subjects.

"Many high schools in 35 States already are offering this type of training for life work," Wright said.

Won't Lay Out Program

"The commission will attempt to accelerate the rate of adoption of these and other good ideas. It will not lay out a program, but will help schools and localities develop their own programs to meet their own needs."

The Rev. Bernardine Myers, Fenwick High School, Oak Park, Ill., said the instruction must emphasize factors such as honesty and clean living because "a nation decays when its conscience dies."

Francis L. Bacon, Evanston, Ill., high school principal, said such standard courses as algebra, chronological-statistical history and certain literary works might be dispensed with for all but the 20 per cent of students who plan to enter college.

John Dale Russell, United States director of higher education, said increasing numbers of college students are not headed for professions and need a readjusted study course almost as badly as do most high school students.

Other members of the commission are Paul D. Collier, Hartford, Conn.; M. D. Mobley, Atlanta, Ga.; Clyde A. Erwin, Raleigh, N. C., and Marcella Rita Lawler, Olympia, Wash.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

ALL SHARPENED UP is the new Balalaika revue. Between Tavaceff's furious dagger tossing, the yard-long saber swung by Youry Yourlo in his Caucasian dance and the giant razor of the barber shop skit, there's cutlery flying all over the place. Other angles make the show keen, too. Notably the lovely sopranoing of Dena Larena, Grisha (Haroldski) Veo's finely nuanced violin solos, Michel Michon's nostalgic gypsy songs and Maestro Grisha Gregory's excursion into bongo drumming.

Michel Michon At the Balalaika

Inconsistent is the word for pretty Paula Rae of Bob Knight's Lounge Riviera band. She sang "My Hero," followed by "The Gentleman Is a Dope."

A BLONDE CHRISTMAS is coming to the King Cole Room. The now-famed Evelyn Knight, former K. C. R. singer, will spend Christmas in Washington with her little son, Andy. When the tree is trimmed she'll probably be dropping into the King Cole Room to renew fond memories.

THE PLAYFUL CHAMPIONS, Marge and Gower, now dancing in the Mayflower Lounge, infuse deft high comedy into every number. It's all so light and natural that the effect is that of a couple of young people in high spirits having a good time. But their dancing has the expertness and finesse of long and rigorous training. Most amusing was their "Three Blind Mice" which shifts from fantastic hipetty-hops to a mad sort of country dance. But every number is on the wonderful side, including fast impressions of Roy Bolger, the Diaghileff Ballet and 1907 vaude. You can catch this ingratiating and magnetic act at the afternoon cocktail hour as well as the supper session.

There's a fresh revue at the Lotus with Winnie Hoveler and her saucy little dancers in parade and raz-ma-taz numbers . . . Walter Long, former dance star of "Toplitzky of Notre Dame," is now at the Casino Royal.

THE KEYBOARD RUN. It's no use trying to stump Harold Mertis, piano soloist of the Neptune Room. Nat Conway, leader of Neptune's Shoreliners, has been trying to do that thing, hasn't succeeded yet . . . The Brown Derby's piano veteran, George Berg, is also a master strategist when it comes to pleasing the customers. He keeps up with all the new songs, knows all the old ones, plays excellent classics . . . Carl Parker of the Dubonnet Room's Atom Band plays beautifully relaxing interludes. If you have a yen to hear "Liebestraum," a spot of Chopin or Morton Gould, tell Carl and he'll do something about it . . . Rodolfo Cornejo, dynamic Filipino pianist, played piano at Cafe Caprice last year as a casual visitor. Manager Merrick of the Roger Smith Hotel happened to hear him, promptly started contract arrangements.

BEE HIVE BUSY is the Old New Orleans. This elegant spot is now open for luncheon, is also staging a cocktail hour between 3 and 6. Frank Coviello of Bob Simpson's band in the O. N. O. Sazerac Room has taken to singing in French.

Almost as many men as leddies attend the Saturday fashion luncheons in the Pall Mall Room. The gents try hard to look as though they'd simply dropped in by accident.

BARGAIN! BARGAIN! A press release from the Club Cairo says of Jackie Miles, "In a period of less than five years his yearly salary check upped from $175 to $3500." Thus it seems that Sam Schanker is getting Jackie to panic the Cairo for around $75 a week, the most wonderful bargain he's ever had. Congratulations, Mr. Schanker! Also, it looks as though Jackie worked at Paul Young's a few years ago for something like $3 a week. Murder! Who'd have thought Paul would have treated Jackie like that. P. S. It's also sure that press agent Berry Buschell is going to call me up and say, "You knew darned well that I meant 'weekly', not yearly'."

OF HEAD MEN. Sam Orfanos, owner of the Silver Fox, elegant Bethesda spot, is also the owner of the downtown Robin Hood . . . Jacob Pike, owner of Ruby Foo's, seems to be the only Harvard man in the restaurant business in Washington . . . Bill Kavakos divides his time between his Club K. and various sports interests including his Northeast stadium and softball teams . . .

WHAT ABOUT Housing?

WHY ARE HOUSES SO SCARCE? WHY DO THEY COST SO MUCH?

WHO CAN CURE THE TROUBLE?

See how your ideas check with the best answers we can get to these questions!

WHY ARE HOUSES SO SCARCE?

Houses have been scarce for fifteen years, but it's worse since the war. The Joint Congressional Committee studying this subject claims 1,500,000 houses a year are needed for the next 10 to 12 years.

1. Seven million more families must be housed. Since 1940 there are 7 million more families, but less than 3 million more houses. Hence, there's less actual space per family than prewar.

2. War brought more people to crowded neighborhoods. Millions of people came to industrial communities for war work—and have since stayed.

3. New millions of people now have got the money to buy new houses. People don't want just the same amount and kind of space they had before the war. The majority, especially in the lower income groups, have more money and are making more money than ever before. These people rightly want more space and better space. They are trying to escape the usual "doubling up." They are seeking to spread out in more attractive surroundings. This puts a heavy extra demand against the supply of homes inadequate even by the old prewar standards.

4. People normally buy a house last—if they can buy other products first. People have found they do not get as good a value for their money when they buy a house as when they buy an automobile, a refrigerator, a washing machine, or a radio. Sensational scientific advances have been made in the materials used in automobiles and other factory-made things people want. Even more sensational advances have been made in machinery and methods that "lengthen a man's arm" and use mechanical power to increase tremendously the results from the worker's human effort. These improved materials and methods make possible the enjoyment of automobiles and electric appliances by the whole public—and at a price that usually takes constantly fewer and fewer man-hours of a worker's pay to buy.

5. Old-fashioned methods hinder housing progress. Housing continues to employ too much the same materials, tools, and methods that were in common use at the beginning of the Christian era. Some notable progress has been made, but still not nearly enough use is being made of mass production methods proved in other lines.

WHY IS HOUSE COST SO HIGH?

Lack of improved methods. Houses cost too much before the war, and they still do, because improvements in materials and labor-saving methods in housing have not kept pace with improvements in making other things.

Higher cost of labor and materials. In addition, the cost of labor and materials has naturally gone up since the war in the building field just as it has in other lines.

Too many of us still want a house that's different. We couldn't each have the automobile, refrigerator, washing machine, radio, and good suit if we insisted on each item being "custom built" or "tailor made"—different from everyone else's.

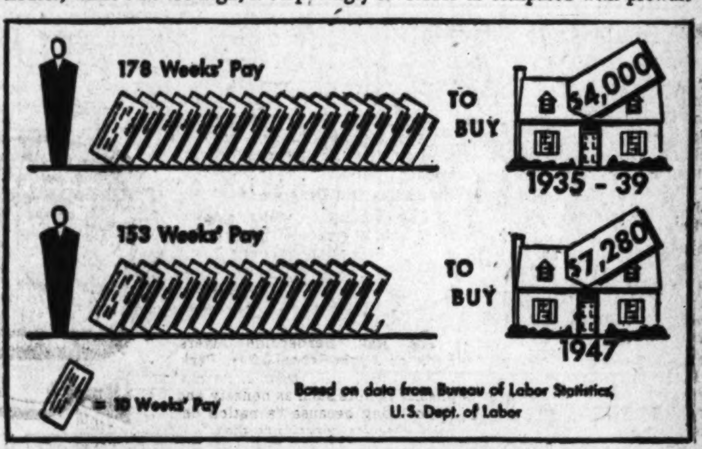
Bidding up the prices over true values. Many more people need and are looking for more space. Many are looking for better housing. This piles up the demand. Whenever millions of people continue to bid against each other for something already scarce, they simply raise the price—on the open, "gray," or "black" market—regardless of what any individual, group, or government can do about it.

IS ANY PROGRESS BEING MADE?

1947 record is near all-time peak. The biggest home-building year was in 1925 when 937,000 houses were built. This year, 825,000 new homes will be built and lots more repaired and modernized. One family in every 40 is getting a new house this year.

The housebuilding industry—which is made up largely of small contractors erecting one to five houses a year—has progressed nearly as far in two years after this war as it did in the first seven years after the first World War. This progress has been made by the housebuilding industry despite difficulties greater than ever faced before.

Less work earns the money to buy a house. The cost of these new houses, while still too high, is surprisingly favorable as compared with prewar.



These new houses cost less in proportion now than food, labor, clothing, and many other goods and services that Americans feel are essential. A house that cost $4,000 in 1935 costs today $7,280, which looks high and is high. But the important thing to remember is that in the 1935-1939 period the house would have taken 178 weeks' pay of the average American worker to buy, whereas today it takes 153 weeks' pay—or 13% less in real wages.

HOW CAN PROGRESS BE STEPPED UP?

A big supply of new houses that are more convenient, more attractive, and that can be bought for even less man-hours of pay can be made available, if each individual—and the whole public—will do his or her part. Here's the best we can find to suggest for you—and for us all—to do:

1. Don't buy a house now unless you have to. If you bid against others now for a new house or an old one, it will keep prices up or even send them higher. If you can put up with your present inconveniences a little while longer, you will be serving your own interest as well as helping those who are desperate for any place at all. Every dollar you put in the bank now, instead of in a house, will make your next home better and cheaper.

2. Put off buying other scarce things for the present. Let those who can't wait buy automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines, and other products. The people who buy these other things won't be trying to buy houses right away, and the pressure will be eased on the market for homes. Also, part of the demand for more and better space is due simply to money "burning the pockets" of people who can't yet get delivery on some other things they need or want. So don't add to the scarcity of these other things! Save your money till later when it will buy more housing—and more of other things! Meanwhile, help produce more of these other things to satisfy the demand.

3. Fight against spread-the-work regulations that make houses cost more. Old fashioned union regulations and "featherbedding" that help keep building costs up must be abolished, if houses are going to be built to sell at a more attractive price. These changes can be made only by public knowledge and pressure. Help public demand correct any union rules that keep skilled and unskilled men now in housebuilding from doing their work efficiently by modern standards; any rules that keep needed new workers from entering housebuilding! Many unions—and a great many union members—do not believe in these practices and would welcome public support to stop these unnecessary costs.

4. Demand the end of "horse-and-buggy" building codes in your city. Many localities require builders to comply with rules that were written in 1900. These codes in many cases prevent the use of more economical and otherwise improved materials and methods. They refuse to permit shortcuts that are thoroughly proven. You and your neighbors, your lodge, your club, or your union should be interested in looking into them.

5. Demand the same modern methods that benefit your job. If automobiles were built like houses, hardly anybody could afford automobiles. We should demand modern labor-saving methods when building new homes. Insist that the city codes and the unions permit the use of factory-built assemblies and components. Demand that the contractors mechanize their production job like yours in the factory or office, or as your friend's job on the farm is getting to be mechanized. Demand a selection from a line of standardized models, so you will not be paying for a "tailor made" job—or, rather, a hand-made instead of a "production line" product.

6. Limit government activity in housebuilding. Governments may have to get into slum clearance and other really extraordinary situations. But even this has the same effect as all other government building activity in fields occupied normally by the private citizen. A government builds because costs are too high for people to risk their savings in such building. Costs are kept from coming down simply by the government's willingness to pay them. When the government then sells or rents houses below cost, thousands of individual citizens with savings give up any idea of risking those savings on houses. Such well-intentioned government activities simply make unsafe the investment of savings in houses. And any apparent difference in cost between government and private housing is passed on to you in the form of direct taxes or taxes in the prices of other things you buy.

7. Save money—put it in the bank or buy U. S. Savings Bonds. More production is important, but it alone cannot solve the mounting price problem. We have got to stop using up our present savings if we are to begin buying our present output with our present income.

Not only have we got to stop using up present savings, but we have got to start making new savings equal to what we are giving away abroad—if we don't, we will simply use up all our current income—and we'll get for it only what America has made—less what we give to Europe.

ONLY YOU CAN CURE THE TROUBLE

Only you, and you—and all of us as individuals—can cure the trouble through acting in full knowledge of these facts we face.

The More Things Change, the More They're the Same

The president of the Connecticut Avenue Citizens Association, Harry C. Grove of 2708 Cathedral ave. nw., has been around long enough to have become philosophical.

The problems of today sound rather familiar, says Harry, to those who were around during the first World War, and recall this poem:

My Tuesdays are meatless
My Wednesdays are wheatless
I am geting more eatless each day.
My home it is heatless
My bed it is sheetless
They're all sent to the YMCA.
The barrooms are treatless
My coffee is sweetless
Each day I get poorer and wiser.
My stockings are feetless
My trousers are seatless
My God, how I do hate the Kaiser.

PEOPLE ARE NICER THAN ANYBODY DEPT.

Some female customer had obviously forgotten the purse, and William P. Streets, jr., of 2420 14th st. nw. opened it, to see what was inside.

As he might have suspected, it contained everything but a grand piano and a set of skid chains.

But in addition to the usual junk, there was money. Lots of it. And some papers that appeared to be of considerable importance to somebody.

STREETS

If he's Bill Streets, he hustles around to return the stuff to its rightful owner and then flatly refuses to accept a reward.

E. M. F., who forwards the story, writes:

"I'm so heartily ashamed of my stupidity in forgetting the purse that I ask that you do not publish my name.

"Just tell 'em what a wonderful guy Bill is. I've already written to his employers, the Washington Tire & Rubber Co. at 14th and Belmont—and I'd like to sing his praises to everybody else."

So would I. Your purse was the second one that Bill found and returned this week.

MORE ON WILSON

The readers refuse to forget Earl Wilson's caustic remarks about Washington's secretaries.

According to Mr. Wilson, our gals are "gourd-shaped, and wear long petticoats and high-button shoes."

But the New York saloon editor is put in his place by Mrs. Mearle Simmons of Rockville, Md., who observes:

"If we wear 'em down to our ankles, let Mr. Wilson remember that we're forced to by the fashion designers of his city."

MISCELLANY

Irving Grossberg of 1113 K st. nw. thinks that every single man should have one of his lists of 26 reasons for not getting married. (The 26th one is: "No girl will have me.") . . . Today's thanks for streetcar token contributions go to: Mrs. Philip P. Schaffner of 8005 Eastern ave., Silver Spring, Md.; E. C. Donnelly of 202 N. George Mason dr., Arlington, Va.; The McGarveys of 7218 Bradley blvd., Bethesda, Md., and an anonymous donor who wrapped his tokens in stationery from San Francisco's Clift Hotel, included two Atlanta tokens, and mailed his letter from Washington . . . Al Brier wants to know if we saw the recent edition of the Official Gazette of the Patent Office which revealed that a patent had been issued for a bathtub with a built-in safe . . . For watered stock, Al?

PERSONAL NOTES

Lucille R. McDonald, 1153 Summit st. ne.: Good catch. You read the column more carefully than I do. The printers reversed the captions, and I failed to backstop them. I've sentenced myself to stand in the corner for an hour.

ADD SIGNS

Ernest L. Andes of 821 Crittenden st. nw. saw this one in a little shop on New York ave. nw., near 8th st.:

"More than a million of the finest people we know have passed through these doors."

BY THE WAY—

Marie Rightsell of 3107 16th st. nw. wonders whether you happened to see the real estate ad which said:

". . . containing 21 rooms with 6½ baths occupied by foreign government."

Do you suppose, Marie, that at the start of each day the Prime Minister gathers his medicine cabinet about him?

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—The American premiere of "Beauty and the Beast," by the famed French playwright Jean Cocteau, will be held in New York next month. It will be the first Cocteau film shown here since his "Blood of a Poet," an art-theater classic for which he was attacked by the French Surrealists. The Surrealist group met to take measures, and unanimously voted to lynch Cocteau—but none of them volunteered to perform the assignment. They therefore decided on a subtler revenge: They spread a report through Paris that Cocteau had committed suicide. An elaborate funeral immediately was arranged.

When Cocteau came home at dawn and learned of this, he revised the list of his pallbearers and changed the order of march of his funeral cortege.

Adolf A. Berle jr. is the one principally responsible for the switch in Haiti's U.N. vote, in favor of Palestine's partition. Berle is counsel to the Haitian Government.

Mary Pickford is suing Gabriel Pascal, with whom she had entered into partnership last year. Come what may, however, Pascal will not relinquish his exclusive contracts with G. B. Shaw. . . . The Hungarian-born Pascal and the Russian-born Gregory Ratoff are making films in Rome now. The Romans are puzzled at discovering that these heavy-accent men are the sole representatives of the English-speaking film industry.

Last week, at the Waldorf-Astoria, a seventy-third birthday dinner was given in honor of Dr. Chaim Weizmann, head of the Institute of Research Science in Palestine. Serge Koussevitzky brought his entire Boston Symphony Orchestra there to play a concert as a tribute to the distinguished scientist-statesman . . . When the concert and dinner ended, the conductor and the guest of honor met. "I am Serge Koussevitzky," said the symphony conductor. "You may remember me. We met 51 years ago."

Alfred Hitchcock's first independent production, "Rope," also will be his first color picture. To familiarize himself with color-processing Hitchcock has spent the last three weeks as a member of the laboratory personnel at the Technicolor plant in Hollywood, punching in every morning at 9 and out every evening at 6.

The races of mankind section of Hammond's new World Atlas will include a piece by Malvina Hoffman, the sculptress, in which she tells of a man who went to Africa to record the music and songs of a tribe. His offensive attitude made the tribal chief resent him, but his tempting rewards finally induced the chief to permit the recordings. When the man came home and had the tribal recordings translated he found that each song was a variation of the statement: "I wonder if the white man thinks he can really fool me."

Briggs Is Assigned to Tough Job

By Drew Pearson

The State Department has put Ellis O. Briggs, United States Ambassador to Uruguay, on one of the hottest spots currently occupied by any member of the Diplomatic Corps. And that envoy is appropriately burned up about it.

BRIGGS

When officials in Washington learned that Communist leaders from all over Latin America planned to gather in Montevideo about mid-December, Briggs was peremptorily instructed to prevent the meeting. He wasn't told how the department expected him to accomplish this—just ordered to see that the conference didn't take place.

Ambassador Briggs promptly consulted with Uruguayan Foreign Minister Marques Castro, who reported that his government had no official knowledge of the gathering, although admitting that it was persistently rumored. Then he added what Briggs already knew—that liberal Uruguayan immigration laws make it possible for citizens of any neighboring republic to enter the country without even a passport.

Briggs tried to explain these points to Washington, but the State Department in effect replied: "If the meeting can't be stopped at one end, stop it at the other. The meeting won't be held if Prestes (Luiz Carlos Prestes, No. 1 Brazilian Communist) can't attend."

That was when Ambassador Briggs really got mad. He found it hard to understand why he was supposed to move in on a matter which ought by rights to be handled by the American Embassy in Rio de Janeiro.

"When will they ever learn in Washington that we can't maintain friendly relations with these countries if we're going to disregard national sovereignty whenever it happens to interfere with our plans?" he complained to close associates.

Nevertheless, Briggs obeyed instructions and flew up to Rio on November 19 to see what could be done to prevent Prestes from leaving Brazil. Incidentally, Ambassador Briggs corresponds regularly with his former chief, former Assistant Secretary of State Spruille Braden. Briggs' letters express pessimism and "discouragement" over United States policies in South America as a whole. He has been particularly caustic in criticizing public statements by Ambassador James Bruce in Buenos Aires, who, he says, "makes Messersmith seem positively hostile toward Peron, by comparison."

Can Business Control Inflation?

Federal Reserve Board insiders report that more and more of the country's big business leaders are coming to the view that voluntary controls on prices will not work and that Congress eventually will have to enact the President's 10-point program of compulsory controls on prices, credits, allocations, etc., if the war on inflation is to be won.

Typical example of the ineffectiveness of voluntary controls—or self-policing by industry—is the wild competitive war that has broken out in the mail-order industry since the expiration of Regulation W, under which the Government required a one third down payment and a year to pay for goods purchased on the instalment plan.

When Regulation W expired November 1, Sears, Roebuck officials, in a sincere desire to hold the line against inflation, decided to keep the Government's credit restrictions voluntarily in effect by requiring down payments of 25 per cent on most of its merchandise—only 8 per cent lower than the compulsory down payment under Regulation W.

However, this plan had to be scrapped. For Montgomery Ward, the leading competitor of Sears, Roebuck, announced it would require a down payment of only 10 per cent. Rather than lose a lot of business to its No. 1 competitor, Sears also was forced to scale its down payment to 10 per cent on most merchandise.

Meantime, many other installment firms are requiring no down payment at all. It was such "easy credit" buying that led to the last depression, and that is why more and more of the Nation's business leaders reluctantly are coming around to the view that the only realistic way to deal with mounting prices, credit expansion and other inflation germs is by returning to compulsory controls.

Whisky Holiday Nets Little

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has worked out some revealing statistics showing the the whisky boys actually doubled production while they haggled and stalled over the whisky holiday. First word of a shutdown came in September, and the production of beverage alcohol promptly shot up eight million gallons over the previous two months. Measured in grain, the consumption jumped a full million bushels.

The Federal Diary
by Jerry Kluttz

Democratic Committee Backs Sen. Wagner's Son to Head Housing

PHA: The Democratic National Committee is behind Robert Wagner, jr., of New York, to be commissioner of Public Housing Administration. Wagner is the son of the senior Senator from New York. His father is the author of the act that created the Federal public housing agency.

PER DIEM: Senator Kilgore (D., W. Va.), yesterday introduced a bill to raise the travel expense of Federal workers from $6 to $8 a day. His bill also would increase the travel allowance of Federal workers who are ordered to use their private cars for official business to 7½ cents a mile.

The Kilgore bill was referred to the Senate Expenditures Committee. This committee is considering a similar bill which is sponsored by Senator Aiken (R., Vt.), its chairman.

HONOR: All the various postal organizations have teamed up to stage a testimonial dinner for career-man Jesse Donaldson who has been nominated to be Postmaster General. The dinner is to be given next Thursday at the Mayflower. The chairman is Vincent Burke, the city postmaster.

ARLINGTON FARMS: Officials of this big Government Girl dormitory flatly deny reports that a raise in rents is planned. They say that the rent issue hasn't even been discussed for at least six months. So, the 4000 girls there can forget about the rumors.

LOYALTY: A committee of CIO union presidents called on Attorney General Tom C. Clark earlier this week to ask him if any CIO unions were on his list of subversive organizations. Specifically, the delegates wanted to know if CIO's left-wing United Public Workers was on the list. Clark would only say, it's reported, that the matter is being studied.

Among those who called on Clark were Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, and Abram Flaxer, UPWA president. Reuther is currently purging his union of Communist elements.

P.S.: The list of organizations was made public last night. It did not include any CIO unions.

DECISIONS: The U. S. Court of Claims this week handed down two important decisions affecting Federal workers.

One case involved Calvin I. Kephart, an employe of the Interstate Commerce Commission, who was reclassified to a P-5 job. Kephart claimed he was entitled to a P-6 position, and took his case to the Court of Claims.

The court ruled in favor of Kephart. It decided that he was entitled to a P-6 job and it ordered ICC to pay him the difference between the salaries of the P-5 and P-6 jobs from the time he was reclassified.

A second case was that of Sylvia Weinstein, who was laid off from the Navy Department. Miss Weinstein claimed she was illegally discharged and she sought her salary for the time she had lost. The court denied her appeal.

RETIREMENT: It now appears that GOP Senate Leader Robert Taft will have his own bill to liberalize the Civil Service retirement system. This is reported to be the Taft plan:

To introduce a substitute to the House-approved Stevenson bill when it's called up in the Senate. The Taft bill is said to include all the benefits in the Stevenson bill, plus benefits for children under 18 of Federal workers who die in the service.

NOTES: Henry Roundtree has resigned as executive secretary of the Philippine War Damage Commission. He will take another Federal post . . . Federal worker credit unions are reported to be doing a big business. Employes in large numbers are reported to be borrowing to buy Christmas presents, and to help meet higher living costs . . . Patent Office will not require a doctor's certificate for less than three days of sick leave except in rare cases.

FEPC: Chat Patterson, chairman of the American Veterans Committee, yesterday urged the President to establish a fair employment practices commission as a part of the Civil Service Commission to guard against discrimination in the Federal service.

INFLATION: The Administration now plans to fight inflation with the existing Federal agencies. Commerce Secretary Harriman yesterday told a congressional committee that no new anti-inflation agency is planned. The Commerce Department can be expected to get most of whatever controls Congress approves. This means that Commerce may be called on to hire 1000 or more additional employes.

Film Premiere, With Governor, Excites Luray

For First Showing Of 'Visiting Virginia'; 200 Guests Attend

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Luray, Va., Dec. 4.—As every Virginian knows, Virginia is the "Cradle of Democracy," the "Mother of Presidents."

But it isn't going to be long now before the whole world is going to know these things about the Old Dominion. Tonight, here in Luray, a picture, "Visiting Virginia," got its sendoff and started on its way to what is expected to be an eventual audience of 80 million moviegoers.

The people of Luray turned out solidly for this world premiere—their first. The town's largest movie theater was packed to its 900-seat capacity and the rear of the theater was jammed with other townspeople.

Governor Tuck Speaks

Virginia's Gov. William M. Tuck told the audience he was sure "the people of the Old Dominion will be pleased to share with their neighbors the scenic and historic views in the production."

Virginia, he continued, has traditions which can only be maintained by the education of her people through the basic principles which have contributed so much to our advancement as a free Nation."

In the movie, an MGM travelogue narrated by James A. Fitzpatrick, there was evidence that Virginia is still "old South." Her molasses still is pressed in the oldest way known to man—walking a mule round a circular mill. Her tobacco, one of the State's major crops, is cured in tobacco barns; her fishermen still go down to tidewater and sustain themselves in a manner customary even before Biblical times.

It was evident, however, that the Luray residents and other Virginians who attended the premiere are proud of the State's heritage as pictured in the travelogue. William Wright, conservation commission chairman, said it as wall as anyone:

"The State couldn't afford to make a picture like this, but it's worth a lot to us to know that people all over the world can learn this way about our peculiar blessings."

Guests Visit Caverns

The premiere started off this afternoon when guests attended a recital at the Luray carillon tower, then visited two of the town's famous caverns. Then there was a visit to Limair II, one of the town's best known mansions, and reputedly to be the first house to be air-conditioned. It is cooled by air from the caverns.

The long motorcade, with more than 200 persons aboard, rolled from Limair to the Mimslyn Hotel in the heart of Luray. State police had stopped all through traffic to permit the cars to pass. After a buffet supper at the Mimslyn, the guests, led by the Luray High School band, went to the Page Theater for the showing.

Townspeople lined the parade route, and waved greetings to Tuck and other officials.

Officials On Hand

Luray's Mayor, H. Y. Dyche, and three members of the Luray World Premiere Committee beamed at the throng. The committee members were Robert C. Harnsberger, Denver F. Aleshire and E. W. Lauck.

In addition to Governor Tuck, other State officials attending included:

State Delegate Carl Louderback of Stanley, Representative Burr Powell Harrison of Winchester, L. E. Lichford and Jay Johns, members of the conservation commission, State Senators Ben F. Pitts of Fredericksburg and Raymond R. Guest of Warren County.

Mrs. Walter Young Funeral Service Set for Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Walter I. Young, 29-year-old Alexandria mother who hanged herself Wednesday, will be held today at 11 a. m. at the Cunningham Funeral Home, 809 Cameron st., Alexandria. Burial will be at Ivy Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Young hanged herself from a water pipe in her home at 1219 W. Braddock rd., after phoning a friend of her intentions. Only clew given to the cause of her suicide was that she had been in poor health.

A native of New York City, Mrs. Young moved to Alexandria with her husband 10 years ago. They had bought their home just a few months ago. Besides her husband, an Alexandria lawyer, Mrs. Young is survived by her 6-year-old son, Stephen.

Mrs. Huff Obtains Nevada Divorce

Dr. Richard D. Huff, a medical officer at the District Training School at Laurel, Md., was divorced in Las Vegas, Nev., yesterday by his wife, Mrs. Evelyn Huff, Los Angeles socialite-heiress.

The decree was granted by District Judge Frank McNamee on a charge of mental cruelty, the Associated Press reported.

Citizenship Textbook Probe Begins

How much judgment does a ninth grade pupil have?

That was a basic question underlying a probe begun yesterday by a House subcommittee of the controversial textbook, "Building Citizenship," which has been twice "cleared" in Board of Education investigations.

The 68-year-old educator-author of the textbook, Dr. R. O. Hughes, agreed yesterday to change certain phrases of the book which may be "misinterpreted." But he firmly denied that the book is "irreligious, un-American and pro-Communist," as charged by the District Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Charles S. Sullivan, jr., chairman of the VFW Committee on Un-American Activities, told the Health, Education and Welfare Subcommittee of the House District Committee that the book is read by "impressionable" children.

Sections "Misleading"

The VFW labeled some portions and said others are subject to of the book entirely misleading, "interpretation and discussion." Any faults of American government, Supllivan said, should not be stressed to children of such a grade.

Dr. Hughes countered:

"When he questions the suitability of discussing these (questions) with students of the ninth grade, I'm afraid he doesn't know what pupils of the ninth grade think about."

Dr. Hughes is author of numerous school books and for 35 years a teacher or supervisor in Pittsburgh schools.

The VFW attached comments on American political parties and such quotes in the book as this one by Russian immigrants:

"If money in pocket, Americans like you; if not, don't care and swear at you . . . America place like heaven for rich, but like hell for foreign worker."

Book Being Revised

Dr. Hughes, who said the book is now in process of revision, stated that it should be considered as a whole and not by phrases out of context. He termed the reference to a Russian immigrant as "purely accidental," and said the book went on to point out that America is a land of opportunity for immigrants.

"The last thing I would put in any book is an argument in favor of the adoption of Communism . . . One of the things we ought to do is show our young people how to think for themselves . . . If we write a book and just tell them, 'this is it,' we certainly aren't developing the kind of citizens we should have in this country."

The VFW declared that such questions as, "How many high schools accomodating any number of pupils, up to 2500, could be built for the cost of one modern battleship?" are "calculated to prejudice pupils against national defense."

The statement which brought the "irreligious" charge was: "If there is another world in which a man will be punished or rewarded for the way he lived here, there is a strong force to make him live better than he otherwise would. Perhaps this is a comparatively low motive, but it works well with a great many people."

Question of Emphasis

Dr. Hughes said this question hinged on the emphasis placed on the word "if," and would be rephrased. This was also a point where the Board of Education, urging several changes in text, recommended rephrasing.

Representative Harold F. Youngblood (R., Mich.) declared, "It seems to me that that word 'if,' in my mind, at least, should be stricken out at this very minute."

Maynard B. DeWitt, civic affairs director of the American Veterans Committee here, testified that "AVC is greatly concerned about this entire proceeding."

AVC believes, he said, "that if America is to prosper, children must have ample time in the classroom to study pros and cons of American Government."

The hearing is scheduled to resume at 10 a. m., Saturday, with attendance limited to witnesses and the press.

Patients Pick Beauty

Miss Mildred Runcle, 2618 S. Veitch st., Arlington, was judged the winner in a beauty contest at Walter Reed Hospital last night by four patients acting as judges. She will receive a free course in modeling at the Compton Model Agency here.

Runners up in the field of 21 contestants were Miss Barbara McNally, 3654 Warder st. nw., and Miss Kathleen Slattery, 4939 Eskridge terrace nw.

Judges were Tech. Sergt. James S. Carro, Kingston, N. Y.; Sergt. Bob Kimber, New York City; Corpl. William Van Horn, Greenville, S. C., and Corpl. Garland Long, Burlington, Va.

President Sends Her the 'Missing' Present

"HAPPY BIRTHDAY, SHARON"—Mrs. Frank Meenehan shows her daughter, Sharon, who observed her fourth birthday anniversary yesterday in Georgetown Hospital, the Mother Goose book sent by President Harry S. Truman and the cake baked by the child's grandmother, Mrs. A. K. Staley. It was Sharon who was disappointed Monday when a "president" came to her room instead of a "present." President Truman made that up to her and on a fly leaf of the book he wrote: "To Sharon Meenehan—Here's that present you thought you were getting yesterday. Get well in a hurry. Best wishes to you. League Favors Negro Training At Gallinger

Questionnaire Solicits Opinion of Members On Raising D. C. Funds

The board of the "Voteless" D. C. League of Women Voters yesterday went on record in favor of the current move to admit Negro medical students and physicians to Gallinger Hospital.

Position of the league was stated in a letter to the District Commissioner and in another to Federal Security Administrator, Oscar Ewing.

The League advised the commissioners:

"Through accounts in newspapers the D. C. League of Women Voters' attention has been called to the possibility that Negro medical students and physicians may be admitted to Gallinger. The board of the league wishes to express its whole-hearted approval of such a move.

"We feel that this is in line with recent recommendations of the President's Committee on Civil Rights and is action long needed to give Negro medical students and physicians opportunity for specialized training. It is proper our municipal hospital take the lead in this. We note that Dr. Sweeney, superintendent of the hospital, believes that the arrangement will be mutually beneficial to doctors of both races. We agree and wish to urge you to support this measure."

Ewing was commended for his support of the plan to admit Negro physicians and medical students to Gallinger.

Both letters were signed by league president, Mrs. John F. Thomas.

Court Weighs McLean Gold Ingot Sale

A 20-pound chunk of gold, an assay from Thomas Walsh's original bonanza when "father struck it rich" at the turn of the century, will be sold to the Treasury Department if a District Court petition filed yesterday by executors of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean's estate is granted.

Cast in the shape of a ball, the ingot—almost pure gold— from one of Walsh's Colorado mines that made him fabulously wealthy, is owned jointly by the late Mrs. McLean's estate and that of her mother, Mrs. Carrie B. Walsh.

Because of a legal technicality, court permission is necessary to dispose of Mrs. McLean's estate half of the ingot. The former social leader's estate is stil in process of administration. Trustees for Mrs. Walsh's estate already have agreed to the sale.

Worth about $8000, the ingot has been lying in an American Security & Trust Co. vault since 1910. Actually, possession of the valuable piece of metal was illegal because of the Government order of the 1930s directing all gold be sold to the Treasury.

Attorneys for the McLean estate believe the ingot is comprised of metal obtained from Walsh's Bird Camp mine at Duray, Colo.

B'nai B'rith Service To Honor War Dead

The annual Sabbath memorial service dedicated by Wilner Aleph Zadek Aleph youth group of B'nai B'rith to those who died in World War II, will be held at 8:15 a. m. today at Adas Israel Synagogue, Sixth and I sts. nw.

Judah J. Shapiro of New York, associate national director of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations, will be the guest speaker. Horace Gold, adviser to the local group, will be moderator of a forum discussion.

Tenant Immune

Russian Gets 'Iron Curtain' In Suit Here

The mantle of diplomatic immunity was hung up in Municipal Court yesterday for protection of a Soviet Embassy employe whose landlord may try to evict him.

The landlord, Constantine Roumel of the O. K. Nut Co., 1109 7th st. nw., claims that some one has been leaving the water turned on in the apartment at 1483 Newton st. nw., which he leased to one Soviet employe, only to find later another one was occupying it.

The $47.50 a month flat originally was leased by Roumel to Boris Vasiliev, forme rassistant naval attache here. Since Vasiliev was transferred back to Russia some time prior to July, 1946, the place has been occupied by Dmitri K. Andreev, a clerk in the Soviet Embassy.

Roumel's suit before Judge Nadine Gallagher yesterday named Vasiliev as defendant. But Andreev intervened as the present occupant, through his attorney, Malcolm Knight, who was ready to produce rent receipts in Andreev's name. The landlord alleges that Vasiliev sublet the apartment without authority and is responsible for water damage, estimated at $25.

The State Department's R. D. Muir, acting chief of the Protocol Division, informed the court that the matter of diplomatic immunity had been overlooked when the missing Vasiliev was summoned to appear. Muir also pointed out that the present occupant would have diplomatic immunity in case Roumel tries to evict him.

Muir further reminded that the housing situation is bad in all the capitals of the world—he didn't mention Moscow specifically—and if diplomats' rights are not protected here, there's no assurance that our representatives' rights will be protected in foreign lands.

Gue Is Accused Of Refusing to Do Routine Work

A policeman with nearly 23 years service on the Metropolitan Police Department has been suspended for alleged insubordination, Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police superintendent, confirmed yesterday.

The suspended policeman is Pvt. Franklin R. Gue, 45, of 1415 Girard st. nw. The insubordination charge is being investigated by Capt. George R. Wallrodt of the Third Precinct.

Mjaor Barrett said the investigation resulted after Gue "refused to due routine police work."

"No one in the department will get away with that. I demand only eight hours of work a day of my men, but it must be eight hours of real work," the major said.

Gue's personnel record shows that on 11 occasions he has been tried either by the Police Trial Board or by the major and superintendent.

He was suspende from the force for eight months after an investigation concerning his activities and his association with persons of questionable character, the report states. When Gue was restored to duty, he was paid for the period of suspension.

Gue has been commended nine times for his police work, and on numerous occasions was injured in apprehending persons suspected of crime.

On October 3 he was fined $125 for failing and neglecting to communicate through the partol signal system and failure to patrol his beat.

On November 28, $10 of the $125 fine was remitted to him as a routine Christmas present. A small remission is normally given officers who are fined by the Police Trial Board and whose work is considered satisfactory after the fine is ordered.

One-Legged Toy Pistol Bandit Foiled by Teller at Riggs Bank

Spots Phoney Gun Of Man Seeking 'Christmas Money'

Eighty-four years ago the Riggs & Co. bank quickly honored a $5 check signed by Abraham Lincoln designating the payee only as a "colored man with one leg."

Yesterday, the Riggs National Bank wasn't so gracious with a "colored man with one leg" who aimed a toy pistol at Teller John J. Gorman, jr., and demanded $1000.

Gorman, noting the pistol was as phoney as a $3 bill, summoned Guard Claude M. Hughes, who held the man for police.

Booked at the 1st Precinct station on a charge of attempted robbery is Alfred Bowers, 35-year-old cook, who gave his address as 1714 7th st. nw.

Gorman, who lives at 3121 16th st. nw., said the man approached the pay window; told him "give me $1000 quick." Gorman eyed the "weapon" and summoned the guard. Meanwhile, the would-be bandit repeated his demand, then surrendered meekly to Hughes.

Police said he told them he wanted the money "for Christmas."

Lorton Aide Robbed

Mrs. Velma McNeil, 38, of 1113 Massachusetts ave. nw., custodial officer of Lorton Reformatory, told police that her pocketbook, containing $25 and a bracelet valued at $250, was snatched by a tall, thin Negro man wearing dark clothes about 7:30 last night near 1119 12th st. nw.

District Agrees To Widen Scope Of Murphy Trial

2 Broken Fists

Fire House Fight Here Investigated

Fire Chief Clement Murphy yesterday ordered a "complete" investigation of a fight Monday afternoon between a Fire Department captain and a private. The private suffered two broken fists.

Goldwater

The row, Deputy Chief J. A. Mayhew said; occurred between 4 and 6 p. m. Monday at Engine Co. No. 31, 4930 Connecticut ave. nw.

The participants were named as Capt. William Carroll, 45, of Engine Co. No. 7 at 347 K st. sw., who was off duty on sick leave at the time, and Pvt. Abraham Goldwater, 51, who was on duty at the time at the Connecticut ave. fire house.

Fifth Battalion Chief John L. Werheim, whose jurisdiction includes Engine Company No. 31, handed Myahew a written report at 5 p. m. yesterday on Goldwater's participation in the fight. Mayhew sid he had asked Carroll also to submit a written proof.

Mayhew said he would go over the reports with Frank G. Berry, the other deputy chief, and Fire Marshal R. C. Roberts. He declined, meanwhile, to comment on the incident.

Goldwater, who lives at 908 Quincy st. nw., was admitted at Bethseda Naval Hospital Tuesday morning for treatment for his injured fists and was released yesterday afternoon. He has been a member of the Fire Department here since 1926, except for four years in the Coast Guard Reserve during the war.

Goldwater and Carroll could not be reached.

Chief Murphy said he plans to ask subordinates why reporting the incident to his office was delayed. Although the incident occurred Monday, Battalion Chief Werheim did not report Goldwater's injuries to Deputy Chief Mayhew until about 8:30 a. m. yesterday, Murphy said.

"Regulations require that all injuries be reported immediately," Murphy said.

Both Carrol and Goldwater have good records as firemen, Murphy declared. Goldwater also received two commendations for firefighting in the Coast Guard.

Commissioners Give Green Light To Prosecutor And Trial Board

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Cracks opened yesterday in the District Commissioners' determination to keep the lid closed tight on the supersecret Corporation Counsel's report on charges that Fire Chief Clement Murphy demoralized his department.

Main break was the Commissioners' new decision to utter a modified "yes" in place of an earlier ironclad "no" to the question whether the scope of the Murphy trials should be broadened.

The commissioners had announced that the trial would be limited to the 15-month period after Murphy took office s chief of the Fire Department.

Yesterday they decided to leave it to Daniel B. Maher, special assistant corporation counsel who will prosecute the Murphy case, and to the trial board which will hear it to decide what evidence should be offered in the trial.

Acted on West's Advice

Commissioner Guy Mason disclosed that the Commissioners acted "principally" on the advice of Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West in deciding that the scope of the trial could be broadened. He said Maher concurred in the decision.

In a second development, Maher carried a copy of the Corporation Counsel's report on Murphy to the Capitol—and carried it right back to the District Building.

Maher conferred with Mabel Haller, clerk of the House District Committee, in line with instructions to Miss Haller from Committee Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) to look into the question of possible publication of the report.

After their conference, they handed reporters this statement to be given to Dirksen:

"The Commissioners feel that the affidavits and documents should not be released to anyone until such time as the Commissioners and you (Dirksen) can discuss them."

Dirksen Won't Comment

Dirksen would not comment on Maher's visit. He said earlier he planned to move very carefully in the case, so as not to prejudice either the trial or the rights of any individual.

A strong bid for having the scope of the trial broaded had come to the commissioners from William J. Rowan, attorney for Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, head of the local firefighters' association. Conroy touched off the Murphy probe by charging at a congressional hearing in June that the chief was demoralizing the department.

The Corporation Counsel's report on Murphy was based principally on testimony presented by witnesses from a list submitted by Conroy. Many of the events on which they were reported to have testified happened before Murphy became chief.

Lawyers Study Investigation Arrests Here

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A District Bar Association subcommittee considered the police practice of arrest for "investigation" at a two-hour meeting yesterday but withheld disclosure of its actio npending report to the full Civil Rights Committee.

The subcommittee on police activities, headed by Burr Tracy Ansell, took up evidence presented by The Washington Post that the police policy of arresting persons on the nonbailable, extra-legal charge of "investigation" is wide open to abuse.

A check of arrest books in 13 precinct stations over a 41-day period—October 1 through November 10—disclosed that more than 1000 persons were booked for "investigation." Of these, more than three fourths were held in confinement and later released without any charge being placed against them. Many were held more than 24 hours, some more than 48 hours.

The subcommittee, which also includes John Breckinridge, Robert M. Gray and Milton S. Kronheim, jr., agreed on a report yesterday, to be drawn up by Chairman Ansell and to be presented next week to John Wattawa, chairman of the full Civil Rights Committee.

Meanwhile, Senator James Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), chairman of the Democratic National Committee and chairman of the House District Subcommittee on Public Services, commented yesterday it would be "reasonable" to place a time limit on arrests for "investigation."

McGrath, a former United States solicitor general, said police had to have the power for arresting persons for "investigation," rather than charge them all for a crime immediately after arrest.

Some members of Congress have denounced the practice as unconstitutional and illegal; other Congressmen, together with the Washington Criminal Justice Association, have urged that the practice be legalized, and protected by safeguards; one has defended the practice. The District Commissioners have backed the police unqualifiedly.

Trade Board Polls 8000 On Sales Tax

The Board of Trade yesterday undertook to poll its 8000 members on the question of a retail sales tax for the District.

The questionnaire asked the members:

"If additional revenue is found necessary for the District, would you favor raising it by means of:

"(1) Addition of a 1-per-cent retail sales tax to the present tax structure?

"(2) Repeal of the personal income tax and substitution of a two-per-cent retail sales tax?

"(3) Other means to be suggested?"

The questions were printed on page 1 of the monthly Washington Board of Trade News. Members were asked to fill out the ballot and mail it to the board's Research Department.

Purpose of Poll

Purpose of the opinion poll, it was explained, is that the District Commissioners "will probably recommend" a two-per-cent sales tax beginning next summer to balance the 1949 budget.

"Despite the fact that good arguments against spending more money have been advanced, we suspect that the case for a higher budget will receive general support in the city and on Capitol Hill," declared an editorial in the board's monthly publication.

"The question seems to have settled down to where is the money coming from. We believe the majority of our members will support the sales tax."

Subcommittee Named

At the same time, the board announced that Maj. Gen. David McCoach, chairman of the Municipal Finance Committee, has appointed a special subcommittee to study technical aspects of sales tax bills now before Congress. The subcommittee includes Jo V. Morgan, former assistant corporation counsel and onetime member of the District Board of Tax Appeals; Francis G. Addison, president of Security Savings & Commercial Bank, and Joseph E. Keller, attorney.

Area News in Brief

U. S. Realty Here Nets $89,336 Rent

Rents from Federally owned property being held as sites for future public buildings in Washington totaled $89,336.20 in the fiscal year which ended last June 20.

The rent total was reported to Congress yesterday by Maj. Gen. Phillip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administrator. Biggest rents were $45,600 paid by the Grand Plaza Parking Area, Inc., for the annual use of the area between the District and Labor Department Buildings, and the $18,000 annual rent paid by the Cosmos Club for the use of its building at 1520 H st. nw.

Half Holiday Ordered

The District Commissioners, following the action of the Federal Government, yesterday ordered a half day off for all District workers on the day before Christmas.

The only exceptions are "those who are absolutely essential to maintain safety of services, or health of persons cared for by District agencies, or whose absence from duty would be inconsistent with the provisions of existing law."

7 Teen-Agers Found

Seven teen-aged boys and girls, missing from their Maryland homes since Wednesday night, were all accounted for early yesterday, after having spent the night in an automobile mired in the mud along a lonely road near Greenbelt.

Greenbelt police said the group, including four boys ranging in age from 15 to 19, and three girls, 11, 15, and 16, had returned to their homes around 7:30 a. m., soon after their parents and Prince Georges County police had launched a frantic search. All seven, they told police, had decided to "sleep it out" when their efforts to dislodge the car from the mud failed.

The youngsters, all of whom live in the Riverdale area, said they decided to take a ride after leaving the Riverdale Teen-Age Club around 9:30 p. m. Wednesday and drove to Greenbelt Lake, where the car became mired.

Tuberculosis Data Given

Almost 100 nurses and officials of the District Health Department heard talks by Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, director of the department's bureau of tuberculosis, and Edward K. Funkhouser, executive secretary of the District Tuberculosis Association, yesterday.

The meeting was held in the Archives Building auditorium to inform the group on recent developments in the fight against tuberculosis in the District.

College Building Damaged

Fire of undetermined origin caused damage estimated at $1000 to a two-story frame building on the grounds of the Xaverian College, Silver Spring, Md., last Wednesday night.

Volunteer firemen from the Hillandale, Silver Spring and Takoma Park Departments worked about an hour to extinguish the blaze, which gutted the attic of the building and burned a 4-foot hole in the roof. Tom Mullican, 17, a member of the Hillandale Fire Department, was slightly injured when he was knocked from a fire truck while removing equipment.

Fined in Jobless Pay Case

Two former GIs were fined yesterday in Alexandria District Court for accepting Government unemployment compensation while gainfully employed.

Delmar C. Nicholson and Tazewell N. Blankenbaker, both of Culpeper, Va., both pleaded guilty to charges of making false statements as to earnings and of illegally accepting compensation checks under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944.

Judge Albert V. Bryan fined Blankenbaker $50 and ordered him to repay the Government $140 illegally accepted. Nicholson was also fined $50 and ordered to repay $180. Further sentence was suspended on condition that the fines and money be paid.

Death Delays Sentence

Municipal Court Judge Aubrey Fennell yesterday gave a man 10 days to attend a funeral and return to Washington for sentencing on a drunk charge.

Walter Hutchins, 34, of 1725 Park rd. nw., arrested Wednesday night for intoxication, told Judge Fennell his mother had died in Atlanta, Ga., and he wanted to attend the funeral.

The request was granted and Hutchins was ordered back December 15 for sentencing.

His record shows 36 arrests in two years.

Mother Charges Son

A 21-year-old youth, banished from his mother's home by court order, is scheduled to appear today on charges of slapping and kicking her.

Municipal Court Judge Walter J. Casey released Clyde H. White, 812 North Carolina ave. se., on personal bond with the understanding White move out of his mother's home before this morning.

Another Term

Harry K. Green, veteran of 28 years in the office of Commissioner of Revenue in Arlington, yesterday was sworn in for a new four-year term at the county courthouse by Virginia C. Long, deputy clerk of circuit court.

War Services Cited

Two officials of the District War Hospitality Committee have been awarded War Department Certificates of Appreciation, it was announced yesterday.

The recipients, who were in charge of the United Nations Service Center on Union Station Plaza during the war, are: Mrs. Henry Gratton Doyle of 5500 33d st. nw., president, and Mrs. William M. Galvin, 6508 Ridgewood ave., Chevy Chase, executive secretary of the local committee.

The certificates were presented by Brig. Gen. C. B. Ferenbaugh, former commanding general of the Military District of Washington, in ceremonies at the Pentagon attended by Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Agency Administrator, and Brig. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, present Military District commander.

It Wasn't Candy

Four Northeast Washington children today are probably the only ones of their age to know that diethl stilbestrol is not candy.

The children, 3 to 5 years old, found a box of the little red pills near a mail box at 7th and Irving sts. ne., and quickly proceeded to devour them.

After quick home and hospital examinations, doctors pronounced the children in no danger.

Diethl stilbestrol is a synthetic female sex hormone.

VFW to Honor Parents

Six Arlington and Falls Church parents who lost sons in action during World War II will be honor guests tomorrow at a dance sponsored by the Falls Church Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The dance will be held at 9 p. m. at the Odd Fellows Hall on W. Broad st., Falls Church. Honor guests will be Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Martin, 806 Lincoln ave., Falls Church; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Leppert, 706 W. Broad st., Falls Church, and Mr. and Mrs. Willie Sipes, 1232 S. 24th st., Arlington.

Who Was Driving?

Although Alexandria police know that a careening automobile smashed into six parked cars on S. Washington st., Alexandria, Wednesday night, they yet must learn which of the two occupants was driving.

Harry Thodis, 27, 240 Taylor Run pkwy., Alexandria, says that Enoch Roach, 39, 209 Commerce st., Alexandria, was at the wheel, but Roach points his finger at Thodis. One thing is certain, however, owners of the six damaged vehicles want somebody to pay for more than 1000 in damages.

Arlington Hearing

A special Arlington committee studying redistricting of county voting precincts will hold a public meeting at 8 p. m. next Thursday in the Arlington Circuit Court, Chairman Charles R. Fenwick said yesterday.

The committee, formed last year, proposed many changes in precinct boundaries but its recommendations were not adopted. It was reconvened after the November 4 election by Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy, who asked that the group make new proposals in light of present needs. The committee will make further recommendations after hearing the public's views next week, Fenwick said.

Vepco Is Charged With Building To 'Spite' Co-op

Richmond, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—Charges that the Virginia Electric and Power Co. is engaged in "vicious, spite-line" building to kill off a new electric cooperative in Tidewater Virginia, were made here today by a representative of the Rural Electrification Administration.

Allen Arness, field representative of REA's applications and loans division, charged that Vepco had refused to serve the area until after the Chickahominy Electric Cooperative was formed in portions of four counties. Since then, he said, the power company has been engaged in "panicky" line-building in the cooperative's territory and has succeeded in having the cooperative's "normally routine" application to execute loan notes set for a formal hearing before the State Corporation Commission.

The Chickahominy Cooperative plans to operate in Hanover, James City, Charles City and New Kent Counties.

Fox to Revise 'Forever Amber'

New York, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Twentieth Century-Fox announced tonight that it had decided to revise its film, 'Forever Amber," which has been under considerable fire.

S. P. Skouras, president, said he wanted to correct "an unfortunate impression" created by previous statements made by the company in defense of the film.

"These statements were interpreted as questioning the right of religious leaders to guide the adheernts of their faith on moral questions," he said. "No such purpose was intended."

Deer Kill Tops 1946 In Western Virginia

Richmond, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—A 28 per cent increase in the number of deer killed this year as compared with the "take" of 1946 has been reported by nine counties west of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Executive Director I. T. Quinn of the State Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries announced the figures, based on the agency's tag system of checking the kill, today. During the abbreviated season in the western portion of the State 385 deer were killed as compared with 300 during 1946, according to the reports.

'Butch' Takes the Spotlight on a High Note

Work Started On Alexandria Power Plant

Work officially started yesterday on the 50-million-dollar Braddock Light & Power Co. power plant in Alexandria.

While other company and Alexandria officials looked on, A. G. Neal, president of Pepco and its Braddock subsidiary, and Mayor William T. Wilkins climbed into the cab of a power shovel and watched the operator scoop up the first shovelful of dirt.

Actually, shovels and bulldozers had been leveling a portion of the 22-acre tract for two weeks so excavation could begin. The plant will be located on the river front just north of the Washington & Old Dominion Railroad.

Ultimate Capacity 400,000 K. W.

Work will start immediately, company officials said, on a building to house the first two of five 80,000 kilowatt turbine generators. The first 80,000 kw. unit is expected to be in operation in the summer of 1949; the second, a year later. Definite schedules for installing the other three units have not yet been made, according to Robert Wilson, Pepco public relations man.

The plant will "take care of the future needs of the Washington area, the company announced. Braddock now furnishes power to the Pentagon and to about 2000 customers in Rosslyn.

The ultimate capacity of 400,000 kw. will be more than twice that of the Bennings plant, which is now 185,000 kw., and two thirds again that of the 270,000 kw. Buzzard Point plant.

The completed plant would be able to supply power to the entire District under normal conditions. Highest load recorded in the District, Wilson said, is 427,000 kilowatts.

To house the generators and boilers which tower 112 feet, plans call for a 120-foot-high building with 270-foot stacks. Alexandria City Council changed the building regulation concerning height of buildings at a special August meeting so the plant could be constructed. It is estimated that taxes from the completed project will increase the city's property tax revenue by 40 per cent.

Little Known Laboratory Aids Montgomery Welfare Work

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

There are all kinds of scientific laboratories in Montgomery County—but there is one that most people don't know about.

That is the laboratory on planning which had its fruition about four years ago with establishment of the Montgomery County Chest and Council. Before that organization was set up, its functions of providing a social order for the county along the lines of health, welfare and good recreation had been carefully studied.

Actually, the Chest and Council was an experiment in community planning. It was an effort to channel the community's efforts to better itself through the Chest, in order to eliminate duplication of effort and to achieve the greatest amount of coordination.

For Montgomery County has been peculiarly blessed with experts in social problems. Because of the location in the county of the National Institute of Health, many professional sociologists in one or another fields make their homes there.

Gains by Community

The body of knowledge which these experts have has gone into planning for the community functions of the Chest and Council. The Chest has been able to establish, on a county-wide basis, such services as the Social Service League provides for family and child welfare; the Public Health Lay Council, where lay persons assist doctors and nurses at clinics and supply articles and appliances for patients unable to purchase their own; and adoption services.

And under the county organization, the Chest is used as a fund-raising agency, and the Community Services and Planning Division looks ahead to need, expansion and service.

With three years of this experiment under their belts, Montgomery Chest leaders feel now that the idea of planning first, and then proceeding on the basis of need and with an organized program has been successful.

For next year, the Chest and council are transferring three programs to public funds: the Boy and Girl Four-H Clubs and the Silver Spring Health Center, the latter being taken over by the County Health Department.

And for the new year, the Chest hopes to assume one new agency. When the USO cottage bordering on the National Medical Center goes out of existence as of December 31, it will become, the following day, the YW-YMCA cottage. Now used extensively by servicemen convalescing at the center—who want to get away from hospital atmosphere—the Chest plans to expand its use even further.

Because Montgomery County is in the Federal area, a large number of its residents are women between the ages of 17 and 30. And Chest officials hope to make the YW-YMCA cottage a focal point for their recreation.

The Chest and Council in Montgomery County has found that inadequate provision by the State of welfare funds for the needy has increased their financial burden. They feel that the insecurity which it creates in some homes, is a virulent germ which may lead either to broken homes or delinquency. Prince Georges has had a similar experience.

Mental Hygiene Clinic

But on the other side of the picture, the Chest can point with some degree of pride to the mental hygiene clinic and the health fund which have come into existence since organization of the Chest, and to the YW-YMCA cottage which will go under Chest auspices after next month.

The Mental Hygiene Clinic last year treated 133 adults and 156 children who came to them to discuss difficulties in living with themselves and with others. Many were referred to them by schools, social agencies and clinics. Fees, commensurate with income, are charged those who benefit from clinic guidance, or, in case of the needy, are free of charge.

The health fund is set up to help those who have no other source of aid. Last year, several thousands dollars were spent from the fund for hospital bills, and for special equipment such as braces, glasses and artificial limbs. In addition, the fund assists in coordinating activities of existing health groups, and in preventing duplication in their activities.

And Chest officials hope that now that they have made such an impressive start, they can continue to use the human resources of the county in working, with well-geared machinery, to help the people of the county.

The Montgomery County Chest and Council is a member of the Community Chest Federation, which you help to support with your contribution to their campaign.

Mabel S. Smith, D. C. Teacher 45 Years, Dies

Miss Mabel Scott Smith, 70, a third generation Washingtonian who retired last spring after 45 years of teaching in District public schools, died Wednesday of a heart condition at her home, 3451 Holmead pl. nw.

Miss Smith was the daughter of the late W. Scott Smith, a newspaper correspondent here and owner of papers in New Hampshire, and Mrs. Annie M. Dubant Smith. In her early years, Miss Smith had lived in the home of her maternal grandfather, Peter Dubant, in Le Droit Park, one of the first suburbs of Washington. Her father at one time was confidential secretary to former Secretary of the Interior Hitchcpck, and superintendent of an Indian reservation in Hot Springs, Ark.

Miss Smith attended grade school here, but in 1887 moved with her family to Portsmouth, N. H., where she attended high school and normal school.

After her graduation from normal school, she returned to Washington and began her teaching career at the Webster Elementary School. She later taught at the Henry and Thomson Schools, and when she retired last spring had been in charge of remedial classes for boys at the Raymond Elementary School. Her retirement was caused by illness.

Miss Smith spent her vacations at her family's summer place at Rye Beach, N. Y. She was a member of the Mayflower Society and All Souls Unitarian Church.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the home. The Rev. A. Palmer Davies will officiate. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery. She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Ralph Werner, 1901 Columbia rd. nw.; Mrs. Roswell W. Snow, 1945 Calvert st. nw., and Miss Edna Scott Smith of the Holmead pl. address.

J. Archibald Speer

J. Archibald Speer, Richmond insurance executive and former resident of Purcellville, Va., died of a heart attack early yesterday at his Richmond home.

Mr. Speer lived in Purcellville for about 15 years, and was a partner in a hardware store. He transferred to the insurance business 20 years ago and made Richmond his headquarters. Two years ago he moved there with his family.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at Lincoln, near Purcellville. Burial will be in Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Speer is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sallie Rathbone Speer, and one son, Alexander Speer, an employe of the Bethlehem Steel Co.

Col. Miller Rites Listed For Today

A burial service for Col. Frank L. Miller, former supervisor of the Army Chief of Chaplains' Planning and Training Division, will be held today at 2 p. m. in Arlington National Cemetery.

Col. Miller

Maj. Gen. Luther D. Miller, Army Chief of Chaplains, will conduct the service at the request of Chaplain Miller's widow, who lives at 1920 35th st. nw.

Chaplain Miller, of Presbyterian background, died in the plane crash in Iceland May 3, 1943, that also took the lives of Lieut.-Gen. Frank M. Andrews, then chief of the United States forces in the European theater, and Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, then Washington Methodist Bishop.

William E. Connell

Requiem mass for William E. Connell, 68, Spanish-American War veteran and Department of Commerce employe, will be celebrated at Holy Name Church, 920 11th st. ne., at 9 a. m. tomorrow. Interment will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Connell, who lived at 709 8th st. ne., died Wednesday at Glenn Dale Sanitarium after an illness of about a year.

A native of Maryville, Ohio, he came to Washington about 15 years ago to take a job with the Department of Commerce. He had previously been a telegrapher for Western Union and an engineer on the Big Four Railroad lines in the Middle West.

Mr. Connell is survived by his wife, Mrs. Zudie B. Connell; six daughters, Mrs. Eleanor Allen, Mrs. Edith Jolliffe, Mrs. Louise Lindner, Mrs. Ida Sanders, Mrs. Betty Dawes and Mrs. Catherine Moroney, all of Washington; two brothers, Harry and Arthur Connell, and a sister, Mrs. Sylvia Reed, all of Columbus, Ohio; three grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Allan R. Wurtele

New Roads, La., Dec. 4 (AP).—Allan Ramsey Wurtele, 54-year-old plantation owner who once offered $5000 to a fund to purchase the Polish corridor and the city of Danzig for Hitler, died today.

Wurtele made his offer prior to World War II and suggested a 70 million dollar fund to finance the purchase to "prevent the spending of 5 million human lives and 100 million dollars."

Wurtele was a native of Minneapolis and a graduate of the United States Naval Academy.

G. W. Hockney Dies; Served With Marines

George William Hockney, 65, of 1 Anacostia rd. se., a retired warrant officer in the Marines, died yesterday at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Born in London, England, Mr. Hockney came to the United States with his parents when he was 17, and immediately joined the Marines. He saw service in Cuba in the Spanish-American War in 1898.

Before he retired in 1935, Mr. Hockney had served 35 years in the Marines and a year in the National Guard. In 1916, he went to Mexico in the Mexican campaign with the National Guard. Returning to the Marine Corps, Mr. Hackney was atached to Marine Corps headquarters here during World War I, and it was then that he was promoted to warrant officer.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Etta Ward Hockney, whom he married in 1935; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Fleming of Washington and Mrs. Mary Blanchard, Baltimore; two stepsons, William T. Latham and Albert L. Latham, both of Washington, and one grandchild.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

William H. McDannel

Frederick, Md., Dec. 4.—Mr. William H. McDannel, 65, organist at the All Saints' Episcopal Church here, died yesterday at Frederick Memorial Hospital.

A native of Frederick, Mr. McDannel spent most of his life in Niagara Falls, N. Y., where he was associated with the Niagara Junction Railway Co., and served as organist in the St. ePter's Episcopal Church. Upon retirement, he returned here.

Mr. McDannel is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nellie Williams McDannel; three brothers, and a sister.

Funeral services will be held in All Saints' Episcopal Church here at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Church Cemetery here.

Dr. Wesley G. France

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Dr. Wesley G. France, 55, nationally known research chemist and a member of the Ohio State University chemistry department, died today after a heart attack.

Constitutional Convention Is Opposed

Baltimore, Dec. 4 (AP).—Three Baltimore attorneys presented arguments before the Legislative Council today against the calling of a Maryland constitutional convention in the near future.

They said the present State constitution could be revised through amendments made "pursuant to studies of special commissions or by the Legislature itself."

However, the three attorneys told the council they are agreed the 1949 General Assembly should fulfill its constitutional duty by placing the convention question on the ballot in the 1950 general elections.

The constitution requires the Legislature provide for such a vote each 20 years.

The attorneys—George W. Constable, C. K. Bowie and J. N. Shriver—said in a statement that "the present constitutional structure is working satisfactorily on the whole," and that "there are no basic changes needed sufficient to warrant a convention."

Officials of the larger State banks in Baltimore appeared before the council to object to imposition of the sales tax on the purchases of supplies and equipment in view of the fact banks holding national charters are exempt from the tax.

The council authorized its chairman, State Senate President Joseph R. Byrnes, to appoint two committees of laymen and members of the Legislature to study the question of prison labor and to carry on earlier studies of what the State might do with chronic alcoholics.

Byrnes said it has been reported to him that 750 men sit "with their backs to the wall doing nothing" at the Maryland Penitentiary's idle shop.

Prince William Vetoes Sunday Beer Sales

Manassas, Va., Dec. 4 (Spl.).—The Prince William County Board of Supervisors today rejected a proposal to allow the sale of beer and wine on Sunday in the county.

The board heard arguments from proponents of the proposal, led by John Gum, a restaurant owner in Triangle, and opponents of the measure, and then turned down the proposal in a ballot vote. The count was not announced.

Gum stated that both Stafford and Fairfax Counties, adjoining Prince William, allow Sunday beer and wine, and that the prohibitive ordinance hurts county business.

Presumably, the vote today quashed agitation on the measure for at least four years, since five of the six board members were elected this year for four-year terms.

Quantico remains the only town in the county which allows Sunday sale. The board has no jurisdiction over the town, since it is incorporated.

The proposal was originally introduced a year ago, but was tabled by the board.

Explosion Damages Yacht at Norfolk

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—Fire and an explosion caused damage estimated at $8000 to $10,000 early today aboard the cruiser Ponchita, owned by Earle Westbrooke, manager of the Norva and Granby theaters here.

Mr. and Mrs. Westbrooke, who were aboard, escaped with slight burns.

In Middie Brigade

Annapolis Grid Stars Get Top Posts

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 4 (AP).—Four Naval Academy first classmen appointed to top posts in the brigade of midshipmen today were regulars of the 1947 Navy football team.

Richard E. Shimshak, All-East tackle, of La Crosse, Wis., was named brigade commander; Robert E. Schwoeffermann, halfback, of Chicago Heights, Ill., deputy commander; Charles G. Strahley of Drexel Hill, Pa., First Regiment commander, and Richard U. Scott, team captain, of Highland Falls, N. Y., Second Regiment commander.

Scott was chosen for the all-America second team at center.

All the middys officers will assume their duties December 13, when an entire new brigade staff takes over for three months. Academy policy is to appoint new staffs three times a year.

Capt. Frank T. Ward, commandant of midshipmen, appointed the midshipmen upon recommendation of company and battalion officers.

Rex. C. Eaton, jr., of Greeley, Colo., brigade operations officer; John D. Herlihy, jr., of Chillicothe, Ohio, and Sumner K. Moore of 3325 Cleveland ave. nw., Washington, regimental operations officers; Robert C. Vance of Ogden, Utah; Robert S. Chew, jr., of Jamestown, R. I.; Thomas Woods 2d, of Evanston, Ill., Robert R. Carson of Denver; Robert N. Smith of Trucksville, Pa., and Roy K. Russell of Vernon, Tex., company commanders.

Former Officials Admit Forging Benefit Checks

Baltimore, Dec. 4 (AP).—A former Maryland Employment Security official and a former Federal Reserve Bank employe admitted forging a series of veterans' unemployment compensation checks today in Criminal Court and were remanded to jail pending sentence.

James H. Williamson, 39, former had of the servicemen's adjustment allowance division of the ESB, entered a guilty plea in 33 cases, and Harry M. Sherman, an employe of the Federal Reserve Bank 15 years, pleaded guilty on 26 counts.

The total involved in the indictments was about $700.

However, Assistant State's Attorney Thomas N. Biddison and John C. Weiss told Judge Joseph Sherbrow the two men had obtained about 825 checks amounting to $16,280.

They said counsel for the defendants had agreed that the entire matter be decided without the necessary of bringing hundreds of new indictments.

Va. Scholarship Increase Asked

Richmond, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—The State Commission on Veterans Affairs recommended today that the amount of the State's scholarships be increased from $200 to $400 for children of Virginia servicemen who died in action or became totally disabled.

The commission, in a report to Governor Tuck and the General Assembly, also recommended a change in the law which would enable veterans' organizations to own more than two acres of land. In another recommendation, it urged that the full budget requested by the division of war veterans claims be approved.

Delegate William J. Gibson of Fredericksburg headed the commission.

Here's This Year's Dream Team

Collier's 58th ALL-AMERICA

Come to life in colorful action photos

TODAY, in Collier's, comes the grand climax to a thrill-laden football season. Today, in dynamic color photographs, you'll see 1947's dream team — Collier's 58th All-America.

Never before have you seen such gridiron pictures in color! Photographers David and Hy Peskin covered twenty thousand miles, catching the stars in the kind of spectacular plays that made them famous.

The All-America hasn't a rousing marching song, or a bevy of high-kicking drum majorettes, but no other team boasts such a wealth of tradition as this mythical but mighty eleven. Originated by Caspar Whitney in 1889, carried on by Walter Camp, Collier's annual All-America has long been considered the last word on the subject by players, coaches, sports authorities and millions of fans.

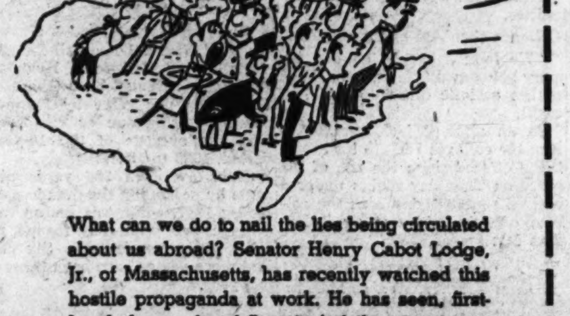
The '47 selections are based on personal observation by Grantland Rice and Collier's sports staff, supplemented by consultation with experts from every section of the country. They are documented by exciting action pictures of some of the season's memorable games. And they're spiced with authoritative dope on the players and their records.

Here is grist for every gridiron fan. Get your Collier's today, then match your choice against this chosen few, the cream of the nation's campuses.

See the All-America on Your Local Movie Screen

Watch your All-America favorites perform their specialties in a hot-off-the-gridiron sports reel produced by Warner Brothers. Check your local theater for dates.

Speak Up, America!



What can we do to nail the lies being circulated about us abroad? Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts, has recently watched this hostile propaganda at work. He has seen, first-hand, the results of America's failure to present her side of the case effectively. In The Truth Shall Make You Free, the Senator, back from an extended European tour, suggests ways and means of remedying the situation.

Guarding Uncle Sam's Back Door

There are at least 300,000 aliens in Cuba and Latin America striving to get into the United States. Only a few can enter legally. Many of the rest fall victim to heartless racketeers who, for a price, attempt to land them in Florida by fishing boat, freighter or plane. When the Border Patrol intercepts the smugglers, the human cargo is often jettisoned like so much contraband. John Maloney's report on this vicious trafficking in human lives and hopes makes startling reading. See: Uncle Sam's Gate-Crashers.

Is Britain Playing Footie with her Fascists?

The war with Germany was a terrible mistake ... Sir Oswald Mosley is the greatest Englishman who ever lived ... Britain first and Britain for the British ... Strange and ominous words, these, but they're being heard with increasing frequency in this citadel of human freedom. This Morning

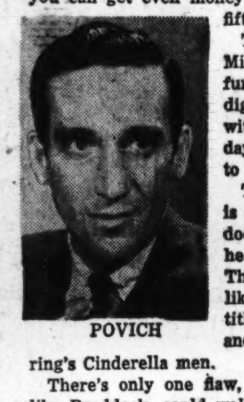
—With Shirley Povich

JOE LOUIS is defending his title against Jersey Joe Walcott in Madison Square Garden tonight, but you could scarcely say he is risking it. The hazard for Louis is so negligible, it seems, that you can get even money Walcott won't answer the bell for the fifth round.



POVICH

The mimeograph machines of Promoter Mike Jacobs' publicists have been whirring furiously the past months in an attempt to dignify Walcott as a worthy contender, with an adverse effect on the odds. Yesterday they leaped from 8 to 1 against Walcott to 10 to 1.

The theme of the ballyhoo for Walcott is an attempt to liken him to Jimmy Braddock, who likewise, was a 10 to 1 shot when he took the title from Max Baer in 1935. They've been pointing out that Walcott, like Braddock, fought his way back to a title shot after drawing WPA relief checks, and that he could be the latest of the prize ring's Cinderella men.

There's only one flaw, though, in the reasoning that Walcott, like Braddock, could walk out of the ring with the title. Braddock fought the unpredictable Max Baer. Walcott is fighting Joe Louis.

IT WASN'T UNTIL the last few days that Louis even became interested in Walcott as an opponent. He didn't even lend himself to the ballyhoo until the other day when, as a favor to the press agents, he gave out with "Walcott sneaks those punches in pretty good." Originally, Louis signed to meet Walcott in a non-title 10-rounder. When Jacobs' men pleaded with him to make it 15 rounds for the title, Louis gave a matter-of-fact and unexcited "okay."

Walcott and Louis will be meeting on equal terms in only one sense. They're both 33. But you'd have to say that Walcott is a far older 33, and not because he is the pappy of six children. He quit the ring a half dozen times and made as many comebacks. His proudest victory is a decision over Joe Baksi, who has never been rated worthy of a Louis fight.

But the worst you can say about Walcott is that he doesn't rate with Louis as a fighter. He's a solid sort of family man. Never has smoked or imbibed, and is given to prayer. When he discovered that the heavyweight ranks weren't much outside of Louis, he rapped his way to the top of the contenders, such as they were.

JACOBS' MEN in Walcott's camp have dug up that old chestnut about Walcott flooring Louis when he was one of Joe's sparring partners back in 1936 before the first Louis-Schmeling fight. Walcott is quoted as saying, "I knocked Joe down in the very first round with a right hand that landed on the whiskers . . . they hustled me out of the camp for saying Louis couldn't savvy my style. That's on the square and the champ can't deny it."

Louis does deny it, though, even at a time when an admission could be helpful to the gate receipts. In fact, Louis has said that he doesn't even remember Walcott as one of his sparring partners at any time. But apparently his memory is a little bit hazy on that score because there is evidence that Walcott not only sparred with Louis but made him look bad in spots.

The late Sid Mercer and the late Hype Igoe, who wrote boxing for the New York Journal, reported in their dispatches from Louis' camp in 1936 that Walcott was the best sparring partner in Louis' crowd and that he had Louis bewildered with his speed and shifty punching. Never, however, did they report that Walcott knocked Louis down.

IN THE FACE of the vague possibility that Walcott will be a match for Louis, the bout will set a new gate receipts record for Madison Square Garden, nevertheless. Fight fans, hungry for another look at Louis, who hasn't defended his title in nearly 18 months, aren't deterred by the $30 price of ringside seats and the gate may go as high as $230,000.

Actually Louis tonight will be fighting a man named Arnold Raymond Cream, jr. Walcott's father was born in Barbados, West Indies, and thus it was that Cream took the name of the original Joe Walcott, who was known as the Barbados Demon.

Walcott is a harder puncher than was Billy Conn, and a better boxer than Tami Mauriello, the last pair who were stiffened by Louis. Not true is the report that Walcott's enterprising managers have sold advertising space on the bottom of Jersey Joe's shoes, but that is an idea not completely unworthy.

Kickapoo Kicks Off Bowl Season

Wichita Falls, Tex., Dec. 4 (AP).—The first of seven Texas Bowl games—the Kickapoo, named for a big lake—will be played tomorrow night.

Hardin College and Arkansas State Teachers, each a cochampion of its conference, will tangle here to send the Texas football postseason program bowling along.

Arkansas State was cochampion of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference, being unbeaten in title play and being once tied over the season route. Hardin College was cochampion of the Texas Conference with McMurry, which Hardin beat when these teams met. The Wichita Falls College had a record of six wins and four losses for the season.

A crowd of 5000 is expected.

Shotton Off For Parley With Rickey

By Joe Reichler

Miami, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP).—The manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers probably will be named within 48 hours, but whether it will be Leo Durocher or Burt Shotton only Branch Rickey, Dodger president, knows.

In a terse announcement, Branch Rickey, jr., told newsmen here that Branch, sr., "has informed me by telephone that Shotton has answered his summons to come to Brooklyn and he is scheduled to hold a conference with his 1947 manager tonight."

Rickey, sr., added that they would hold a special conference with his three coaches—Clyde Sukeforth, Ray Blades and Jake Pitler—some time tomorrow to discuss the managerial situation.

Following this Rickey, sr., told his son, he will then be in position to announce his manager.

"By Saturday dad should be able to announce his manager," Rickey, jr., said.

Rickey, sr., denied a report that he had already signed Durocher, but admitted he had spoken to Leo last Tuesday night at his Chestertown, Md., home.

Shotton in Brooklyn

Shotton, who was not at the minor league meeting here despite the fact he lives at Bartow, Fla., not too far away, was summoned to Brooklyn today and lost no time in hopping a plane to see his boss.

The Durocher-Shotton puzzle partly overshadowed the work accomplished by the National Association of minor leagues in the most important bit of legislation thus far.

The Association adopted 41 amendments and rejected 11 others, including the Pacific Coast League's request for major-minor status and the Southern Association's attempt to eliminate the bonus rule.

The Coast's representatives were satisfied with the result despite the fact the 52 leagues rejected their demands.

Needing a three quarter vote or 39 supporters, the Coast proposal received only 32 with 17 leagues voting against it. The minors decided to certify the vote and send it to the major leagues, pointing out that although the resolution lost, it carried 32 leagues.

The majors, who have the last say as to whether the Coast's request is granted, meet next week in New York and undoubtedly will consider its demands.

Russia May Enter '48 Olympic Games

London, Dec. 4 (AP).—Russia has become a member of the International Amateur Athletic Federation and thus has taken a major step toward participation in the 1948 Olympic games.

Lord Burghley, president of the I. A. A. F. and a ranking Olympic official, made known Russia's joining the international group today when he cabled the Soviet All-Union Committee of Physical Culture and Sport that "I extend to you a hearty welcome to our activities . . ."

The I. A. A. F. controls track and field throughout the world and is in charge of the 42 events in that sport on the Olympic program.

Augusta Military Leaves for Bowl Game

Fort Defiance, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—Augusta Military Academy's State military championship football team left today by special bus for its game Saturday with McCallie School in the Orchid Bowl at Chattanooga, Tenn.

The group was to stop over in Knoxville this afternoon for a workout on University of Tennessee field and to spend the night, expecting to reach Chattanooga about noon Friday. A workout in the Orchid Bowl, the stadium of the University of Chattanooga, also was on the schedule.

Uline Threat Won't Alter Armory Plans

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Mike Uline's threat to convert his $700,000 M st. arena into a cold stroage plant next May drew a chilly response last night from the commandant of the Washington National Guard and athletic officials of George Washington and Georgetown Universities.

Uline appeared before District Commissioners yesterday to protest the use of the National Guard Armory for sports events. He termed it "unfair government competition."

Brig. Gen. Albert Cox, who runs the armory, said he plans no change in the policy of renting the armory for public athletic and social functions. He termed Uline's charge of "unfair Government competition" as "absurd."

"We are not promoters," he said, "but operate the armory as a public service. We are not equipped to handle ice shows and hockey matches as the arena is.

"And simply because college and high school teams see fit to use our place to play basketball, I don't think you could call us competitors."

George Washington and Georgetown athletic chiefs said they had not planned to use Uline's for basketball this season under any conditions.

Rental Simply Too High

Even before the National Guard Armory became available for basketball, the Colonials and Hoyas had decided not to play any more games at Uline's. They used the Arena Court last year for the first time.

The stiff Uline rental of approximately $1300 per game made basketball a losing proposition for the two schools. They long ago made up their minds to look elsewhere for a playing site.

G. W. and Georgetown played seven games at Uline last winter. This season they will play 14 games—7 apiece—at the Armory where the rental is on a percentage basis—15 per cent of the gross receipts. Neither school has a gymnasium with adequate seating facilities.

Colleges Gambled on Armory

"We took a chance on the Armory being available and won," one of the athletic directors said last night.

In an attempt last summer to lure the colleges back to his arena, Uline offered them the use of his court on Thursday nights under a revised rental basis which the college officials said was a bit less than last season.

World Title Roller Skating Starts Today

Forty roller skating stars from five countries will open competition in the World's Roller Skating championships beginning at 2 p. m. today at the new National Arena, 17th and Kalorama rd. nw.

Competition will continue tomorrow, with the wind-up Sunday.

First of the men's singles will be run off starting at 2 p. m., continuing through tonight.

One of the big favorites will be Passaic (N. J.) Skating Club's Joe Horvath, who is the national champion. Other American stars entered are Donald Mounce, Reggie Opie, Bill Scheurer, Jude Cull, Walter Clancy, B. Killip Gallagher, F. Ludwig, Bill Weicker and Bill Reed.

Carl Peter of Switzerland, G. Donald Stirling and Kenneth Byrne of England, Fernand Leemans of Belgium and D. Castellari of Italy are among the foreign contenders.

The senior ladies' figure skating events will open at 8 a. m. tomorrow, with pretty 18-year-old Ursula Wehrli of Switzerland the European titleholder, and 16-year-old June Henrich, American champion, among the favorites. Others entered are Elvira Collin and Francis Vaken of Belgium, Delli Dela, R. Franca and F. Grimaldi of Italy; Jean Phethean, British champion, and Joan Atkinson, also of England, and Charlotte Ludwig and Violet Gargano, American stars.

Outstanding in the mixed pairs championships are the American twosome of Ludwig and Cull, the English duo of Phethean and Byrne, the Belgian team of Collins and Leemans and the European champions from Switzerland, Gritli Muller and Karl Peter.

Browns Sell Jeff Heath To Braves

Miami, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns announced today they had sold Outfielder Jeff Heath to the Boston Braves.

The sale was announced by Ed Smith, public relations man for the Browns.

Heath has spent all of his 11 years in the American League, nine with Cleveland and the rest with Washington and St. Louis.

A left-handed batter, Heath hit only .246 last year, but was one of the league's best home-run hitters, clouting 27.

He came up to Cleveland in 1937 from Milwaukee, where he hit .367. His best years in the majors was in 1938 when he batted .343 for the Indians. Two years later he had a .340 mark, driving in 123 runs.

Two years ago Cleveland traded him to Washington for Outfielder George Case. He remained with the Nats until June 15, 1946, when he was sent to the Browns in exchange for Outfielder Joe Grace, since sold to Pittsburgh, and Pitcher Al Lamacchia, optioned to Chattanooga.

Denver Defeats St. John's, 54-52

Yep, Pros Gaining More on Passes

Philadelphia, Dec. 4 (AP).—A study of National Football League statistics by Statistician Hugh L. Ray today revealed an increase of 71.4 yards per game by forward passing this season as compared with the average of the 10-year period, 1936 to 1946.

Clubs averaged 286 yards per game by passing in the decade preceding 1947, while this season the average per game has leaped to 357.4 yards per contest. Six per cent more passes have been thrown this year.

Bout Tonight Is Joe's 24th Title Defense

By Gayle Talbot

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Joe Louis will fight in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, and because the great heavyweight champion never has given other than an honest, thrilling exhibition of the manly art he is virtually certain to draw the biggest gate in the history of the famous arena.

Receipts today indicated that more than 18,000 will pay a total of close to $225,000 to watch Louis make the twenty-fourth defense of his title against Jersey Joe Walcott, an undistinguished Negro veteran who is not expected by the betting fraternity to last more than four of the scheduled 15 rounds.

It is a remarkable tribute to the Brown Bomber's drawing power that the big spenders are showering down $30 for ringside chairs at an affair which originally was booked merely as an exhibition because a worthy challenger was not available. The previous Garden record of $201,613 was set more than 20 years ago by Jack Delaney and Jim Maloney.

Louis Enjoys 18-Lb. Pull

Walcott, who has trained long and earnestly for his big chance, was scheduled to motor in from his camp early tonight and rest at a hotel near the Garden. Louis planned to sleep overnight at his Pompton Lakes, N. J., camp and to reach the Garden just in time for the official weigh-in at noon tomorrow. It was expected that Louis would scale a hefty 212 to Walcott's 194, giving the champ a pull of 18 pounds.

Even with the bookmakers offering 10 to 1 against Walcott's chances of winning the title, there was understood to be almost no action along those lines. There were reports of brisk business, however, on the question of whether Jersey Joe would last more than four rounds. The bookies were offering 5 to 6 on this, and take your choice. In other words, it was even money in man-to-man wagering that Walcott would not put up his dukes for the fifth round.

The record shows that Louis has knocked out his last 14 opponents, and that, on an average, they have lasted almost exactly 4½ rounds. Since he became champion, however, Joe has chilled five rivals in the first chapter, and two others in the second. The only other Negro to challenge him, John Henry Lewis, lasted less than a round back in 1939.

Fight Facts

Principals—Joe Louis, Detroit, Mich., and Jersey Joe Walcott, Camden, N. J.

Poms Brothers Are Rivals in All-Star Game

The fifth annual All-High vs. All-Prep game tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. at Griffith Stadium should provide an extra treat for those alert football students who watch the action of opposing linemen.

Facing each other across the restraining area when the two teams line up will be the Poms brothers, Julius, who will start at tackle for the Highs, and Bill, who will start at guard for the Preps.

Julius, the younger but larger of the two, was selected as one of the representatives of the Inter-high championship McKinley Tech team. Bill, who played quarterback at Tech in 1946, performed at his new guard position at Devitt Prep this season.

The two have fought the game over the dinner table for the past two weeks and the result has been a draw.

"We have agreed," said Julius yesterday, "that when we run into each other out on that field, we'll pull no punches."

Julius, who is 17, stands 5 feet 9 inches, and weighs 200 pounds, says he and his brother haven't had a fight in the past three years.

"That's how long I've been bigger than Bill," says Julius. "We've never played football against each other before."

Bill, 19, is the same height as Julius, but scales only 175. His stellar play for Devitt this season has earned him bids to several colleges, but he'll probably wind up at Clemson. Julius has another year at Tech, and after his graduation, plans a college career, too.

Georgetown Court Squad Has a Distinct Gotham Flavor; Only 2 Foreigners on Team

Center Ken Brown is a more than slightly outnumbered Hoosier on the Georgetown basketball squad.

In fact, he and Joe Culhane of Rochester, N. Y., are the only members who don't come from metropolitan New York. And, Brown says, the boys from the big town won't stop making comparisons between New York City and Muncie, Ind.

"They're kidding me all the time," said the likable 6:04 pivot man. "I think I taught them a lesson, though. We arrived at the 69th st. Armory for a game in New York last year and our boys didn't seem to know anyone.

"Well, the minute I got out of a cab, a big cop came over and asked me if I were Ken Brown of Muncie. Seems he had played basketball against me when we were in the Army in Paris."

At any rate, Brown doesn't have to apologize for Muncie basketball. He played on two Burris High teams that reached the State finals and, of course, Indiana long has been recognized as the leading court State.

In Muncie, a city of 55,000, the high school plays in a gym seating 6500 and the city auditorium holds 9000. During the season, capacity crowds are the rule.

It seems there's no off season for the players. Brown talked about the air-conditioned gym in which basketball is played all summer.

Brown and the rest of the Hoya squad were practicing yesterday for Monday night's inaugural here against Denver University. Coach Elmer Ripley was off to scout Denver-St. John's in Madison Square Garden and Capt. Andy Kostecka handled the team.

Denver will be the first of 27 foes on what is regarded as the best college basketball schedule in the country.

Brown came along slowly last year when Georgetown won 19 of 26 and reached his peak in the last four games. Against Penn State, Duquesne, Villanova and Boston College, he scored, respectively, 11, 19, 18 and 20 points. His great game against Duquesne was one of the main reasons the Duke's 19-game winning streak was snapped.

Ken has two explanations for his slow start. Although only 23, he was away from keen court competition for almost four years. In the Army, Brown served as a rifleman with the 103d Infantry Division and fought in France, Germany and Austria. He received a battlefield commission and was a first lieutenant upon separation.

His other difficulty was in trying to fit in with a new style of play. "Out Indiana way, we take a lot more running shots," Brown explained, "here in the East, you have more set-shot artists."

The word is that Brown has caught on. Coach Elmer Ripley is banking on him and the other members of the top-flight squad to bring national court honors to Georgetown.

Smiling Lass Scores First Win Since March at Charles Town

Oyster K Second in Old Hickory

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 4.—Smiling Lass, owned by George Perry of Marlboro, Md., finally found a field she could whip in the Old Hickory Purse, featuring the Thursday program of the Charles Town Jockey Town.

Forced to chase high class thoroughbreds ever since March 19, when last she won, Smiling Lass went slumming today and won by two lengths over G. Y. Booker's Oyster K. In third position came Wayne Kendrick's Fleetest, the heavily blocked favorite in the field of eight.

Medium of a steady play in the mutuels which sent her odds down, Smiling Lass returned $6.60. Under the handling of Jockey J. Hummer, the daughter of War Hero was clocked in 1:47 2/5 for the mile and a sixteenth over a fast track, under cloudy skies and before a crowd of 5500.

Hummer hustled Smiling Lass into the lead in the opening jumps and she stayed there. Oyster K made repeated attempts to get to the leader but it was no "dice."

Fleetest, ridden by Jimmy Baird, who was unhurt in a spectacular fall early in the day, saved ground early, was well handled but could not seriously menace Smiling Lass and Oyster K in the final drive.

Tamarro, leading rider here, came back to take the third event with R. Justin Funkhouser's Sonorous, at $11.80.

Brennan Definitely Out for Trojans Game

Duke Captain Named

Durham, N. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Douglas Ausbon, Duke University senior from Durham, was elected captain of the 1947-48 Blue Devil basketball team today.

Wilson Teachers Lose by 68-31

Dayton, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—The Shenandoah College Hornets opened their 1947-48 basketball season here this afternoon by easily defeating Wilson Teachers College from Washington, D. C., by a 68-31 score.

Bill Adams of Elkins, W. Va., paced the winners in the scoring column, netting 15 points. He was closely followed in that department by Francis Maleonski of Davis, W. Va., who racked up 12. Kenny Burns, with 13 points, led the losers' offense.

Not Penn State

Pen Inmates Pen Note of Cheer to VMI

Lexington, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—State Pen—as well as Penn State—apparently was rather football conscious this year, and the VMI squad had a neat little package of praise from the boys in the prison shop to prove it today.

The Keydets have received a sizable stack of congratulatory messages since their 28-14 upset victory over Virginia Tech on Thanksgiving Day.

But the one treasured above all others was found tucked away i na pile of official forms that the State Penitentiary prints for the military institute. It said:

"Dear Fellows: We enjoyed the wonderful game you fellows played against VPI. Hoping you'll do the same next year.

"You have the whole prison behind you.

"That game you fellows won will pay fo rour smokes for the next few months.

"We're strictly VMI fans.

"THE PRINT SHOP."

The message, read in mess hall, brought three rousing cheers for State Pen.

A Colorado Boy Meets His Hero. In Johnny Lujack

Cheyenne, Wyo., Dec. 4 (AP).—A dream came true today for Mike Golden, 16-year-old Denver boy who has waged a winning, life-long battle against paralysis—he met his hero, Johnny Lujack, Notre Dame quarterback.

He also shook hands with the other members of the Notre Dame football team and team coaches.

The occasion came during the team's brief train stop here en route to Los Angeles to play the University of Southern California Saturday.

"I hope you win Saturday," the boy said, flushing with excitement. "You deserve a lot of credit," Lujack told the high school youth referring to his efforts to overcome total paralysis.

Terry's Leg In Cast for Trip West

Cheyenne, Wyo., Dec. 4 (AP).—Notre Dame football players, stopping briefly this morning en route to play Southern California Saturday, were optimistic over their chances of beating the Trojans, but Coach Frank Leahy said, "I don't see how we can win this one."

He said that Brennan, the leading scorer of the team, definitely would not see action Saturday.

"We are going to miss Terry Brennan tremendously," Leahy said, "both on offense and defense. Brennan is a power on pass defense, and with USC's great passers, Powers and Murphy, throwing that ball, we're going to have a difficult afternoon."

Brennan is making the trip but his left leg is in a cast as a result of torn ligaments suffered in the Notre Dame victory over Tulane.

UCLA Coach Likes Trojans' Chances

Los Angeles, Dec. 4 (AP).—Ardent admirers of Southern California's Trojans, playing to the hilt their role of underdog in the approaching game with Notre Dame, got a word of encouragement—unsolicited—from an erstwhile enemy source today.

Coach Bert Labrucherie of UCLA, whose Bruins dropped a 6-0 decision to the Troys November 22, checked the songs of woe emanating from the Trojan camp and then confided:

"I think the Trojans have a good chance of upsetting Notre Dame."

Labrucherie, with no tongue in cheek, said he figured USC had played a tougher schedule, had been tested and not found wanting, and should go into the contest with a decided psychological advantage.

American U. Plays Tonight

American University's Eagles go after their third victory in five games tonight at 8:30 when they face the revitalized University of Baltimore Bees here.

The Eagles, victors over their alumni and the Marine Corps Institute, have been conquered by City College of New York and University of Connecticut. The Bees, making their basketball comeback after deemphasizing the sport during the war, won their opener last week.

Pacing Coach Staff Cassell's AU team will be Reggie Crockett and Don Hillock, former Washington and Lee U. stars, and Pete Negley, who performed at North Carolina State in 1946. All stand over 6 feet 3, and together with Capt. Bart Fugler and John Wakefield, holdovers from last year, make AU a favorite for the Mason-Dixon crown.

Crockett is the lad who tossed in 18 points as the Eagles were losing to CCNY. Fugler and Hillock were members of Wilson High's 1942-43 Washington inter-high championship team.

In a preliminary, starting at 7 p. m., the American U. jayvees play Strayer College. After completion of the varsity game, spectators will be invited to the AU lounge to watch the Joe Louis-Joe Walcott heavyweight championship fight by television.

Fair Weather Predicted For Irish-Trojan Game

Los Angeles, Dec. 4 (AP).—The weatherman today repeated his prediction that Saturday will be fair for the Notre Dame-Southern California football game and the management of Memorial Coliseum hauled out its giant tarpaulin which it believes will protect the playing field from turning muddy.

The experts, who already concede Notre Dame a big edge, feel that the Irish would be aided even further by a wet field.

Mayor's Threat Imperils Winter Olympics

Bill Bennings

At Charles Town.

DEAR FOLKS:

Owner-Trainer Alan Clarke was a visitor and reports that his colt, Fritz Maisel, winner of the Bowie Breeders Purse, is safely in winter quarters on the Huntington Farm. Clarke was not too disappointed when Fritz Maisel ran third in the Endurance Handicap. He points out that the son of Little Beans was only a month off the farm when he won his first race at Laurel and less than 60 days on a race track when he met defeat in the Endurance. Clarke intends to give the youngster every opportunity as a 3-year-old and will nominate him for the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and other classics. Fritz Maisel has plenty of size and will go in light training on the farm next March. Clarke has reduced the number of boarding horses at his place in order to devote more time to "Fritz." Clarke has three coming 2-year-olds by Little Beans, one from the good mare Honesty. He says they are a shifty lot and will be heard from before next summer. Clarke thought he was having a lot of hard luck when most of his cheap horses were claimed from him and others went amiss early this year. However, he's all smiles now. See you on the rail—BILL.

Negro Title On Line Here

The undefeated and untied Shaw University Bears of Raleigh, N. C., seek their tenth victory and the Negro collegiate football championship Saturday at 4:30 p. m. when they tangle with the South Carolina State Bulldogs in the first National Bowl game at Griffith Stadium.

The underdog Bulldogs also go into the game with an undefeated record, although two of their eight foes held them to ties.

Beside South Carolina State, the only team that challenges Shaw's claim to the title is Tennessee State, which finished its season with a 10-0 record, but refuses to take part in a playoff game.

South Carolina State and Shaw will report here tomorrow to begin their drills for the big game, which will be started after the All-High vs. All-Prep game is ended. When twilight sets in, the National Bowl game will be continued under the floodlights.

Steffy, Scott Make Collier's Star Team

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Five Eastern players were among the 11 announced today by Collier's Magazine as members of its All-Star Football Team for 1947.

The team, selected by an advisory board of newspaper sports editors with the help of leading coaches, follows:

Ends, Cleary, Southern California, and Swiacki, Columbia; Tackles, Connor, Notre Dame, and Davis, Georgia Tech; Guards Suhey, Penn State, and Steffy, Army; Center, Scott, Navy; Backs, Lujack, Notre Dame; Minisi, Pennsylvania; Chappuis, Michigan, and Evans, Kansas.

U. S. Ban Feared at St. Moritz

By The Associated Press

Geneva, Switzerland, Dec. 4.—Already faced with a possible lack of American competitors, the winter Olympic program was placed in jeopardy as Mayor Carl Nater of St. Moritz threatened to withdraw the city's offer of hospitality if the United States Olympic Committee boycotted the games.

Swiss Olympic officials, however, refused to take the mayor's threat seriously and Marcel Henninger, chairman of the organizing committee for the games described it as "just an opinion."

"The games will take place at St. Moritz, whatever happens," Henninger declared. "There are 17 nations to participate, and if America doesn't come . . . well, there will only be 16 nations."

Meanwhile, Dr. Fritz Kraatz, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, appealed to American sportsmen to ignore their Olympic committee's boycott decision and declared he had received private information that United States skiers and bobsleigh teams would leave for St. Moritz as scheduled.

The situation arose after yesterday's decision by the United States Olympic committee, headed by Avery Brundage, not to participate in the winter games if the organizing committee admitted the hockey entry of the Amateur Hockey Association

It climaxed months of disputes between the Hockey Association and the Amateur Athletic Union, both of which claimed the right to name the United States hockey team for the winter carnival.

The United States Olympic committee, calling the A. H. A. "commercial and professional," has recognized only the A. A. U.

(A spokesman for the United States Olympic committee said in Chicago today that United States teams would sail as scheduled and would arrive in Switzerland by January 9. All will be withheld from competition, however, if the United States committee's ice hockey entry is refused, he said.

(He added that the committee had notified the Swiss organizing committee that it was entering a hockey team and that no rejection had been received. He reiterated the committee's stand that it had been set up to organize American participation in the games and that if independent groups, not approved by the committee, were permitted to enter teams "then we may as well shut up shop.")

Out Hunting

By Jack Bell

Secretary of the Interior, Krug, charged with the conservation of the Nation's natural resources, invited representative conservation sportsmen's organizations and outdoor newswriters to discuss wildlife, recreational, forest and related natural resource problems.

No onger is the voice of the conservationist-sportsman that of a "cry in the wilderness." Hunting and fishing are now big business.

As a result of this conference a big step forward toward conservation and restoration has been made. Secretary Krug has agreed to select five representative members of the 35 organizations represented, to act as an advisory board.

This meeting, the first of its kind, is to become an annual affair in addition to meetings with the advisory board.

Rodenberg's Trip To St. Louis Turns Out to Be a Dud

St. Louis, Dec. 4 (AP).—Bob Rodenberg, the Baltimore sportsman, today wound up his initial overtures toward purchase of the St. Louis Browns and departed for the east without disclosing any particular progress.

The owner of the Baltimore Colts of the All-America pro football conference confined his opening maneuvers here to a cart-before-the-horse discussion of selling the Browns-owned Sportsman's Park and did not confer with officials of the American League club.

Rodenberg is interested in buying the Browns only if the park can be sold and the franchise moved to Baltimore.

Quantico Marines Face All-Americans

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP).—The Quantico, Va., Marines' football squad, undefeated in service competition, arrived here today for a postseason game with Jacksonville Naval Station in the Gator Bowl Saturday afternoon.

The Quantico Leathernecks, rated as one of the best service teams in the country, will battle against some of the South's best gridders in the contest.

Jax Navy's Head Coach "Tuffy" Thompson, taking advantage of a rule which alows both teams to draw upon the outstanding players of other service teams in the area, will also use men from Pensacola and Corpus Christi.

Hal Hamburg, All-American back at the Naval Academy several years ago; Jack McQuary, another All-American from USC; Dave Barksdale, former University of North Carolina sta,r and Harvey Hardy, All-American guard while at Georgia Tech, will be in the Fliers starting eleven.

In the Marines' lineup will be big Joe Bartos, Naval Academy star back last year, and Billy Jesse, another Academy player who was a resevre pivot man.

The victor in Saturday's game will win the East Coast All-Navy championship and a chance to compete for the All-Navy title to be decided in a clash with the top West Coast team at Balboa Stadium, San Diego, Calif., on December 20.

Amateurs Box At Armory

The District National Guard tonight will present its second amateur boxing program at the Armory, 20th and East Capitol sts., with 10 bouts scheduled.

Opening bout will begin at 8:30. The feature pits Jimmy Caraway, of the Nationa Guard and two-time city champion, against Don Gunn of the Army War College, in the 120-pound class.

Another outstanding bout is expected to develop between Paul Oliver of Prince Georges Boys Cub, and Bob Holgren of Andrews Field, in the 140-pound class.

Returns of the Joe Louis championship fight will be announced during that program. Military personnel will be admitted free.

Boy Bags Deer at Spot He Got One Year Ago

Pottsville, Pa., Dec. 4 (AP).—John A. Straunch, 16-year-old Schuylkill Haven (Pa.) High School boy, bagged a nine-point buck deer today at the same spot and at almost the same minute as he shot his first nine-pointer exactly a year ago. As if that weren't coincidence enough, the buck weighed the same—150 pounds.

Coach Begins 36th Year

Bethlehem, Pa. Dec. 4 (AP).—Billy Sheridan started his thirty-sixth year as Lehigh University's wrestling coach today.

Church Group To Study Role In Economics

Baltimore, Dec. 4 (AP).—A "continuing committee" to study the role of the church in economic life was set up today at the closing session of the Maryland-Delaware Council of Churches and Christian Education.

Delegates to the three-day conference voted to make the theme of the discussions—"The Church and Economic Life"—a permanent part of the council's program.

The Rev. Dr. William R. Barnhart, head of the Hood College Department of Religion, told the 150 delegates yesterday that the "major sin of our economy" are social injustice and selfish nationism."

Society needs "not charity from surplus, but sharing from income," he said.

The Rev. Dr. C. G. Wolf told the group the commandment "Thou shalt not steal" imposes responsibility upon the employer to pay a just wage and upon the worker to give a fair day's work.

County to Crown Corn-Growing Champion Tonight

Luray, Va., Dec. 4.—The corn-growing champion of Page County will be crowned tomorrow night at the Courthouse, County Agent G. H. Clark announced today.

Clark said the winner, whose name will not be disclosed before tomorrow, produced an average of more than 100 bushels per acre to the county average yield of 35 bushels. Nine contestants averaged more than 90 bushels an acre.

Winner of the contest, conducted on three acres of ground by each contestant, will be awarded a silver loving cup and $50 in cash.

Terrier a Rat Terror; Kills 220 in Sipe Barn

Berryville, Va., Dec. 4.—J. C. Sipe's terrier should get at least a lieutenant's rating in the one-day rat eradication program which Clarke County farmers have indorsed for next year. Sipe, who attended a meeting to discuss means of reducing the loss of grain stocks because of rats, told his fellow farmers that his terrier killed 220 rats within a short period at his barn.

Type 21 Quota In Tobacco To Be Studied

By The Associated Press

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said yesterday information will be gathered during the next few weeks to determine if Type 21, fire-cured tobacco, will be separated for quota purposes.

Anderson wrote Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) that it probably will be January or February before the needed facts are available.

Growers of Type 21, which is grown only in Virginia, protested recently to Senators Byrd (D., Va.) and Robertson and other members of the Virginia delegation against a proposed cut in allotments. Since then marketing quota for Type 21 has been announced as 55,700,000 pounds, or about a 34 per cent cut in acreage allotments.

Growers contend Type 21 is not overstocked, is in good demand and that many farmers operating on one or two acres would have their acreage reduced to an unprofitable margin.

Anderson wrote that letters have been addressed to all principal holders of Virginia fire-cured tobacco requesting verification or modification of figures previously reported by them as to stocks on hand October 1, 1947.

"This should enable us to clear up any question about the accuracy of stocks figures," he added.

Mayor Calls Police Parley At Frederick

Frederick, Md., Dec. 4 (AP).—Mayor Lloyd C. Culler asked the police commission today to meet with him and the board of aldermen next week to discuss what action, it any, will be taken on an internal mixup in the police department.

William M. Storm, chairman of the commission, said the commission will be "very glad to meet with the aldermen." He said the mayor indicated he may set the meeting for Wednesday.

The mayor's action developed last night when the commission reported to the aldermen that charges against Police Lieutenant Reno O. Six wer not substantiated at recent hearings.

Six had been cited with Chief Frederick M. Straley on charges of dereliction-of-dpty by Sergeant Daniel E. Swomley. Chief Straley also was absolved.

After the report, Mayor Culler told the aldermen "you've got to do something about the police department."

Commissioner Storm said today he had "some very definite ideas about the situation." He did not reveal what those ideas were.

The commission's report related that two of the four charges placed against Six had been dismissed at Swomley's request. The other two—curbing officers and using profane language in their presence and failing to answer calls from headquarters—were pot substantiated, the report said.

Luther C. McRae Heads Stafford Ruritan Club

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 4.—Luther C. McRae, principal of Falmouth High School, was elected president of the Stafford County Ruritan Club last night, succeeding W. Frank Powers. Other new officers are Harry Brown, vice-president; Hunter R. Greenlaw, secretary; R. Stuart Purks, treasurer.

Superintendent of Schools T. Benton Gayle asked the Ruritans to study a proposal for a consolidated high school for Fredericksburg and Stafford County, which he said would ease "terribly overcrowded" conditions in the county's schools.

Stafford County Board Does Its Last Business

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 4.—The Stafford County Board of Supervisors, which goes out of office December 31, took its final action yesterday, the approval of an appropriation of $23,000 for the purchase of materials for the village of Falmouth's new water system. The water will be pumped across the Rappahannock from the Fredericksburg filter plant. The pipe line is now being constructed.

The board honored Chairman Julian V. Brooks, who will retire after 16 years in office, and [illegible] W. E. Curtis, who will [illegible] post after 28 years.

Marshall Plan Indorsed by Md. Grange

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 4 (AP).—Hundreds of Maryland farmers returned home today after reelecting Edward F. Holter of Middletown master of the State Grange and adopting 25 resolutions, including one indorsing the Marshall Plan for European recovery.

Elections and consideration of committee-proposed resolutions concluded the seventy-third annual session of the Grange, which lasted three days, at Carvel Hall.

In its resolution backing the Marshall Plan, the Grange declared:

"We feel that there can be no permanent peace when there are peoples anywhere who lack even the bare necessities of life in the way of food, clothing and shelter."

Parity Resolution Approved

Voting delegates stamped approval on another resolution urging Congress to modernize the farm parity formula and consider price supports, a multiple price system and programs for foreign distribution of agricultural products. These proposals were embodied in the grange "long-time agricultural program."

A spokesman for the farm group said members regarded the 1909-1914 base period for calculating parity as "out of date."

The Grange congratulated Governor Lane's administration for its schools, agricultural and medical care programs, but suggested that the Governor's Highway Advisory Committee be expanded to include farm representatives.

At the same time the Grange reaffirmed its stand of a year ago, urging that low-cost road types be emphasized in county projects, that a gradual program be followed to benefit more rural people and that caution be taken against bonding too heavily for road improvements while prices are high.

Other Recommendations

The Grange also recommended:

Opposition to proposals for combining soil conservation work with other agencies;

A "more favorable record period" for computing parity for Maryland tobacco;

Giving Social Security benefits to farmers;

Farmer support of co-operatives;

Repair of fire hazards, particularly in hotels and inns;

Speedy repeal of Federal automotive taxes;

State funds for the University of Maryland entomology department to continue its fight against the European corn border;

Holter, 47-year-old dairy farmer, was named to his second consecutive two-year term as State Grange master. He is lecturer of the National Grange.

Other Officers

Allan H. St. Clair of Rocks (Harford County) was elected overseer and Arthur B. Hamilton, professor of agriculture economics and marketing at College Park, was made State lecturer.

Other officers:

Earl Remsberg of Buckeystown, steward; Sterling F. Mullinix, Woodbine, assistant steward; J. Herbert Snyder, Union Bridge, secretary; Guy E. Meloy, Lanham, treasurer; William A. Divers, Churchville, chaplain; Melvin A. Lehman, Silver Spring, gatekeeper; Mrs. Helen Cox, Easton, Ceres; Mrs. Catherine E. Finch, Westminster, Pomona; Mrs. Dorothy Remsberg, Buckeystown, Fla., and Miss Blaney Barger, Ellicott City, lady assistant steward.

J. Wilson Lord, sr., of Ellicott City and I. H. Crickenberger of Mt. Airy were elected to two-year terms on the Grange executive council.

Va. Medical School Joint Board Asked

Richmond, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—Governor Tuck requested the Rockefeller Foundation today to study a proposal that Virginia's two medical schools be placed under one board in the interest of better administration.

In a letter to Dr. Raymond Fosdick, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, the Governor said that it was his opinion that a more economical administration could be obtained by the move.

Tuck advised the foundation of the forthcoming session of the General Assembly and said he would appreciate having the study made in time for him to present a recommendation.

If the governor's request is approved by the foundation, the study most likely will be made by Dr. Alan Gregg, director of the foundation's division of medical sciences. Dr. Gregg is regarded nationally as an expert in the field.

Europe Given Beef By Hagerstown Church

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 4 (AP).—Twenty-five thousand cans of beef, the gift of the Washington County Mennonite Church, was en route to Europe today for distribution by church workers in Germany, Austria, Italy and France.

The 14 and one half tons of beef cattle were donated by church members and the canning was done by 35 church members.
